PRESSURE POLITICS: THE STORY OF THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE. By PETER ODEGARD.

This book is a fascinating chronicle of facts and figures favoring only the truth. The author had access to the files of the Anti-Saloon League and to those of the U. S. Brewer's Association. He sat in the Congressional galleries with Wayne Wheeler, and learned at first hand facts that had hitherto been known by few. Few people have realized the magnitude of the league, the tremendous influence which they wielded, or the methods they adopted in accomplishing prohibition.

Pressure Politics is a book that everyone will appreciate, and the publishers feel sure that no one can call it dry reading.

THE LAND OF GODS AND EARTHQUAKES. By DOUGLAS HARING.

This book is what is commonly called a "travelbook," and it is the first one that a University Press, to our best knowledge, has ever published. Mr. Haring spent seven years as a missionary in Japan. He is an ordained minister, but at present is connected with the Department of Sociology at the University of Syracuse. And it was as a sociologist that he made his observations and took his photographs, many of which will illustrate his book. The book seems more than worth while after reading the chapter about the Japanese attitude toward aggressive policies. Mr. Haring proves that Japan is aggressive to the point of preserving only her own peace, pride and property. This book takes one close to the Japanese, into their homes and schools, into the streets and parks. One spins along in a rickshaw or pounds along in trolley cars. Here one will find a popular interpretation of Japanese morals and ethics. This book will be published about October 1st. The price will be $3.50†.

TOOLS AND TOYS OF STITCHERY. By GERTRUDE WHITING.

This large and well-illustrated volume is concerned with the uses and development down the years and across the frontiers of the manifold, crude and intricate implements employed in the making of laces and needle work of all kinds. It is one of those rare books with such a fine sense of values and such a mellow perspective in human interest that it will be read with equal interest and zest by the craft worker, the student, the collector and the layman.

A TALE OF A TUB. By JONATHAN SWIFT. Illustrated by CHARLES LOCKE and WARREN CHAPPELL.

This volume will be hand set in 14 point Grandjon type. The book size will be about 7¼″ x 10¼″, and the text will be illustrated with thirteen woodcuts, a frontispiece, an introductory and tail piece, and ten illustrated initial letters. Locke was an associate of the late Joseph Pennell, and Chappell was a student of Allen Lewis'. Price, $3.00†

SHAKESPERE FORGERIES IN THE REVELS ACCOUNTS. By SAMUEL TANNENBAUM. (Problems in Shakespere's Penmanship, The Booke of Sir Thomas Moore, A New Study of Shakespere's Will, The Assassination of Christopher Marlowe, and other documentary studies.)

This book will be issued in an edition of only 500 copies for sale in both England and America, and will be ready in September, 1928. The price will be between $10.00 and $15.00.

"I have been privileged to read, in advance of publication, Dr. Tannenbaum's SHAKESPERE FORGERIES IN THE REVELS ACCOUNTS, and have no hesitation in declaring that I expect it to flutter Elizabethan dovecots and to revolutionize certain views now firmly held. It seems to me one of the finest pieces of scholarship that America has brought forth."—E. H. C. Oliphant, Visiting Professor of English, New York University.

"Dr. Tannenbaum has made himself a master of the science of Bibliotics, and whatever he may say about forgeries of early documents deserves the careful consideration of scholars. His investigation of the suspected Revels Accounts largely destroys the arguments of law, hitherto accepted as conclusively proving the authenticity of the documents, and forces upon students of the drama a new consideration of the entire case."—Professor Joseph Quincy Adams, Cornell University.

"I have read Dr. Tannenbaum's work and consider it the most important contribution to Shakesperian and Elizabethan scholarship that has been made for some time. The technique of the 'handwriting' expert is applied for the first time to literary problems."—Professor Ashley H. Thorndike, Columbia University.

In this book embracing the results of years of study of the original documents, Dr. Tannenbaum proves that all previous studies of the famous REVELS ACCOUNTS OF 1604–5 and 1611–12 ("discovered" by Peter Cunningham about 1840) have been extremely perfunctory, superficial, and unscientific; that the analysis of the late Professor James J. Dobbie, Government Chemist, was too trivial and superficial to be of any value, and besides his report was misunderstood and distorted; that the documents are forgeries from beginning to end; that the purpose of the forger was to add to our knowledge concerning Shakespere's popularity at the Court of King James and to fix the dates of composition of some of Shakespere's greatest plays (Othello, The Winter's Tale, The Tempest, etc.). He also demonstrates that the much discussed "Malone scrap," by which it has been attempted to prove that Malone was acquainted with the contents of the questioned Revels Accounts, is a forgery and was "planted" in the Bodleian Library. On very substantial grounds he establishes the identity of the forger. The book then goes on to an investigation of two other important documents in dramatic history: the play-lists of 1636–7 and of 1638–9, and proves them both to be forgeries, the latter being probably a faked copy of a genuine (and now lost) original. Incidentally, the notorious John P. Collier is convicted of forgery of several documents and no loophole is left for those who would maintain that Collier was innocent, more sinned against than sinning. The study of the writer's arguments is facilitated by the presence of twenty-three full-page collotype fac-similes and enlargements of the questioned writings.

PRAIRIE SMOKE. By Melvin Randolph Gilmore.

Among the American Indians, a bow of bow-wood was worth a horse and a blanket. Do you know what American tree provided this surpassing bow-wood? PRAIRIE SMOKE will tell you.

Do you know what American river was to the Indians the "Holy River" and was honored in ceremonies more appealing than the Egyptian ceremonies in honor of the Nile? PRAIRIE SMOKE tells why the river was holy, and describes the beautiful ceremonies.

When the Indians are said to have sold Manhattan Island for a few dollars, they meant no more than a host means when he bids a guest make himself at home. PRAIRIE SMOKE explains what the Indian ideas of land ownership were and why Indians could not imagine selling land. It corrects false teachings in American History and misunderstandings that have led to savage wars.

The parts of America tilled by white men, with and without irrigation, were tilled by Indians before Columbus came. The white man's chief crop, the greatest of the world's achievements in plant domestication and breeding, is one of many achievements of Indian agriculture.

PRAIRIE SMOKE tells of Indian ways of farming, including the poetic rites in honor of Mother Corn.

To know the immemorial past of our land, the nations that our nation dispossessed, the poetry of our native animals and plants, one must read PRAIRIE SMOKE. American boys and girls and their elders will enjoy this book, and it will give new and finer meaning to their environment.

This book will be published in the fall of 1928, and the tentative price is $2.50†.

ANNALS OF THE NEW YORK STAGE. By GEORGE C. D. ODELL, Professor of Dramatic Literature in Columbia University.

These volumes, the outgrowth of years of careful research, describe the beginnings of theatrical history of New York City, from about 1700 to the first season of Edmund Kean, 1820–21 (Volumes III and IV bring the history up to 1842). The life of the town, with its changing tastes and customs, serves as background for the pictures of the actors, the audiences and the manners of stage production. The author aims to present a living theatre in a living city. Contemporary newspapers and other publications have been carefully examined for critical discussions and for theatrical news, and many rare and interesting illustrations make vivid the narrative. This record is the most complete in existence of the earliest actors and playhouses known to New York. Later volumes will continue the account almost to the present day.

AN ARAB-SYRIAN GENTLEMAN AND WARRIOR IN THE PERIOD OF THE CRUSADES: MEMOIRS OF USAMAH ibn-MUNQIDH (KITAB al-I'TIBAR).

Translated by PHILIP K. HITTI of Princeton University.

Usāmah was a warrior, a hunter, a gentleman and a poet who sojourned in the courts of the Fātimite caliph in Cairo, of Saladin in Damascus and of Zanki in al-Mawsil. His Memoirs, of which only one copy is preserved in the Escurial, Spain, open before us a wide and new vista into medieval times and constitute an invaluable contribution to our knowledge of Arab-Syrian culture in itself and in its relation to Western thought and practice.

Usāmah gives us a first-hand description of some of the battles in which he took part in the defence of his castle, Shayzar, against the Franks and native enemies. He then devotes a section to rare anecdotes, more delectable than which can be found nowhere in Arabic Literature, and closes with another on falconry as practiced in Syria, Egypt and Mesopotamia. Long paragraphs are devoted to his impressions of the character of the Franks and their methods of medication and judicial procedure. In their simplicity of narrative, dignity and wealth of contents and general human interest, these Memoirs stand unexcelled in the literature of the Crusades. They acquaint us with the Syrian methods of warfare, hawking and medication and usher us into the intimacies of Moslem court life as well as private home life.

This book will be published in the fall of 1928 at a price to be determined at that time.

OTTO OF FREISING: The TWO CITIES. By CHARLES C. MIEROW.

"The Two Cities, A Chronicle of Universal History to the year 1146," by Bishop Otto of Freising is a book of unusual interest from several points of view. As a philosophy of history, it shows the influence of the De Civitate Dei of St. Augustine and traces the conflict between the principles of good and evil from the birth of Cain and Abel, prototypes of the City of Earth and Heavenly City, down to the author's own day,—hence the title of the book referring to the earthly Babylon and the heavenly Jerusalem. For the period contemporaneous with his own life, Bishop Otto, the grandson of the Emperor Henry IV, half-brother of Conrad III and uncle of the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa, was naturally peculiarly qualified to write from first hand knowledge of affairs of state. As a historian, Otto of Freising is universally recognized as the author of the most celebrated works of German historical writing of the middle ages and his book is characterized by Hauch as "the first presentation of universal history that possesses the unity of a work of art." The forthcoming volume in the Records of Civilization contains the first complete translation of the Chronicles of Bishop Otto of Freising that has appeared in any modern language together with an introduction of approximately seventy-five pages and a full commentary in the form of footnotes.

This book will be published in October at a price to be determined at that time.

THE SEE OF PETER. By JAMES T. SHOTWELL and LOUISE ROPES LOOMIS.

It is a strange, almost incredible fact, that no such collection has yet been made, in English at least, of the texts on which the historical claims of the Papacy rest. Indeed there is only one anthology of the originals which is anything like adequate, the collection of the German scholar, Mirbt, Quellen zur Geschichte des Papsttums. The fact that this anthology has gone through several editions shows how useful such a volume is for students of Church history. Yet even the Mirbt collection gives but the barest fragments of these original texts, and can be used only by those who can then proceed to work out the setting of the citations by further reading in the literature of the period. ECONOMICS

POST-WAR MONETARY STABILIZATION. By Gustave Cassel.

The past decade has witnessed unusual and startling occurrences in the monetary history of the various countries of the world. Now that all the important countries have stabilized their currencies, an attempt is being made to understand just what happened. Professor Cassel, eminent economist of the University of Stockholm, brings together in this book the results of his thoughts and investigations. In three concise and penetrating essays, he considers certain important International monetary problems. The first essay is a factual account and a theoretical explanation of the recent inflation and stabilization processes in various European countries. The second essay is a stimulating consideration of the gold standard, including a discussion of the possibility of stabilizing the value of gold. Finally, Professor Cassel discusses what he terms "the new gold standard," presenting his views on the dominant position of the Federal Reserve System in the world economy. The essays are clearly and simply written. Stimulating to the lay reader and challenging to the expert, this book represents an important contribution to the literature of monetary theory. THE FINANCES AND FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION OF NEW YORK CITY. By Herbert H. Lehman (Chairman).

This volume describes for the first time the fiscal structure of the huge municipal corporation known as New York City. Strangely enough, even though special problems connected with New York's budgetary procedure and taxes have been discussed repeatedly the finances and financial administration of the city have never been dealt with as a whole. This volume will make clear to the citizen many questions of public policy which continually arise and will be of interest to students of municipal problems throughout the world. The city's public reports are now issued in such a form that the officials of other cities have great difficulty in obtaining an exact knowledge of New York City's practices.

The volume was prepared for the sub-committee on budget finance and revenue of the city committee on plan and survey by a staff of experts under the direction of Dr. Lindsay Rogers, Professor of Public Law of Columbia University. Among these experts were Dr. Howard Lee McBain, Ruggles Professor of Constitutional Law; Dr. Robert Murray Haig, Professor of Economics; Dr. Luther Gulick, Lecturer on Municipal Administration and Director of the National Institute of Public Administration.

The analysis of New York's fiscal structure and problems prepared for the sub-committee differs from other documents having a similar origin in that it is interestingly written. To the report on New York's fiscal structure are prefaced the sub-committee's recommendations for improved budgetary procedure and new sources of revenue. These recommendations will furnish a fiscal program for the city for some years to come. Matters of particular interest in the volume are the analysis of New York City's borrowing—probably the most complicated debt structure of any public body in the world—the city's financial position under the dual contracts with the subway companies, and a bibliography of all previous writings on New York City government and finance.

THE HISTORY OF TAXATION IN NORTH CAROLINA DURING THE COLONIAL PERIOD, 1663–1776. By CORALIE PARKER.

This is a study of the system of taxation in use throughout the territory of North Carolina during the time that it was an English colony. A description of the social, governmental and economic background upon which the fiscal system rested is woven into the development and explanation of taxation system. A complete survey and analysis of the revenues with emphasis upon the types of taxes imposed and collected both by English and local authorities in the colony is set forth in this book, based upon a careful research into the laws, records and writings of that period.

This book will be published in the fall of 1928 at a price to be determined at that time.

SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC STUDIES OF POST-WAR FRANCE.

The Columbia University Press will publish in English, in the course of 1928, eight volumes embodying results of an important cooperative investigation into certain economic and social developments of France and the French people during the last decade. The investigation has been made in France by a group of American scholars, with the help of a considerable number of research-assistants, both American and French, and with the valuable aid of numerous French officials. It has been conducted under the general auspices of the Columbia University Council for Research in the Social Sciences and under the special direction of a committee consisting of Professors Carlton J. H. Hayes (Chairman), Robert M. Haig, Wesley C. Mitchell, William F. Ogburn, and Lindsay Rogers.

The central purpose of the investigation has been the gathering of reliable information about the manner in which, and the extent to which, inflation has arisen in French public finance, and been reflected in French banks and private finance, and had effect on the several social classes and cultural groups which constitute the French nation, and likewise how it has been at least partially offset by the expansion of French industry and the activity of French labor, and seriously complicated by French politics, French foreign and colonial events, and French national psychology.

However, in the actual conduct of the investigation, sufficient significant information has been gathered to warrant the publication of volumes which do not treat directly of inflation but which provide comprehensive and up-to-date surveys of French industry, French labor, French government, French foreign and colonial policies, and French training for national citizenship.

Every effort has been made to ensure the reliability of all the information gathered and to render its presentation objective and scientific. The study as a whole should be of immediate value to economists and of future value to historians, and particular volumes should appeal to a wide range of readers. Altogether the work should serve to make better known and appreciated the grave economic and social problems which confront a great contemporary country such as France and the efforts put forth by the French people to solve them.

The eight volumes are edited by Carlton J. H. Hayes, Professor of History in Columbia University, and will be published not only by the Columbia University Press in English but also in French and in German by publishers respectively in Paris and in Berlin. The Volumes are as follows:

I. The History of French Public Finance since the War. By Robert M. Haig, Professor of Business Administration in Columbia University;

II. The Process of Inflation in France. By James Harvey Rogers, Professor of Economics in the University of Missouri;

III. The Development of French Industry, 1918-1928. By William F. Ogburn, Professor of Sociology in the University of Chicago, and William Jaffe, Fellow of the Social Science Research Council;

IV. The French Labor Movement since the War. By David J. Saposs, Professor of Labor Legislation in the Brookwood Labor College, and A. D. Meurig Evans, Fellow of the Social Science Research Council;

V. French Government and its Functioning since the War. By Lindsay Rogers, Professor of Public Law in Columbia University;

VI. French Foreign and Colonial Policies since the War. By Parker Thomas Moon, Professor of International Relations in Columbia University.

VII. Public Opinion and National Psychology in Contemporary France. By Carlton J. H. Hayes, Professor of History in Columbia University;

VIII. Effects of Inflation on Social Classes and Cultural Groups in Contemporary France, a volume of essays by various members of the staff.

COLUMBIA STUDIES IN HISTORY, ECONOMICS AND PUBLIC LAW

THE BUNK HOUSE MAN. By E. W. Bradwin.

The most characteristic contribution which the new world has made to the history of labor is in connection with frontier construction works requiring the assembling of brawny workers of numerous nationalities and creeds, their housing in remote camps, and the direction of their labor in the accomplishment of the tasks set them by engineers and contractors whose plans have been formulated in distant capitals. Dr. Bradwin's account of the Bunkhouse Man is based on first-hand information and combines the interest of romance with the hard facts of economics. While appreciative of the problems confronting the contractor, the author exposes the evils of the system. His book is a challenge not only to Canada but to the United States to surround its frontier workers, who have contributed so much to the prosperity and greatness of the two countries, with the protection which they have so conspicuously lacked. Price, $5.00

NEW ENGLAND'S OUTPOST: ACADIA BEFORE THE CONQUEST OF CANADA. By JOHN BARTLET BREBNER.

The author of Evangeline took many liberties with the facts of history and by his art created an enduring myth about the expulsion of the Acadians. Yet Longfellow's own New England almost controlled the course of events in eighteenth-century Nova Scotia and even provided the agents for the tragedy which the poet deplored. This book contains the early history of the Acadians and their land, and describes the experiment in British Colonies policy which preceded the similar situation in French Canada after its conquest. Price, $4.50

THE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES SINCE 1896. By CHANG-WEI CHIU.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives "had but one superior and no peer." That was the opinion of "Czar" Reed before the 1910 "revolution," which was directed at the sources of his power. The changes in the control of the process of legislation, and their effect on the functions and power of the Speaker, since the reforms, beginning in 1910, are reviewed and analyzed in this study. Although he has been deprived of his power to appoint committees and of much of his control over the business of the House, Speaker Longworth could truly say in December, 1927, that "the Speakership of the House of Representatives is one of the great government offices of the world . . . second in dignity and importance, together with power and influence upon the future of America, potentially, at least, only to the presidency itself." INTERCOLONIAL ASPECTS OF AMERICAN CULTURE ON THE EVE OF THE REVOLUTION: WITH ESPECIAL REFERENCE TO THE NORTHERN TOWNS. By MICHAEL KRAUS.

By the examination of a multitude of sources, the author has established a novel point of view—that an active intercommunity life paved the way for, and was contemporaneous with, the better known political events of the years that preceded the American Revoultion. With such an approach the co-operative activities of those years are easier to understand. The collective efforts of colonists, often widely scattered, contributed to building up a youthful civilization; a new nation was in the making.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT, 1861. By A. Howard Meneeley.

An account of the American Democracy preparing for war in 1861 in the face of a depleted and decentralized military establishment, administrative inefficiency, political interference and jobbery, and industrial unpreparedness. The author tells how the War Department was developed from a small run-down organization, how the army was built up from a small force of 16,000 men to more than a million, and how it was supplied from the sources at home and abroad. A book that will be of interest and usefulness to students of Lincoln and the Civil War Period. Price, $6.00

THE DISTRIBUTION OF POWER TO REGULATE INTERSTATE CARRIERS BETWEEN THE NATION AND THE STATES. By George G. Reynolds.

This volume discusses the problems which arise from the conflict between federal and state authority in the regulation and taxation of interstate carriers. The conflict is traced from the adoption of the constitution, through court decisions and federal legislation, to the present time. Particular attention is given to the judicial interpretation of the scope of federal and state powers. The author shows the growing predominance of federal power and the restraints thereby imposed upon state autonomy. In conclusion, the political, economic, and administrative advantages and defects of the present concentration of power are discussed with particular reference to pending proposals for decentralization. Price, $6.50

SIMONDE DE SISMONDI AS AN ECONOMIST. By Mao-Lan Tuan.

Sismondi, celebrated for his history of the Italian Republic, was one of the keenest observers of economic conditions in Europe during the troubled years that followed the Napoleonic Wars. His combination of economic insight, historical learning, alert realism and social sympathy made him the forerunner of many later developments—criticism of laissez-faire, labor legislation, state socialism, application of historical method to social science, the study of business cycles. Dr. Tuan's book offers the first adequate account in English of the economic views developed by this fascinating Genevese. Price, $3.50

ECONOMIC BASES OF DISUNION IN SOUTH CAROLINA. By John G. Van Deusen.

In recent years there has been a tendency for historians to emphasize the economic causes of political events. This book portrays ante-bellum

South Carolina not as an aggressive slavocracy but as a region suffering under economic decline, the cause of which its leaders attributed to the unequal distribution of the benefits of the federal government. Convinced that the South could not secure its economic independence in the Union, they became advocates of secession.

JAPAN'S FOREIGN EXCHANGE AND HER BALANCE OF INTERNATIONAL PAYMENTS: WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO RECENT THEORIES OF FOREIGN EXCHANGE. By S. Y. FURUYA.

In publishing this treatise in English the author aims at two objectives. One is to make the English-speaking public acquainted with the changes that have taken place in the last thirteen years in the currency, trade, financial and exchange situation in Japan. The other is to make known to those interested in theoretical problems the views of the author regarding the laws governing foreign exchange. Price, $3.25

THE INTERPRETATION OF TREATIES. By TSUNE-CHI YU.

The matter of the interpretation of treaties is of utmost importance to the society of nations because the agreements between its members give expression to the cardinal principles of their foreign relations. In the pages that follow the nature of the problem of interpretation is examined. In this book, the nature of the problem of interpretation is examined; and the attempt is made to scrutinize causes of confusion of thought that still lingers in the minds of many. Standards and sources of interpretation—inseparable links in the process of interpretation—are examined and discussed in the light of instructive cases. In order to enhance respect for fundamental principles, attention is called to the inherent weakness of some so-called rules of construction, while the precise significance of others is sought to be appraised; and there follows a close survey of the doctrine of uberrima fides which oftentimes seemingly embraces in substance a declaration that is erroneously termed a canon of construction. In a word, in the course of this study endeavor is made to show that the application of scientific principles to the problems of treaty interpretation as they arise between nations and baffle both statesmen and jurists is practicable and also necessary as a means of promoting justice. The author is not without hope that his labors may encourage those burdened in any capacity with the actual task of treaty intrepertation to give fresh consideration to the general problem involved, and in so doing to unleash themselves from the influence of supposed rules that have long since ceased to furnish safe guidance. Price, $4.00

LAW

PARADOXES OF LEGAL SCIENCE. By Benjamin N. Cardozo.

This book by the Chief-Judge of the Court of Appeals of New York is a study in the philosophy of judge-made law. It finds the judicial process to be in essence a continuing compromise between antithetical extremes—between stability and growth, between the rule and some ideal of justice prompting departure from the rule, between competing social interests, between causes that are remote and those that are proximate, between the individual and the group, between liberty and government. There is an attempt to analyze the meaning of justice as a legal concept as well as that of liberty in the realms of thought and conduct. Price, $2.50

THE HUNGARIAN-RUMANIAN LAND DISPUTE: A STUDY OF HUNGARIAN PROPERTY RIGHTS IN TRANSYLVANIA UNDER THE TREATY OF TRIANON. By Francis Deák.

This book is a study in post-war international law dealing with a controversy which has caused anxiety for several years to the advocates of peace in Central Europe. The dispute arose over the Hungarian agrar-reform which expropriated Hungarian landowners in the former Hungarian province, Transylvania, ceded by the treaty of Trianon to Rumania. The litigation should have been settled by an Arbitral Tribunal provided for in the Treaty itself but Rumania declined to submit to arbitration and brought the case before the Council of the League of Nations. Apart from the fight about the principle of inviolability of private property—a principle entirely disregarded by the Soviet regime in Russia and the proposed expropriations in Mexico—the author deals with the crucial point in this particular case, namely, the serious conflict between the political powers of the Council of the League and the judicial power of an international court. He shows that the Council would injure seriously the cause of international arbitration should it attempt to solve the controversy regardless of an arbitral decision, and that the Council would run counter to the principles laid down by the World Court, an institution called into life by the Covenant of the League itself. He concludes that the Hungarian-Rumanian dispute should be settled by an impartial and independent judicial body—unless political factors should remain the controlling force in all international tangles. The introduction is by Mr. George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General of the United States and President of the American Law Institute. Price, $5.00

ELEMENTS OF THE LAW OF CONTRACTS. By VICTOR MORAWETZ.

This work was prepared principally for consideration in connection with the restatement of the law of contracts submitted by the American Law Institute for criticism. The last fifty pages consist of a statement of the fundamental conceptions upon which, in the opinion of the author, a restatement of the law of contracts should be based. The remaining pages consist of a statement of principles and rules relating to the formation of contracts. As stated in a prefactory note, Mr. Morawetz has endeavored to state the law according to fact and reason, without the use of artificial conceptions, theories and forms of statements. Price, $2.00

A GENERAL VIEW OF EUROPEAN LEGAL HISTORY. By MUNROE SMITH.

The following quotation from the author is as adequate a description of this book as the publishers have been able to find. "In my study of European Legal History I have been increasingly impressed by the fact that in the central and western countries of continental Europe, which to-day form independent states, each with its own body of laws, the development of private or civil law during the past fourteen centuries has been essentially similar. The whole movement has been European. And yet no writer has attempted to deal with it from this point of view. There are numerous histories of Italian law, of French law, of Spanish law and of German law. There are also histories of the legal development of many of the smaller European countries. But there exists no general history of European law." Price, $3.00

LITERATURE

THE NEW BEATRICE: OR THE VIRTUE THAT COUNSELS. A STUDY IN DANTE. By Gratia N. Baldwin.

THE NEW BEATRICE substitutes for the romantic lady of nineteenth-century literary criticism a figure consonant with medieval imaginative habit. It is a significant interpretation of Dante's supreme vision as focusing the highest thought of his time. Especially suggestive is the illumination of Dante's poetry of free will. Though it is thus a contribution to medieval philosophy, the book has been kept in length, scope, and language within the range of any lover of the Divine Comedy. Price, $2.00

THE NOBLE SAVAGE. By Hoxie N. Fairchild.

Dr. Fairchild has examined an aspect of Romanticism the importance of which has long been recognized, but which has not hitherto been treated with equal fullness, scholarly care and literary distinction. The author's aim has been to consider the whole "return to nature" side of Romanticism through the medium of the sentimentalized savage. He takes a broad view of his theme, dealing with the South Sea Islander and the Negro as well as with the American Indian, and glancing also at the idealized peasant and child. The Noble Savage is considered in relation to the major authors of the English Romantic Movement, and to a large number of minor figures. A separate group of chapters connects the Noble Savage with other romantic tendencies such as the cult of scenery, the religion of nature, and the interest in primitive poetry. Since the subject impinges upon so many other themes of interest to students of the period, the book is an important work of reference; and no subsequent study of Romanticism can afford to ignore it. Dr. Fairchild's attitude is searchingly critical and not without ironic scepticism, but he does not allow his anti-romantic views to lead him into unfairness or extravagance, and he identifies himself with no existent coterie. The book, though addressed primarily to scholars, is by no means without appeal to the cultivated general reader. Price, $5.00

VALENTINE AND ORSON. By Arthur Dickson.

The wild man Orson and his brother Valentine are heroes of medieval story whose names, at least, are widely known; but the romance which relates their adventures has not hitherto been the subject of study. In this volume, Mr. Dickson traces the romance Valentin et Orson to its many sources, a process which sheds unexpected new light on several questions connected with the history of medieval fiction. The book will be of interest and value to every student of the romances, legends and folktales of the Middle Ages.

To be published in the fall of 1928, at a price to be determined at that time.

RUSSIAN LITERATURE AND THE JEW. By Joshua Kunitz.

This book is primarily a sociological inquiry into the nature and evolution of literary patterns. The various Jewish patterns credited by the Russian authors from the beginning of Russian history up to and including the year 1927 are examined and compared with the actual Jew as he has revealed himself in his own life and literature. While the factual material contained in this volume makes the book indispensable to the student of the Jews or of Russian literature; the sociological laws and their bearing on literary forms traced in this book ought to recommend it to the student of sociology; while its dramatic movement, rapid shifting of scenes, its colorful contrasts and the vigorous writing ought to appeal to the general reader.

Price to be determined in the fall of 1928.

THE REALM OF LITERATURE. By Henry W. Wells.

This book is divided into two parts, the first half dealing with the relation of literature to art in general, and, broadly speaking, with the relation of any book to any reader. The second half deals with special forms and problems of literature, rather than with literature as a whole. Price, $2.00

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF JOHN MILTON.

This is to be a definitive edition of Milton. There will also be a University Edition at a somewhat cheaper price. The typographic work for these books is all being done at the printing house of William Rudge. The first volumes will be ready in 1929.

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF EDGAR ALLAN POE.

The work on this edition, which will be definitive, also, has just begun, and it is doubtful if there will be anything ready before the fall of 1930.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY INDO IRANIAN SERIES

ZOROASTER, THE PROPHET OF ANCIENT IRAN. By A. V. Williams Jackson.

This work aims to collect in one volume all that is known about the great Iranian prophet. The story of the life and ministry of Zoroaster is told in twelve chapters, and these are followed by appendixes on explanations of Zoroaster's name, the date of the Prophet, Zoroastrian chronology, Zoraster's native place and the scene of his ministry, and classical and other passages mentioning his name. Price, $5.00

ZOROASTRIAN STUDIES: THE IRANIAN RELIGION AND VARIOUS MONOGRAPHS. By A. V. Williams Jackson (Volume 12).

This volume comprises three parts. The first part, on the Iranian Religion, contains an account of Zoroastrianism, which was printed in a German translation in Geiger and Kuhn's Grundriss der iranischen Philologie (1903) and is now made available in its original English form, but expanded by so much added material as to make it in large measure a new contribution. The second part is devoted to a detailed study of the Zoroastrian doctrine of the freedom of the will and is here presented for the first time. The third part comprises a series of miscellaneous studies relating to the prophet's life and to matters connected with the religion. Price, $4.00

LAW IN THE APOCRYPHA. By Ralph Marcus (Volume XXVI).

"The Apocryphal writings are becoming daily a subject of more engrossing interest. They pertain to a period about which we still know little, and any addition to our information on the subject is eagerly welcomed. Dr. Marcus has chosen the difficult task of determining the place that Law, or rather, the Halakha, occupied in the Apocrypha. He has made a minute and critical study of the passages involved, and has thrown much light upon debated points. The accuracy of his work will commend it to all who are engaged in researches along these lines." Richard Gottheil. Price, $2.50

THE ORIGINS OF THE DRUZE PEOPLE AND RELIGION WITH EXTRACTS FROM THEIR SACRED WRITINGS. By Philip K. Hitti of Princeton University (Volume XXVIII).

This is the first scholarly attempt to determine the basic dogmas and tenets of belief of a unique, secret Oriental sect, and to trace them back, through Mohammedan channels, into Judaeo-Christian, Neo-Platonic, Gnostic and Manichean sources. After a brief presentation of the racial and historical background of the Druze people—from the time they figured first in the period of the Crusades down to their recent armed uprising against the French mandate in Syria—, their theology with its deification of al-Hakim and his Five Ministers, and its emphasis on Prophetic Succession is outlined. This is followed by a discussion of their esoteric and mystical interpretation of the Koran, the Cult of the Calf, their belief in transmigration of souls, predestination, dissimulation and the seven moral precepts of Hamzah. The Appendix includes six extracts from their sacred writings most of which have never appeared before in any European language. Even in Arabic, the originals are almost inaccessible.

The author drew his material from first-hand contact with the Druzes in Lebanon and from their sacred manuscripts which they jealously guard in secret.

This book will be published in the fall of 1928 at a price to be determined at that time.

PHILOSOPHY

THE SCIENTIFIC HABIT OF THOUGHT. By Frederick Barry.

In a few words, this book is an informal discussion of the source and character of dependable knowledge. Further, the book is addressed to the general reader, and is wholly untechnical and pleasantly discursive. Although it presents a definite thesis which lacks nothing of earnestness or conviction, and is defensible as a direct inference from actual scientific practice, its tone reflects the somewhat easy-going manner of the laboratory rather than that of the lecture room. The author has been engaged for many years in experimental research, and speaks with the assurance of easy familiarity with his subject matter. Price, $3.50

SOCIOLOGY

THE PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF SOCIOLOGY. By Herbert N. Shenton.

Hitherto, applied sociology has dealt with the usefulness of social philosophy as a basis for ethics and public polity. The author contends that the new sociology—a specific social science—will be useful for the devising of ways and means of effecting economies in achieving specific social changes in the marketplace as well as in the neighborhood. COLUMBIA STUDIES
IN HISTORY, ECONOMICS AND PUBLIC LAW

EDITOR'S FOREWORD TO THE COLUMBIA STUDENTS IN HISTORY, ECONOMICS AND PUBLIC LAW

The Studies in History, Economics and Public Law were started in 1890, under the auspices of the Faculty of Political Science of Columbia University, and under the editorial management of Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman. Professor Seligman continued to act as Managing Editor until 1919, when he was succeeded by Professor Henry R. Seager and in 1923 Professor R. L. Schuyler succeeded Professor Seager. The object of the Studies was to afford an avenue of publication for the best dissertations submitted by candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy under the Faculty of Political Science. Care has been taken to include in the series only meritorious works, as is evident from the favorable reception which the monographs have met at the hands of competent critics.

So far the Studies have published 307 monographs. Complete sets are subscribed for by leading libraries in the Argentine, Australia, Austria, Canada, China, Czecho-Slovakia, Great Britain, France, Germany, India, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Norway, Philippine Islands, Poland, Russia, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland. German subscriptions alone amount to twenty-five. In the United States fifteen state libraries, thirty public libraries, and two historical societies subscribe for the Studies.

The Studies were started without any independent publication fund. The enterprise has not only paid its way, but has now amassed a fund which is of substantial assistance to the authors of the monographs.

IMPORTANT

Originally, these Studies were bound in paper and indicated by Arabic numerals. For the convenience of Libraries and Institutions that desired complete sets of the Studies, two or three consecutive titles were listed together as a volume and indicated by Roman numerals. Beginning with number 274 of the Studies, however, all titles have been published separately and bound in cloth. It is suggested that you turn to the Chronological Index on page 110 before ordering, to avoid confusion. Ordinarily, the whole cloth volumes published prior to number 274 are sold only to Libraries for the purpose of completing files of the Studies.

Kyne Writes of the Gold Rush

TIDE OF EMPIRE

by Peter B. Kyne

THE latest Peter B. Kyne story is a romance of early California which includes a glowing, thoroughly realistic picture of the famous gold rush of '49. Dermod D'Arcy, adventurous and Irish, Josepha Guerrero, a Spanish señorita and Bejabers, a homespun comedian, figure chiefly in the tale. Mr. Kyne's vast and enthusiastic public makes any mention of his genius as a story-teller seem superfluous. However, so well has he caught the flavor of the West when it was untamed, and the spirit of the men who tamed it, that "Tide of Empire" must be pointed out as Kyne's masterpiece.

Behind his tale of the lawless, perilous existence in the gold camps, of the courage brought by a man to a love always in danger, and of the droll philosophies Mr. Kyne finds in his oddly assorted characters, there is a stirring picture of the birth of our Western Empire. "Tide of Empire," bound because of its author to become a best seller, is more than romance, more than adventure. It is a classic cross-section of one of the most exciting and significant periods in our history.

A Sparkling and Sprightly Biography

CHARLES DICKENS

A BIOGRAPHY FROM NEW SOURCES

by Ralph Straus

THE life that Charles Dickens lived is as fascinating a story as any that Dickens ever wrote. But that story has never before been told in anything like a true perspective, for no one before Straus has done Dickens the honor of telling the whole story of his life without suppressions or apologies.

Ralph Straus was uniquely qualified to write this book. His high standing in the English literary world secured him access to original and hitherto undisclosed sources of Dickens material. As the author of distinguished monographs on English literature, he had a fine equipment for interpreting as well as unearthing the essential facts. But, most of all, because he has the true Dickensian spirit, as his novel "The Unseemly Adventure" proved.

Here is a biography that is brimful of vitality. The sharp contrasts of Dickens's life—poverty and riches, pathos and humor, the overtones of romance and the buzz of scandalous gossip—are thrown in clear relief against the background of the man and his times.

The Amazing Story of Alexander the Great

ALEXANDER

A ROMANTIC BIOGRAPHY

by Konrad Bercovici

IN gathering the material for this unique biography, Konrad Bercovici was unusually fortunate. During his boyhood in Roumania he had been filled with peasant legends of the great Alexander whose Macedonian hordes had trampled his native countryside. To the peasants, all this had happened only yesterday.

Later Mr. Bercovici strolled through Greece, Egypt, Palestine, Turkey, and Persia, listening at alien hearths to the grotesquely varied versions of the conqueror. Mr. Bercovici's scholarship led him to uncovered treasures of Alexandriana. His command of languages—English, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Greek, Roumanian, and Yiddish—and his familiarity with native dialects gave him access to local lore.

Alexander the Great was only twenty-three when he mustered the Macedonian armies, said good-by to his serpent-worshiping mother and shipped across the Hellespont to conquer the world.

Precarious as leadership was, after the first brilliant smashing of the Persian hordes and the orgies of victory, the half-mad genius Alexander held on, while his armies died under his command in the Persian wilderness, to be replaced by hordes of the conquered. When, after ten years of riotous campaigning, Alexander turned toward home—the Emperor Iskander—he received a strange gift from his mother by a startling sort of messenger. . . . History and melodrama are curious bookfellows, but when they meet, as in the story of Alexander, the result is fascinating reading.

No one but Konrad Bercovici could have adequately handled this tumultuous, colorful and exciting story.

HELEN KOUES

On Decorating the House

FROM the vast resources of her editorial position, Miss Koues has chosen a wealth of ideas for making the home more comfortable, cheerful and artistic.

In the Good Housekeeping Studio, with the cooperation of American manufacturers, a room or group—walls, doors, windows, fireplace, etc.—is built, furnished, and finished every month.

With this practical background of experience Miss Koues explains the fundamental principles of getting period effects—Early American, Colonial, Georgian, Early English, Spanish, and Italian—based on the beautiful and authoritative specimens in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

In this same thorough manner the reader is told how to create practical sunrooms, guest rooms, and terraces, colorfully and harmoniously. There are chapters on lighting, on window decoration, draperies, slip-covers, etc., and on closets, specially designed for men's clothes, for shoes, for children's rubbers, etc. Miss Koues has thought of everything that the typical reader will want to know.

Every one of the 300 pages has one or two illustrations based on museum exhibits and Good Housekeeping Studio performances.

A Mystery by Two Celebrated Writers

ENTER SIR JOHN

by Clemence Dane and Helen Simpson

CLEMENCE DANE, brilliant novelist and playwright, and Helen Simpson, author of that charming novel "Cups, Wands and Swords," put on their tantalizing mystery act in broad daylight.

How a girl could be present at a row which ends in murder, without knowing it, puzzles the press. That she seems to think she is guilty, but cannot remember, is too much for the court. The fact that she is professionally an actress, and a lovely one, turns the jury against her. Things look bad for lovely Martella Baring.

Then—enter Sir John—the great Sir John Saumarez. He is handsome, and he knows it. He is a great man, and he knows it. He is one of the most lovable and laughable, and one of the realest characters who ever stepped out of the covers of a novel. His solution of the mystery is brilliant, startling, and gorgeously Sir John-ish.

It is seldom that such fine literary craftsmanship goes into the making of a mystery story. Without sacrificing thrills, Miss Dane and Miss Simpson have added a new charm to the form of the mystery yarn.

One of History's Great Personalities

CHARLES JAMES FOX

GENTLEMAN, GAMBLER, STATESMAN

by John Drinkwater

CHARLES JAMES FOX was the brilliant young member of parliament who hurled stinging darts into the sluggish British government while the nimble American colonists fled from under its squirming bulk to reform in a united stand.

It may come as a shock to find this gentleman—who was "kind to women" and honest in his convictions as a sporting principle—outlandishly bedecked, gambling under the torches until the cause of the American colonists summoned him, the afternoon of the day after, post-haste into parliament for the delivery of a highly technical address.

John Drinkwater's immense capacity for reconstructing in flesh and blood out of forgotten documents lets us live again with the Georgians.

Here is Lord North, who ignores the members of parliament when they shout that he is asleep, but cries out if they break the cadence of their classical quotation. Here is George the Third, a pleasant enough blockhead, whose eight hundred "office memos" to Lord North—all dated to the minute!—leave us marveling that a man could be so industrious about the task of being stupid. And here is the charming Fox, whose brilliance is so interpreted that every reader may profit.

"Charles James Fox" is a colorful fresco of the American Revolution, as London saw it, and a glamorous picture of the times when to be a gentleman, a gambler, and a statesman was a social obligation.

On the Tennessee with Irvin Cobb

ALL ABOARD

A SAGA OF THE ROMANTIC RIVER

by Irvin S. Cobb

IRVIN S. COBB, of Paducah, Kentucky, has written the story of his people. Steamboatmen, traders, Negro rousters, villagers, poor whites, pass in review, charged with life, laughter, and humanity, each contributing his distinctive bit to the leisurely flow of the powerful, full-bodied story.

From the head of navigation at Chattanooga, down into Alabama, back north through Tennessee and Kentucky to the Ohio at Paducah, broad-bottomed steamers shuttled their long way from bank to bank, knitting the most picturesque threads of southern life into a texture of common interests. Now the old life is changing; gasoline and rails are responsible.

"All Aboard" is an American saga, crowded with rich memories of the romantic river and its children. And, because Mr. Cobb is the chronicler, you remember the Tennessee, not only by its fires and floods, its feuds and festivals, but by echoes of deep-toned laughter.

As Durant told the story of Western Philosophy,
Mrs. Beck tells that of the East

The Story of ORIENTAL PHILOSOPHY by L. Adams Beck

SEEKING criticism of "The Story of Oriental Philosophy," the publishers sent the manuscript to Kenneth Saunders, international authority—Haskell Lecturer at the University of Chicago, and visiting professor at Columbia University. This is what Professor Saunders wrote:

"There are nearly one hundred million people in Asia; and the West is still largely ignorant of their civilization and of their present-day life. Mrs. L. Adams Beck has already done notable service in removing this wall of ignorance and has a good claim to the title of bridge-builder between East and West. Her new book is a worthy successor to Will Durant's 'The Story of Philosophy' and should find an eager public. . . . The illustrations drawn from Asiatic works of art enhance the value of a vivid, rich, and readable book."

The information that Mrs. Beck pours out with such apparent ease and simplicity took many years to acquire.

Buddha, Confucius, Lao Tsu, what do these mean, besides glamorous-sounding names, to the average Westerner? In the pages of this book they become living, breathing figures of heroic stature—human beings who lived and loved, strove and suffered, in a world not wholly unlike our own, and at a great price wrested their wisdom from life.

A History by the Great Gypsy Story-Teller

THE STORY OF THE GYPSIES

by Konrad Bercovici

GYPSY lore has an irresistible appeal for the modern man and woman living the life of towns and offices and flivvers. Here at last is the whole piquant and picturesque story of the Gypsies, told by a man who has lived and taken the road with them, and who has been for years the foremost popular writer on the subject—Konrad Bercovici.

"THE STORY OF THE GYPSIES" is an accurate history of the Gypsy people, based on years of first-hand research. Also, it is a gold mine of true stories, fantastic, dramatic, humorous, sad—as varied as the range of a Romany fiddle. Bercovici tells what is known of their origins, traces their picturesque trail across Europe in France, Germany, Spain, Russia, the Balkans, and tells of their heroic battles, their heroes, their festivals, their triumphs over the laws and the soldiery of the humdrum world, their laughing lives and glowing legends.

Gypsy-fashion, Bercovici gives his information in the form of first-hand pictures and stories—he tells how the Tziganes danced and sang while soldiers poured a volley of bullets into their ranks, until the soldiers, awed, laid down their rifles and joined the dance; how Barleaza, king of fiddlers, died rather than humble himself by taking in his hands the gold coin that should have been slipped into his fiddle; how they have fought and loved and gone their singing way through the ages.

S. Fowler Wright's Second Novel

THE ISLAND OF CAPTAIN SPARROW

by S. Fowler Wright

Author of "Deluge"

"A NEW star has risen above the literary horizon—and it looks like being a star of the first magnitude," says the London Daily Mail of S. Fowler Wright, and adds "'The Island of Captain Sparrow' is a wonderful achievement of the imagination.

"This is a story told with quite uncommon force and spirit, in a style which recalls Robert Louis Stevenson. No one who takes it up will put it down; it moves from one terrific incident to another, till the climax is reached. It is even more exciting than the same author's 'Deluge'."

The uncharted island, the shipwrecked sailors, the hostile natives. On this traditional literary ground Mr. Wright takes off. From that point on, everything is new, strange, wonderful. There are flowered cliffs, reeded bogs, and an Elysian jungle where, at a pool, a creature of legend crawls under the bush. There are parklands beyond, tended by prehistoric birds, and a blood-red temple of an isolated civilization.

You, in the person of a prudent voyager cast on this island, find a girl who is as the memory of a first love. You will follow her and her young lover through thrills as giddy as the wildest dreams. From beginning to end of this exciting journey, the way is strewn with scenes of mingled terror, beauty, and romance, for which there is absolutely no parallel in fiction.

Soldier Songs from Yankee Doodle to Parley Voo

"SOUND OFF!"

by Edward Arthur Dolph

Music Arranged by Philip Egner and Illustrations by Lawrence Schick

"SOUND OFF!" contains the great army songs of the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, Indian-fighting days, the Spanish and World Wars. It is complete and authoritative, and even the illustrations are correct to the last button on the uniforms.

It provides about 200 pieces of sheet music that might be piled on top of the piano—200 pieces that you could collect if you had a year or two in which to collect them, lots of patience and lots of luck.

Having made the collection, Lieutenant Dolph has dug up from old historical records and written the story of every song. This makes "Sound Off!" much more than a music library. It is a permanent and voluminous source of entertainment, and a charming background for the appreciation of American history.

Every pianist should have "Sound Off!" So should every theater, armory, American Legion post, fraternal or patriotic society, school, and club; in fact, every piano.

A Boy in the West of Today

COWBOY

by Ross Santee

Illustrations by the Author

"COWBOY" is the spirited story of a care-free boy who rode away from home in Texas to find his heart's content in the cow-hills of Arizona.

Ross Santee, a horse wrangler for ten years, knows the life of the ranch of today, where horses buck as hard, cattle stray as tantalizingly as ever, and the cowboy, with his peculiar code, remains unchanged.

While booted ranchers "play" the coffee-pot before dawn, the horses are driven in and the hard day begins. There are wild horses to break, "loco" horses to contend with, maddened steers to tie down, and lost herds to find, perhaps far into the night.

Throughout these remote ranches are to be found boys, fourteen or fifteen years old, mostly runaways, earning their keep at menial jobs. They have cow-punching in the blood. In a few years they will be cowboys, proud, improvident, working with superhuman zeal for a bare subsistence, simply for the joy of living in the outdoors and feeling that they are as men.

In a simple drawling manner that packs a wallop with every drawl, Ross Santee tells the story of such a boy. It is all as real as a tack on a chair—and as refreshing as a camp-fire breakfast.

An Indian Looks at the World

LONG LANCE

by Chief Buffalo Child Long Lance

A MAN of magnificent appearance came to our editorial offices last year and asked questions on the technique of writing a book. He was not seen around the Cosmopolitan offices again for about a year. Then he returned with a complete manuscript, left it silently, and was gone again.

The next day the manuscript was circulating around the office, page by page, and being avidly read by half a dozen people at once.

The author was Buffalo Child Long Lance, a chief of the Blood Band of Blackfoot Indians. He had written how as a boy he suffered the tortures of training as a warrior and was educated in the teachings of medicine-men and wrinkled old braves. He had told the stories of a babyhood on horseback, of buffalo-hunting, bloody fighting, awesome "medicine," of capturing wild horses, of war and peace, sun dances and happy feasts.

Now a college graduate and an appointee by President Wilson to West Point; a hero of the World War, and a most charming personality, Chief Long Lance turns up as a literary man of a high order. White man and Indian are both indebted to him.

Irvin S. Cobb writes in the Foreword, "I know of no man better fitted than Chief Long Lance to write a true book about the spirit of the American Indian and I know of no book on the subject which better reveals the spirit of Indian youth in the years that are gone and the spirit of the times the like of which will never be seen again."

The Machinery of the Body and the Mind Explained to Children

A WONDERFUL ADVENTURE

by Harold Dearden

DR. DEARDEN'S book will take the place with children that Dr. Richard Cabot's "What Men Live By" occupies for adults. It is first of all a simple and clear answer, which any child can understand, to the questions every child asks about the workings of the body and the mind. How instincts work; how we learn things; how we are like the animals and how we differ from them; what sex signifies; these and scores of other fundamentals that a child must grow up to deal with are honestly and expertly explained.

Most important of all, Dr. Dearden, like Dr. Cabot, recognizes that human beings live by ideas and ideals as well as by head and facts. He presents a moral code of life that is a part of his story, not merely superimposed on it; and the fundamental honesty of a child's mind will respond to the rugged directness of his message.

"A Wonderful Adventure" is an enlightened fact book for children; and the children who will be brought up on it can be counted luckier than their parents.

A Full-Length Novel by W. B. Trites

PATERFAMILIAS

by W. B. Trites

Author of "The Gypsy"

YEARS ago, he was hailed by William Dean Howells as one of the most promising of American writers—and Howells has been proved a prophet.

Church bells are breaking into the warm morning air of a Middle Atlantic factory town when Mr. Trites takes us to dinner at the home of Dr. William R. Stanton. Besides Mrs. Stanton, there is Cora, just out of college, and Jack, just preparing, the married daughter, Julia, and company. Consequently, there is some shifting of chairs in the old-fashioned dining-room. Some day the Stantons will move away from near the railroad tracks into roomier quarters.

William R. is a gentle lion of a man, very much a father and an overworked physician. Collecting fees perplexes him. Hypochondriac patients bore him. Compliments over his bedside manner exasperate him.

Now he is fifty. Unpaid bills harass him. He could earn $5,000 a year if . . . And the family tastes are not unreasonable but always a bit beyond his means. Fifty! And Jack with six years schooling ahead; none of his early plans with any prospect of materializing; and his hold on life a bit weaker, if anything.

"Paterfamilias" has a certain message for every reader who enjoyed "Sorrell and Son" or "Alice Adams." It is the chronide of the unhonored and unsung American father.

THE MAN OF GALILEE

Twelve Scenes from the Life of Christ

and described by Bruce Barton

BRUCE BARTON and Dean Cornwell make a fine collaboration to supply the Cosmopolitan Color Book for 1928. "The Man of Galilee" is decidedly a worthy successor to "The City of the Great King."

On turning the pages of this artistic book, the reader is first struck by the splendor of Dean Cornwell's paintings, luminously reproduced in full color.

Bruce Barton's text is a human, reverent, and altogether beautiful interpretation of the mind and heart of the Man of Galilee at those great dramatic moments when His message and His life were merged into a single fine flame.

Bruce Barton's text and Dean Cornwell's pictures, harmonizing perfectly, blend into a singularly unified and beautiful book.

The Last of the Cavaliers

CUSTER

by Frazier Hunt

NO one knows American history who does not know Custer. And no one will read Frazier Hunt's account of his startling exploits without feeling: "If this is American History, I want to read more of it!" . . .

"Damn it all! We won't stand for such an insult," the old colonels swore to each other when twenty-two-year-old Custer was put in command over them. "Who is this new 'general' we are to have? Did you say he was that Custer brat from Monroe? We'll run him out soon enough! They tell me he has curls. Bah!"

But Custer, with his long blond curls, velvet coat, gold-lace chevrons from elbows to wrists, wide-brimmed hat (a Confederate trophy) navy-blue shirt (with gold stars on the broad collar) and a wide flowing red necktie, was only hinting at the sensations he was going to provide.

A year later, at Gettysburg, "Lucky" Custer, age twenty-three, galloped to the front of his Michigan troops, crying, "Come on, you Wolverines!" and drove back the dauntless Jeb Stuart, saving the Union right.

Then the battle-mad Michiganders bought bolts of red cloth, made flowing ties for themselves and let their hair grow long. At twenty-five, Sheridan made him a major-general and gave him the Third Cavalry Division!

But, by the irony of fame, "Lucky" Custer was to be known, not for his great Civil War victories but for his one defeat twelve years later by a band of Indians at the Little Bighorn—the defeat famous as "Custer's Last Stand."

AMERICA'S PART

by Brig.-Gen. Henry J. Reilly, O. R. C.

IT has taken ten years since the World War for the dust of information and the mirage of false perspective to clear away. From a great mass of first-hand information General Reilly has sifted away propaganda, exaggeration and half-truths and preserved for us the truth about "America's Part."

General Reilly was bred in the traditions of the U. S. Army. His father was the gallant Captain Reilly killed at the gates of Peking during the great Boxer uprising. A West-Pointer, then an officer of the Second Cavalry, he left the army in 1914 to roam the world as a writer and a fighter. With America in the war, he became colonel of the famous 149th U. S. Field Artillery of the Rainbow Division and later commander of the 83rd Infantry Brigade.

In "America's Part" he tells how Pershing had to fight to keep an American Army instead of distributing his men as laborers and replacements. He tells how the British went over Pershing's head to Washington and how Clemenceau complained to Wilson that Pershing could not get along with Petain. He tells what influenced Germany to risk defying the United States. He tells how the knife-blade thrusts of the American Army weakened the Hindenberg line to the breaking point, and how its savage pursuit of advantage took the heart out of the Germans. And with a fine, judicious laying out of data, General Reilly has drawn a clear picture of those days when the history of the world balanced on the timing of a single maneuver.

A New Kind of History

THE STORY OF YOUTH

by Lothrop Stoddard

THIS is the story of how children have lived, in all ages and countries, from the dawn of the world to modern times. There is no other book in existence that covers the territory of "The Story of Youth."

Lothrop Stoddard tells of Neanderthal children of 50,000 years ago and children of the busy 10,000 years just before writing began. He shows children under the discipline of Babylonian schoolmasters chiseling figures in clay; dark little Egyptians eating sour bread; the felicitous Greeks; the straitlaced Romans. Contrasted with the sturdy independence of Viking children, children of the Dark Ages, and the elegant babes of Shakespeare's time, the pathetic story of the Children's Crusade is unfolded in all its wistful splendor. He tells how the Roundheads terrified children, the Cavaliers made them supercilious little prigs, how under the Georgians they were stuffed dummies or wretched slaves, later how there came the horrors of child-labor, the stiff nonsense of Superior Parents, the freedom of pioneer days.

"The Story of Youth" is a book of living tableaux, an outline of history with children for heroes, with centuries for dates, each century with its own unforgetable stamp of individuality, with customs, styles, and manners instead of wars and political intrigue.

Lothrop Stoddard spent a whole year gathering the historical titbits that make his book so rich and varied, and so solidly documented. Consequently it is not only first in its field, and alone, but it will be hard to supersede.

THE INFERNO

From "The Divine Comedy" of Dante Alighieri

Translated by S. FOWLER WRIGHT author of "Deluge," and "The Island of Captain Sparrow"

"One night when half my life behind me lay
I wandered from the straight lost path afar."

WHEN S. Fowler Wright first set down these opening lines of Dante's epic, he was consciously experimenting. Many of the translations of "Inferno" had been so scholarly as to repel the general reader. Mr. Wright had excellent reason to know this, for he had left school at the age of ten and had educated himself.

Mr. Wright knew the extraordinary story half hidden in this academic literature. He was moved by its beauty. He determined to make it available to readers who had no patience for involved or pedantic language.

Mr. Wright extracted the human juices of this, one of the most wonderful stories ever told. In plain words and simple phrases he reproduced the story, so that every man might taste the flavor that exhilarated the fortunate readers of Dante's day.

The erstwhile dusty schoolbook is again a romantic adventure.

THE CANTERBURY TALES

WITH A TRANSLATION INTO MODERN ENGLISH VERSE BY WILLIAM VAN WYCK. DESIGNED BY AND PRINTED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF SAMUEL JACOBS.

It seems strange that a capable and sympathetic modern translation of Chaucer's great epic has never been written. Most people have had neither the time to master the intricacies of middle English, nor the patience and courage to attack the pedantic, dull versions that have been heretofore available. And yet The Canterbury Tales is the most modern, rowdy, and humorous of the classics.

Mr. Van Wyck's translation is scholarly and accurate; that has been done before. But Mr. Van Wyck is also a poet, and a poet with a sense of humour. He has caught all the turbulent movement and pungent wit of Chaucer's style, and transmitted it in language totally devoid of any archaic mannerism or academic taint.

Of course the tales gain immeasurably from the fact that this is a complete and unexpurgated edition; Chaucer has been allowed to retain his favorite short Anglo-Saxon words and all his ribald anecdotes. The new version is charming and unusually faithful to the spirit of Chaucer's original, because, unlike other versions, it has been rendered in rhymed verse. The arrangement of the text makes it possible for the scholar to compare the Chaucerian poems with Mr. Van Wyck's translation, as well as allowing the less erudite reader to gain some idea of the robust and mellow language of middle English. For a very novel and satisfactory method has been used in planning the book. The translation is printed in beautiful large type, and the original is printed in another column of smaller type beside it. Each line of the new version is exactly opposite each line of the Chaucerian version.

The physical appearance of this edition is extremely handsome. The two large folio volumes are printed on all-rag paper and distinctively bound. The entire book has been designed by Samuel Jacobs, and the two-fold character of the work has been most successfully carried out. The format is a departure from the conventional pseudo-medieval style. It is modern, but not insistently novel. The complete simplicity of the designing and arrangement supplies a suitable setting for both texts. The whole book — text, type, and binding — is done with the greatest lack of affectation. An attempt has been made to eliminate everything that is not direct, vigorous and beautiful.

Only 1,500 numbered copies of this edition will be printed.
Two volumes, boxed. Folio, 650 pages, $35.00.

THE CHILDERMASS

by Wyndham Lewis

Mr. Lewis's essay, Time and Western Man, was a great controversial book and created a tremendous stir. The Childermass adds imaginative beauty and apocalyptic grandeur to the intellectual grasp, the magnificent rhetoric and the sardonic humour of Time and Western Man. The Childermass is fiction: a compact and intricate piece of work. The character and extent of the theme and the superb writing complete an incontestable masterpiece. The festival of Childermass-day is the feast of the Holy Innocents massacred by Herod. In Mr. Lewis's book, the Holy Innocents are the souls that, on the other side of death, assemble in the great concentration camps to suffer judgment before being admitted into heaven. "It is here that in shimmering obscurity the emigrant mass is collected within sight of the magnetic city." Two characters emerge from the mist; countless others are woven into the pattern of the story, vivid but elusive figures. An idea of such magnitude has not for long past quickened any modern writer.

Mr. Lewis's position in English letters is undeniable.

"Mr. Lewis is a magician who compels our interest in himself: he is the most fascinating personality of our time."

T. S. Eliot.

"Mr. Wyndham Lewis is one of the very few critics who may be counted upon to provide a bomb which really explodes."

Beverley Nichols.

"Mr. Lewis writes with splendid vigor and has the heart of style in him, since he unmistakably (even violently) conveys exactly what he means . . . Mr. Lewis seems to me, apart from his gift of fiery and convincing expression, to be one of the best natural metaphysicians that England has produced."

Humbert Wolfe in the "Observer."

D'ARTAGNAN

THE SEQUEL TO THE THREE MUSKETEERS

by H. Bedford-Jones and Alexandre Dumas

D'Artagnan rides again! And Athos, Porthos, and Aramis join once more in their immortal vow, "All for one, one for all." Richelieu — sinister and suave — again plots d'Artagnan's ruin; and the pretty Queen, Anne of Austria, languishes, a prisoner, while half the court plans to blight her life by confronting her with the Thounenien will — which purports to prove her the mother of an illegitimate child.

A manuscript of Alexandre Dumas — authenticated beyond any doubt, and the Thounenien will itself, pierced with a sword and covered with bloodstains, are even now in the publishers' possession. They form the framework around which Mr. Bedford-Jones has written this remarkable sequel to The Three Musketeers. The book is Dumas, perfect in its capturing of the feeling and slashing vigor of that master. The action is swift and direct, covering a fortnight of hard riding and hard fighting to save the reputation of a Queen, and best a King and a Cardinal. The few who have never read The Three Musketeers will find d'Artagnan a stirring and romantic experience. And the millions who loved The Three Musketeers and wondered about their lives in the years between their early experiences and those recounted in Twenty Years After, will thrill again at the sound of "All for one, one for all," ringing through these pages, and be glad that d'Artagnan rides again.

PIPE DOWN-SAILOR

by C. W. Whittemore

THIS is a very unusual war novel. The background is the American navy, and the hero is a typical American boy sprung from middle-class surroundings in a small New England town. But the remarkable aspect of this book is the clearness and restraint of the style. The story is thoroughly simple, but far more gripping than the verbose analyses of personal reactions to war, the neurotic and affected pieces of stylism, and the chatty, popular doughboy stories that have made up our war literature to date. There are no wordy descriptions, no gloating horrors, no sentimental nonsense; and in consequence the picture is thoroughly natural and real.

Mr. Whittemore describes the life in the training camps, where a lot of shy, eager boys from a hundred walks of life tried to make friends with each other and at the same time adjust themselves to the alarming routine of the navy; the life on the battleships, ploughing heroically through the North Sea; and the life of the gobs on shore, sympathetic young huskies, faithfully carrying out their own strange conventions in saloons and brothels. There are interludes when the hero goes back to his home and family, on leave; finally becoming engaged to a home-town girl. It is all done so faithfully and understandingly that the whole mentality of these reticent, inarticulate people, sailors and New Englanders, is unburied. There is an impressive fidelity to what actually happens, in the very casualness of Mr. Whittemore's writing. It is as sinewy and unadorned as Hemingway.

THE SET UP

by Joseph Moncure March

AUTHOR OF "THE WILD PARTY"

ONE OF THE reviewers called The Wild Party "a literary bombshell." It was hailed everywhere as an amazingly fine performance. The material, the method, and the form were startlingly new. It was at once oversubscribed. Harry Hansen described it as "the most widely discussed of recent limited editions . . . brimful of vitality . . . it has a rhythm that never hesitates for a moment . . . a vivid, unequaled record."

"Nothing quite like it has ever been done before," the New Yorker declared. "It is news."

Llewellyn Jones said that "those who recognize poetry and can enjoy the triumph of expression, even when the thing expressed is horrible, will recognize in Joseph March a poet who is here to stay."

Conrad Aiken wrote: ". . . the poem is admirable. It goes with a beautiful logic to its inevitable climax; and this Mr. March manages with a stroke of genius."

Mr. March has written another story, using the forceful dramatic form he invented. The principal character is Pansy, a negro fighter, whose color bars him from a chance at the title. The dangerous contender. At the summit of his career, he is sent up for a ten-year term because his private life is not all it should be. He comes back at nearly forty, pathetic, heavier, shorter-winded; but still a wise old fighter, with echoes of his former power. A cheap gyp manager selects Pansy as a set-up in a six-round preliminary at a small arena, for a fighter he is pushing. Pansy is not let in on the frame-up. When he finds it out in the ring, he sees red. With all his nerve and stamina, he puts up a dramatic fight against long odds. Pansy wins. The white man and his gang get him when he comes out after the fight.

PSYCHE

by Pierre Louys

WITH A CONCLUSION AND NOTES BY CLAUDE FARRÉRE
AND THIRTEEN FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS IN COLOR BY MAJESKA

In every book from the tragic, malicious La Femme et le Pantin to the magnificent Psyche, Pierre Louys has always written of love. He has written so beautifully that he has become a part of the classical tradition, a successor to the great poets of antiquity who sang of the sensual passion. Here and there the keen intuitive psychology underlying his pure prose became tangible, but he had never really exposed the delicate mechanism of his emotion, and he had never treated the whole modern complex of love's mental and spiritual side. But in Psyche his fine understanding of the whole anatomy of love is unfolded. Every thought, every emotion, every action of two sensitive and highly civilized lovers is tenderly laid bare. The story is a simple recital of the evolution of a love affair; the approaches, the reticenses, the physical and spiritual climax; the inevitable disillusionment and finally tragedy. Underlying the tale is a study of the struggle between Life — symbolized by the hero's primitive, sensual East-Indian mistress, and a Dream — personified by Psyche, ethereal and passionate.

Louys never published this last masterpiece while he was alive; he shrank from the necessary intimate exposure. It was too frank a revelation of both the physical and spiritual history of his own life. He had almost certainly finished the book; he had even shown the completed manuscript to Claude Farrére, but most of the last part has been lost or destroyed.

The original ending is sketched by Farrére in a conclusion that incorporates a great deal of valuable critical and biographical material.

Mr. Robert S. Josephy has designed a suitably delicate and lovely format for Psyche. This edition is limited to 1250 numbered copies, for subscribers only. Octavo, 238 pages, $12.50 net. There will be a special edition of thirteen copies on Van Gelder hand-made paper, each specially bound in full levant, with an original signed sketch by Majeska.

MARTHE AND THE MADMAN

by Jean de Bosschère

TRANSLATED BY PIERRE LOVING

WITH ILLUSTRATIONS BY THE AUTHOR

A BEAUTIFULLY written study of two introverted personalities. Pierre is a strong, sensitive individualist; his sister, Marthe, is a broken creature; her life spoiled, because her face is disfigured by a hideous hare lip.

No more unfortunate environment for two such abnormal people could be imagined. Their mother is sympathetic but powerless. Their father is a narrow, second-rate scholar, and a petty domestic tyrant. Their family are the only Jews in a devoutly Catholic Flemish town.

The town itself is lovely, and described in glamorous pictorial prose. Twisted, medieval streets leading into a fair and smiling country-side. But the charming elderly village is inhabited by a cruel, stupid, fourteenth-century bourgeoisie living in the present day. Their heartless persecution drives Marthe away from school, and she finally takes refuge in a mysterious sickness. Pierre becomes savage and truculent, partly as a personal reaction, partly out of rage and pity over Marthe. Then a strange symbolic idyll develops in his life, and a friendship with an odd person, and the story picks its tortuous way through murder and incest, to its logical conclusion.

M. de Bosschère's style is deft and intricate, with wide contrasts of subtlety and brutality. The theme is extremely powerful, and it is treated with an effect of delicate inlay over steel.

The book is illustrated in the only wholly satisfactory way; as Vanity Fair, for instance, was illustrated; by its own talented author. There is no need to speak of M. de Bosschère's position as an artist.

12 mo., 336 pages, $3.00 There will also be a limited edition of 275 copies, printed on all rag paper, each copy with a frontispiece in color, signed by the author, at $15.00.

UNDER THE YEW

OR THE GAMBLER TRANSFORMED

by Robert Nichols

Under the Yew is a small masterpiece; a perfect thing of its kind. The style, the language, the story, and the characters are flawless evocations of the eighteenth century. It is written, supposedly, by a gentleman who had been a Roisterer and a Gay Blade in his time. It is the tale of how he was ruined, broken, reformed, and completely chastened as the result of a certain Experience that ensued after a desperate and drunken gambling party. The drinking and play, which lasted for two days and two nights, is described magnificently in the most polished, witty, and exquisite language. It was a grandiloquent and fatal affair, culminating in a string of murders and suicides and failures. Hard, reckless men gambled for heaps of carelessly-flung guineas in a setting of decadent brilliance: dripping candelabra, superb viands, sherry-colored velvet, and hot brandy-punch. Then follows the fatal occurrence under the yew, a poignant and eloquent passage. The book ends as it began, with an excellent moral precept.

It is hard to describe how subtly the setting is rendered, with no shoddy tricks or mannerisms; how beautifully the rich style is brocaded. Very often the underlying thought is remarkably modern, but it is always perfectly blended into the mellow fabric. The novel is very short, but characterized by an impeccable synthesis and cohesion.

It is exciting, well written, witty, and profound.

THE CRIME OF DR. GARINE

by Boris Sokoloff

WITH AN INTRODUCTION BY THEODORE DREISER

ILLUSTRATED WITH WOODCUTS BY ROGER VAN GINDERTAEL

Doctor Boris Sokoloff is well known in American scientific circles. He is a professor at the University of Prague and an authority on the endocrine glands and cancer. For many years he has been writing fiction, carrying on this interest simultaneously with his other work. His books have been published in several European countries. The eminent French critic, André Salmon, has said of Sokoloff: "He has developed a wholly new and fruitful combination; a literary talent, based on scientific knowledge. He has not only the ability to see life as it is, but the ability to present it to his readers. The novelists of tomorrow will be obliged to follow the road indicated by Sokoloff."

These stories are realistic in the pure sense of the word. They are based on actuality, for Sokoloff took part in their etraordinary drama in the adventurous days when the new Russia was forming. The tales are quite different from those of the other Russians, yet they are completely Russian in spirit. There is the same absorption in spiritual values that we have come to expect from the Slavs, but the problems are interpreted by a modern scientific mind. The vague intuitive method is superseded by a direct, incisive treatment.

Although there is a certain brutality throughout, and although many of the characters are distinctly pathological, the handling of the elements of horror is quiet and restrained. Underneath the restless movement of the plot, deep human tragedies slowly and relentlessly unfold. The stories furnish a remarkable combination of action and profound psychology.

THE PASSION OF YANG KWEI-FEI

by George Soulié de Morant

RENDERED INTO ENGLISH BY H. BEDFORD-JONES

In the heritage of every race there is a love-epic, some poignant, legendary tale: Tristan and Iseult, Romeo and Juliet, Deirdre. The touching tale of Yang Kwei-fei and her imperial lover, Ming Huang, is the great love-story of China.

It is historical in every feature, for both the hero and the heroine were talented and celebrated poets; and Li Po and Tu Fu, the most famous singers of the Flowery Kingdom, were the chief ornaments of their court. So every incident of their happiness, adventures, and suffering has been transmitted to us in the frail, precious lyrics of the two lovers and their immortal contemporaries. Perhaps because the subject matter was so well known, the Chinese writers have never collected the parts of the story into one coherent entity. It has survived in lyric plays, authentic memoirs, and dynastic verse of the period, and in fragments chanted by blind musicians on the terraces of moonlit tea-houses. M. de Morant has collected each incident and reconstructed the undying romance.

The lovers lived in blissful contentment at their polished, decadent court. But, just as in the days of that other court at Versailles, the city was filled with restless, starving hordes. The crisis was precipitated by the treachery of a deceptively naive barbarian captain, and the Emperor and his fragile concubine were driven from their delicate paradise. The frail favorite strangled herself rather than face death at the hands of the infuriated soldiery. The inconsolable Ming-Huang soon joined her spirit.

This authentic romance of eighth-century China is told in a pattern of haunting, formal poetry and exquisite, musical prose. Mr. Bedford-Jones and M. de Morant have collaborated in making a beautiful and moving thing.

COLLECTED POEMS OF RICHARD ALDINGTON

Mr. Aldington has been variously regarded as a reactionary classicist and a rabid modernist. He is steeped in the literature of antiquity, and his mind has far more in common with the nostalgia and love of beauty of the pagan and the exile than with the hard modern mind. But he found himself hampered when using the time-worn forms, so he found a mould of his own, a direct and simple vers libre.

It was this form that frightened the die-hards, although Mr. Aldington has been singularly successful in working it out. The London Post calls him "Impeccable in craftsmanship, even in causing his craft to hide all its craftiness." Paul Rosenfeld says that "all his poems please by a gem-like cutting. Laxness of line is foreign to this English man of letters. His workmanship is clean and scrupulous, his materials clear and cool . . . adjectives come singly; images stand distinct; the world is caught in action."

But Aldington's genius embraces a far wider scope than is afforded merely by flawless vers libre on Greek subjects.

Included in this first collected edition of his poems is the exquisite love poem, Myrrhine and Konallis, and the Fool i' the Forest, a long poem that may some day be considered equal to T. S. Eliot's Wasteland.

Then there is the group of war-poems. Joseph Auslander said: "Those of us who have followed the work of Richard Aldington from his first arousing Images through the mordantly brilliant Images of War and the starved tenacities of War and Love will find in his latest volume an increasing compression and a deeper range. Reading Exile for what it is in itself, as poetry, we are more and more amazed at the subtle acidity of the needle and the latitude of the arc it describes. A poem like Eumenides, for example, takes precedence as a protest against war over Sassoon and Sandburg."

THE GHOST EPIGRAMS OF OSCAR WILDE

AS TAKEN DOWN THROUGH AUTOMATIC WRITING BY LAZAR

THERE IS some doubt about the mysterious "Lazar's" standing with the Society for Psychical Research. His brand of spicy, frivolous cynicism has never been a notable characteristic of the earnest elderly ladies of various ages who are the usual addicts of automatic writing. Mr. Wilde, of varying repute, was gifted, however, with a strikingly similar turn of wit.

The nineties have been the victims of much violence. A violent contemporary opposition, extending from blowsy middle-class diatribes to delicious light-opera parodies, swamped the violent languor of the heavy-lidded devotees of the cult. There was a period of apathy, then a return of violent interest in all the phenomena of the nineties from Max Beerbohm to tandem bicycles. But through all these vicissitudes it has remained a fact that Oscar Wilde was the creator of the wittiest aphorisms that have ever sent a ripple around a drawing-room. One may decry the artificiality back of the fin-de-siecle cleverness, one may shudder at its sophistication, but one smiles — a little knowingly.

After all, it is cruelly true that "Vulgarity is the rich man's contribution to democracy." That "Generations are needed to make a gentleman; mere circumstances make a lady." That "He who can bear poverty without shame deserves it." That "Woman begins by resisting man's advances and ends by blocking his retreat." And "With a little practice any woman can remain thirty years old."

This amusing collection of witticisms has been made into a very beautiful book. The typography has been designed by Samuel A. Jacobs; a special imported paper has been used; and the binding is unusually rich and handsome.

The edition is limited to 850 numbered copies. Octavo, 36 pages, $3.00 net. One hundred copies will be printed on hand-made paper, signed and specially bound, at $5.00

VENUS CASTINA

FAMOUS FEMALE IMPERSONATORS FROM ACHILLES TO THE PRINCE OF WALES

by C. J. Buliett

ILLUSTRATED BY ALEXANDER KING

A CLEVER BOOK on an amusing and stimulating subject; a subject which lends itself to hilarious comment and ribald anecdote, and is suited to grave psychological discussions with much bandying of great Graeco-Latin words. In the case of Hercules, it is permissible to hold almost any theory as to why that large strapping personage should choose to don petticoats and take up housework. The procession of gentlemen with novel ideas concerning appropriate masculine wardrobes moves up the centuries. The cases become a good deal clearer and more circumstantial, there are some of the most delectable stories imaginable, but the psychology still remains eminently controversial. Mr. Buliett does not entirely commit himself; he makes ingenious speculations. His voluminous erudition and his flair for picturesque anecdotes supplies a complete background for a discussion of the foibles of men and heroes in female dress. The roster is amazing — degenerate emperors and noted warriors; gentle priests and renowned men of letters — not to speak of a few gods and demi-gods. The situations range from the psychopathically tragic to the hilariously delicate. There is material for the historian, the psychoanalyst, and the innocent bystander who loves a good joke.

Mr. Buliett has turned a work of wide scholarship into a collection of extremely interesting tales and short biographical studies. The genuine value of the documentation is neatly disguised beneath a veneer of wit and narrative. The illustrations are sly, good-naturedly satirical, and delightfully fantastic. Mr. King makes his bow in lighter vein.

The edition is limited to 960 numbered copies, designed by Robert S. Josephy. Large octavo, illustrated, 320 pages, $15.00.

THOMAS LOVELL BEDDOES

ECCENTRIC AND POET

by Royal H. Snow

THE NEGLECT that Beddoes has suffered is as incomprehensible and exasperating as the protracted disrepute of Blake. Beddoes is certainly no soothing, pretty verse-maker for the masses; he is violent, morbid, and fragmentary; but the discriminating, critical readers who would be able to appreciate his weird ratiocination and powerful poetry still seem to be unaware of him. Professor Snow's beautifully balanced book is an excellent introduction to Beddoes. The biographical material is complete; it is a fair and illuminating critical study; and it is strewn with excerpts and quotations from the poet's own writings. The value to the student and scholar of this erudite and lucid thesis is obvious. But Beddoes was such a paradoxical and brilliant person, his life and writing so peculiar and interesting, and Professor Snow's interpretation so clear that anyone with a taste for striking and dramatic verse, or an interest in a strange mordant personality should make the acquaintance of this book.

It will probably amaze most people to find poems worthy of Poe at his best, and dramatic passages comparable to the finest Marlowe and Shakespeare have written, in the work of this slighted Vcitorian neurotic. Beddoes is, however, far more Elizabethan than nineteenth century in feeling, and as dark and tortured as Poe.

He was greatly admired by such critical giants as Bryan Waller Proctor, Walter Savage Landor, Browning, Tennyson, and Edmund Gosse. Edmund Gosse edited his poetry with an introduction and notes. Beddoes himself was one of the first people to appreciate Shelley, and arranged for the publication of the latter's posthumous works.

MURDER

by Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

Don't you really feel that you have the makings of a great detective in you? You ought to be psycho-analyzed if you don't. Didn't you have your own opinion about the Hall-Mills murder? Ten to one Landry, the French bluebeard, would have found his career abruptly terminated long before his list of lady-loves reached 3 (?) figures had you been in charge.

Just try some of these problems and see how good you really are. How did the robber get into Blotz and Blotz's impregnable offices? How in the world did Slippery Sadie, the forger, destroy the bank notes that would have convicted her, when she was locked in a cell with no matches and no place to hide the evidence.

Maybe we can't fool you but we can give you quite a tussle.

Here are thirty-six tabloid crimes; everything from blackmail to murder. The clues are all there; it's up to you to find the solution. Cudgel your brains for a while, then fill out the stamped post-card enclosed in each copy of Murder and send it to us and we will mail you the answers free of charge. How many times can you say "Hooray! I knew that was the way he did it." How many times will you be forced to moan "Now, why didn't I think of that?"

You can have all the excitement of plotting against hardened criminals without incurring the slightest risk of having the rest of the gang get you. You can languish on a bed of pain and pit your cunning against the sly wits of desperate thugs and cold-blooded murderers.

Can you put an end to this crime wave?

Who murdered the composer? How did the Turkish fiend get rid of his wives? When was the bank president stabbed?

REMY DE GOURMONT

SELECTIONS FROM ALL HIS WORKS, CHOSEN AND TRANSLATED

by Richard Aldington

T. S. Eliot has called de Gourmont "the artistic conscience of a generation." He was a novelist, a philosopher, and an essayist, and the best of his extensive writing has been incorporated in this anthology. "This book," Mr. Aldington says, "contains the essence of thirty volumes and a life-work of intense thought." The thread of de Gourmont's varied genius is carried through from his earliest ventures to the thirty-six letters to Aldington which expose the author in the twilight of his career. The most significant portions of Sixtine, Literary Promenades, The Book of Masks, and Philosophical Excursions are included.

Gourmont's position in French letters is undisputable. Mr. Aldington remarks in his keenly critical and appreciative prefatory note: "He was perhaps the most erudite non-specialist of his age . . . As a novelist, I think him certainly inferior to Flaubert, but I put him with Huysmans and France. As a philosopher and essayist, I hold him inferior to Nietzsche and considerably above Maeterlinck." Mr. Aldington's knowledge of French literature and language, and his position as an eminent critic and poet make the book doubly valuable.

There are photographs and drawings by de Gourmont's friend André Rouveyre, and facsimile poems and letters.

ADVERTISING LAYOUT

by Frank H. Young

"NOT SO MANY years ago, an advertisement that contained a picture of the merchandise, together with description and price, no matter how inartistically presented, was considered to have fulfilled its mission."

Now a huge independent profession has developed: experts in the art of advertising. Incredible sums of money are spent, the best artists contribute drawings and paintings, and a world of thought is expended in making the copy brief, dramatic, entertaining and vivid. Very often the advertisements in a magazine are more amusing and beautiful than the actual contents.

How is it all worked out? Why do we look at one ad more than at another? What is there to it, besides a slogan and a pretty picture? Who has the good taste to combine aesthetics tellingly with selling and merchandising? The answer is — the Layout Man. The technique of this versatile personage is given in detail in a succinct, fascinating, well-ordered treatise. It should be in the hands of every agency; in fact, every business man who advertises should own a copy. It is a mine of useful information, valuable references and examples. The principles are clearly defined, in a scientific and readable manner.

The volume is a handsome, sturdy large quarto, with nearly a hundred excellent reproductions in black and white and full color. It is a good-looking and invaluable adjunct to any business office.

THE SWEET SINGER OF MICHIGAN

Poems by Mrs. Julia Moore

WITH AN INTRODUCTION AND EDITED BY WALTER BLAIR

MRS. JULIA MOORE was a lady who flourished in the eighteen-seventies. She combined genteel farming with the writing of epitaphs and other laudable verse. "The Sweet Singer" was one of Mark Twain's admirations. Bill Nye succumbed to her charm and wrote a hilarious review. Eugene Fields and Bert Leston Taylor used to regale their readers with selections from Mrs. Moore's unconsciously diverting effusions. "The Sweet Singer" lends herself admirably, too admirably — to quotation. ". . . each page is a coal of fire on the altar of poesy," said the Danbury News ambiguously.

The New York World admitted: "We know of nothing like this in ancient or modern literature . . . and upon the whole, we are not sorry." Frank Sullivan devoted his column to it one day. We can only quote his ardent advice: "It's great. Don't miss it if you can."

APPLES AND MADONNAS by C. J. Bulliet

The Explanation of Mr. Bulliet's enigmatic title, and the gist of his argument is that: "An apple by Paul Cezanne is of far more consequence artistically than the head of a Madonna by Raphael."

It is the basis of a glorious argument. The Chicago Daily Tribune said: "If you like modern art you must read Apples and Madonnas. If you don't like modern art you should, in all fairness to yourself and modern art, read it anyhow."

As for the way it is done, the New York Times said: ". . . reads like a novel. It keeps the reader's mind racing . . . to put the book down is certainly not easy . . . delightfully aphoristic style . . . whole panorama of modern art is dramatized with insight and directness . . . comprehensive in its plan, and achieving significance by never taking anything for granted."

DIE SCHÖNSTE LENGEVITCH

by K. M. S.

GEMIXTE PICKLES

by K. M. S.

ANY READER of these books would have to fulfill two requirements; he would have to have a sense of humor and a little smattering of German. Once he had passed these grilling tests, he would certainly join Harry Hansen in saying: "I got more humor and fun out of this book than anything I have ever read."

It certainly is a pretty universal sentiment. The New York Evening Post, which does not easily get its dignity upset, breaks right down and says that it is "One of the funniest books I have read in recent years." And there is a guffaw from way out in the corn-belt: "Not since Mark Twain . . .," says the Minneapolis Daily Star, "have we come across a humorous writer who could tickle our funny bone like K. M. S." Even in the war-sector they have time to read these two hilarious books, and the Chicago Evening Post submits that it is "Some of the funniest verse in any language."

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

by Rebecca McCann

YOU MUST meet the Cheerful Cherub. His pungent bits of philosophy make your most difficult problems simple to solve. He writes about almost every subject that could possibly come up: camels, millionaires and jam, monkeys, golf, and pickles.

"Miss McCann's book consists of over two hundred four-line verses that she has also illustrated and that take up all kinds of every-day, timely, timeless subjects. These she has handled with consummate understanding of human nature, its foibles, charms, weaknesses, insincerities, beauties . . . The Cheerful Cherub is frequently possessed of a gay profundity. It would make an ideal gift for an ill friend, a well friend, a travelling friend, or just a friend. And it is a book to own, too."

New York Sun.

"The Cheerful Cherub is a real poet and a real human being, and also one of the most mirth-provoking humorists we have met in many a day."

LLEWELLYN JONES in the Chicago Post.

THE INNS OF GREECE AND ROME

by W. C. Firebaugh

THE FIRST edition of this lively and learned book was limited, and was soon exhausted. The London Literary Times found it "Grimly interesting; . . . shows us the decay of paganism in active progress . . . His innkeepers are all pimps and pandars, delators and spies; they are guilty of adulterating the food they provide, and of watering the wine they serve . . . they frequently rob and sometimes murder their patrons . . ." And Mr. Firebaugh was not drawing on his imagination. The modern night-clubs and speak-easies have contributed nothing novel to the art of fleecing the hungry traveller. For, "The volume gives one an amazing view, all taken from original sources, of life in early times. The book itself is gorgeous." This was the opinion of the Boston Evening Transcript.

The Chicago Evening Post called it "a brilliant and fascinating work."

DIVERSEY

Chicago—realm of millionaire bootleggers, bombed attorneys and gang-controlled public offices—is the scene of this novel by a newspaperman who knows his city.

It is the story of Marry Javlyn, an emotional boy from a small town paper, who enters a north side rooming house and becomes entangled in the booze feuds. Marry's selfish and devastating love for a slum girl, Josephine Ruska; his worship for J. R. P., the great columnist; and his reaction to the deadly cross-currents around him are all graphically portrayed.

If you know Chicago, you cannot fail to recognize the lure of DIVERSEY. If you do not know Chicago, here is the true story of its machine guns and cafeterias, its artists and gin-dazed women, its county building where the word of gangsters has been gospel, and its lethal mutter. The author calls it the story of Chicago's "little devil folk." It is apt to keep you up reading all night.

Mr. Kantor is a native Iowan who came to Chicago ten years ago. His name is familiar to the middle west through his contributions of verse to many newspapers and magazines. Since coming to Chicago he has been employed by one of the daily newspapers, and this first novel is to be followed soon by another story of the Chicago he has learned to know in the past decade.

THIS WAY OUT

Into an Eden more beautiful than the poets have imagined, Mr. Littell gravely makes his way. Somewhere is the tree. Adam is naming the beasts and the birds; restless Eve is whirling hither and thither on the backs of the birds and the beasts. Jovah, and the Fallen Angels, tempt, tease, and comfort our first parents.

Around one of the oldest of legends, Mr. Littell has made a novel that is not mere romance, nor satire, but a moving ironical tale of the human predicament. The book is written in rich allusive language; kings' and poets' English closewoven with American vernacular. Apollyon, the parrot, Beelzebub, the Stork, and Lucifer himself, are characters Mark Twain would have delighted to create, and that Milton would have respected.

No American has written more wittily of religion and of sex, nor told so captivating a story.

Mr. Littell, a descendant of the founder of "LITTELL'S LIVING AGE," has been connected with a number of newspapers in various parts of this country and was for nine years an associate editor of THE NEW REPUBLIC. He is a contributor to various American and English periodicals and author of BOOKS and THINGS.

As the Great War roars about us, we listen to their casual talk. They are eloquent, sometimes vulgar, sometimes very funny. They are never heroic. No one could call them remarkable men but out of their lives is made a really remarkable novel. Pitiful, beautiful, unforgettable, here is an important record of how, ten years ago, unimportant men lived and died.

THE SEARCH RELENTLESS

A widely known writer of juvenile books and magazine articles, and a recognized historian, relates a story of her own Canadian woods. This is a new type of "mounted police" fiction, an adult novel written with adult appreciation and knowledge of the country, people, beauty and harshness united in the outlands of civilization.

Miss Skinner combines the objectivity of the active school of fiction with the insight of the psychologist and the poet. THE SEARCH RELENTLESS drew a host of favorable comment from the English press.

"The spiritual forces involved with the physical in a story at once symbolic and sensational."—The London Morning Post.

"Miss Skinner has taken a tale which is the peculiar property of the red-blooded school of fiction and adapted it to her own very different purpose. And it is surprising that she is most successful in that part of the story which seems to have been most unalterably settled by custom—an intimate, a revealing document."—The London Times.

Miss Skinner was born in an abandoned mining camp in northwestern British Columbia of the second generation of pioneers. Her childhood was filled with first hand accounts of the daring adventures of her parents and grandparents in facing the rugged life of the wilderness. Her first writing was done for Canadian newspapers to which she became a contributor at the age of thirteen. And, when after some newspaper adventures in the United States she began writing books, she drew inevitably upon the dramatic life that she had known in the Canadian West. Later she turned her attention to our own frontier history and produced her famous PIONEERS OF THE OLD SOUTHWEST, and ADVENTURERS IN OREGON, which were published by The Yale University Press in their CHRONICLES OF AMERICA series.

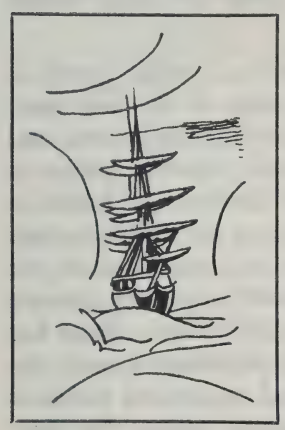
THE SPLENDID RENEGADE

Nameless ships of mysterious callings, slavers and smugglers of the treacherous Solway, pirates and privateers of the Caribbean, proud, picturesque old Carolina, militant New England, the hectic solons of pre-Revolutionary Paris, the frigate-guarded ports of Old England—against that colorful background the Scottish author of THE SPLENDID RENEGADE has painted an unforgettable picture of America's greatest sea-fighter, John Paul Jones.

Never has America's Bayard been so confidently portrayed. His amazing career is skillfully woven into the vivid pattern of American Revolutionary history, and a stirring contribution to American historical literature is the result. A sweeping and powerful story of the sea that will quicken the pulses of those who honor a dauntless spirit.



John Herries McCulloch was led to write of the great sea fighter because his own boyhood was spent in that romantic corner of southwest Scotland that is washed by the tiderips of the Solway Firth where John Paul learned to sail his first ship. As a boy Mr. McCulloch played about the white-washed cottage where John Paul was born, and explored the fearsome caves associated with his name. In early manhood, the author emigrated to Canada and his writings have for the most part been laid in that scene, the best known being, perhaps, THE MEN OF KILDONAN. He has always had a flair for writing on sea subjects and this, combined with his intimate knowledge of the Scottish background of John Paul, gave him double interest in portraying the thrilling life of the Revolutionary naval captain.

NOTHING IS SACRED

The most dramatic moment in the lifetime of a family is taken as the core of this story which reveals, with startling authenticity the individuals of that family, each so different from the other yet bound inevitably by relationship.

In form and style of writing, the book is something new and something that is a distinct achievement in English prose—or rather American prose. The actual story is straightforward, told without resorting to a single trick of emotion, without relying on background or any decorative afterthought. The talk is a marvelous transcript of the touching, half articulate American vernacular. Things happen, the people live, made known by an intimate revelation of character rather than descriptive detail. This compact lean prose captures completely the reality of human experience and makes the lives of these people become extraordinary.

Miss Herbst is already well known to a select group of modern writers as the author of some of the best short stories of our time. This is her first published novel, and it will introduce to the discriminating reading public of America one who is undoubtedly destined to make an indelible impression upon the literature of this generation. Miss Herbst began writing under an assumed name for the old Smart Set, and later her work appeared, bearing her own name, in other literary publications. Since her return to America, after three years' residence abroad, she has contributed several distinguished stories and essays to THE AMERICAN MERCURY, one of which, called "Dry Sunday in Connecticut" was widely reprinted. One of Miss Herbst's stories will appear in this year's AMERICAN CARAVAN.

OUR PREHISTORIC ANCESTORS

The story of man in his struggle for what we call civilization is here related for the layman by a scientist who is an authority on this subject.

With the aid of beautiful illustrations, the author traces the early history of man from the hunting stage of the Old Stone Age through the New Stone Age—that great age of fundamental inventions—through the Age of Bronze, when man learned to smelt copper and tin and when warfare and trade first became important, and into the Age of Iron which ushers in our modern civilization. Professor Cleland describes the earliest evidence of man's belief in a future life and shows how religions grew and became more and more definite from age to age. He discusses the development, raison d'être, and disappearance of the great art of the Hunter Artists of the Old Stone Age, the paucity of art in the Neolithic, the gradual development of art from the introduction of metals through the time when the conquering Kelts overran Europe.

It is an interesting and accurate story of the habits and customs of our common forefathers and gives a vivid picture of man's long, slow, painful progress toward our present era.

Professor Cleland, who is a member of the Geology Department of Williams College, is well known for his volume PHYSICAL AND HISTORICAL GEOLOGY which is a standard textbook on this subject. He is also the author of PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF GEOLOGY, and has been a frequent contributor to a number of leading periodicals in his field.

Profusely illustrated in black and white, and color.

HOME LIFE IN HISTORY

What home was like to the early Britons, Celts, Danes, Saxons and Normans who gradually blended to produce the present English nation, is here described after a careful study of historical records and documents.

The authors tell of the everyday activities of the ordinary people of England at various periods from pre-Roman to modern times. They give you a glimpse of the intimate family life of these men and women—what they ate; how they behaved; what they thought and what they talked about.

Not only is the book extremely entertaining, but it is a valuable reference book full of surprising and interesting bits of information which should be of great use to students and historians.

FRANCOIS VILLON: A Documented Survey.

Hilaire Belloc says, "I am putting these few words introductory to a work of great scholarship and research wherein the author has discovered all that Villon was, within and without. . . . Villon, as it seems to me, attained at once the very high place he took, has increased in the scale of European letters, stands higher now even than he did in the height of the Romantic movement, and will in the future (if we retain our culture—which is a big 'If') appear as one of the very few unquestioned permanent summits in Western letters, through the quality of hardness. . . .

Cy comence le grant codicille et te ſtamẽt maiſtre francois Villon

"Now apart from all this, Villon is also the ending of the Middle Ages. The verse is the living voice of a man speaking right out of fifteenth-century Paris, as though you heard the fascination of the historical, of the picture from the past, I should make this Preface much too long—with kennels and gables, spires, black icy water, Paris under a snowy winter of Louis XI.

Mr. Lewis is a correspondent for the LONDON DAILY MAIL. He lives outside Paris and for the past few years has been working on his life of Villon. To an exceptional scholarship he adds a virility and imagination which is too often lacking in men of his learning.

THE FOURTH MUSKETEER: A Life of Alexander Dumas

This entertaining life of Alexander Dumas the Elder, author of "The Three Musketeers," "The Count of Monte Cristo," "The Queen's Necklace," and countless other exciting best-sellers of the past ninety years, is one of the popular series of brief and gay flights into biography by the French, known as The Lives of Illustrious Men. Among them are Maurois' "Disraeli"; "Goethe" by Jean-Marie Carre; and "Liszt" by Guy de Pourtales.

Dumas' life is so mad, so grotesque in itself, that the biographer has no difficulty in finding theatrical incidents, humorous anecdotes, and brilliantly colored adventures to adorn his tale. A career that included, in its joyous energy, triumphs in the theatre, in novel-writing, in an alliance with Garibaldi in Sicily and Naples, and innumerable gallant adventures with the ladies might become merely hilarious were it not for the happy devotion to his work that marked this eternal child.

M. Dubreton is the author of many works, among which his delightful LA PETITE VIE DE SAMUEL PEPYS should be read by all lovers of that incomparable diaryist. M. Dubreton is a student of 17th and 18th century literary and political England and his next work will undoubtedly be placed in that historical setting.

THE ANGEL THAT TROUBLED THE WATERS And Other Plays

Limited Edition with decorations and end papers. Numbered and signed by the author. $12.00 net

Not a novel; not a drama, but a notebook of dramatic moments. Three minute plays, the author of THE BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY and THE CABALA is pleased to call them. Written, the first in 1916, when Mr. Wilder was still in college and the last in 1928, they should prove of exceptional interest as showing the development of a talent which has astonished the critical world. They possess that elusive quality which separates the master of prose from the competent workman. The feeling for the inevitable word is here; the delicate and mystic imagination strained through the medium of a sensitive and assured pen.

Mr. Wilder, the son of a well known missionary and newspaper editor, was educated at Oberlin College and Yale University. After spending some years abroad he returned to this country. He followed a year at the Graduate School of Princeton by teaching at Lawrenceville School. His first novel THE CABALA received high critical praise and with the publication of THE BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY the author found himself the most discussed figure in the English writing world.

VENUS INVISIBLE And Other Poems

The precocious youngster who at the age of nine startled the literary world by her confession of love for the Janitor's Boy, is still expressing herself in delightful verse.

This time it is the scrublady's daughter who supplies the inspiration for the title poem of her new book VENUS INVISIBLE. This descendant of "that first curious laundress who scrubbed the clothes of Eve," stood admiring herself in the mirror and was observed by the youthful bard. In fact nothing is safe from the watchful eye of this young poetess, not even the dust on her mother's parlor table, which is made the subject of an eight line ode.

There is one long poem in this new volume which tells the story of a princess of Palmyra, the king her father, and magicians, slave girls, and a sumptuous Eastern court. Also included in this collection are her prize-winning poems, "Wings of Lead," on Lindberghs' flight, and "The End of Juliet," which won the prize of the American Shakespeare Foundation.

This is the fifth volume of poetry put out by this child prodigy who is still a school girl and whose aim in life, she says, is "to remember that once we had waterfalls and glistening jungles just beyond our doorstep." Nathalia Crane's previous books are: THE JANITOR'S BOY AND OTHER POEMS; LAVA LANE; THE SUNKEN GARDEN; THE SINGING CROW.

THE LOST SAIL

To the many admirers of Alfred Kreymborg's famous autobiography, TROUBADOUR, the news that he has recently written a diary in sonnet form will prove most welcome. During a summer sojourn on Cape Cod, in the midst of old haunts, the poet set down in a kind of day book, the mellow impressions, recollections and reveries of a full grown American. Inside the traditional frame of the sonnet, Mr. Kreymborg has once more given evidence of the persistent development of his nature along original lines. In THE LOST SAIL, he has shaped a classical setting round the many facets of his warm personality. It is this love of life and faith in the human race which characterizes the whole of his work, old or new, that has earned for him the unique position he holds among his contemporaries.

We have arranged to bring out from time to time the collected poems of Alfred Kreymborg in uniform volumes. In the heyday of the American renascence in poetry, he was an active pioneer of the free verse movement, and, in 1916, issued the first of his challenging books: MUSHROOMS. These delightful poems were hailed throughout the country as a fresh and racy contribution to American literature, heartily original in matter and manner. Out of print for some years and in constant demand by collectors, MUSHROOMS is now made available for Mr. Kreymborg's steadily growing public in a carefully revised edition.

BLOOD OF THINGS includes a hundred and fifty poems on many diverse themes. As in all his work, this poet has something new to say, whatever the subject, and his angle of approach is always individual.

LESS LONELY, in addition to free verse, contains classical sonnets, rhymed lyrics and blank verse. Like all of this writer's work, these poems have served to establish Mr. Kreymborg among the foremost artists of America, and they are now brought out in a new edition to meet the constant demand for his collected works.

LAMENTATIONS: Four Folk-Plays of the American Jew

In the notable succession of novels of Jewish life, in which the intellectual spokesmen of a generation of assimilated American Jews are vainly trying to recapture something which they call their Judaism, this book is an arresting phenomenon.

Here, for the first time, is the Jew himself—not a sentimentalized interpretation of him, seen through nostalgic minds clouded by conflicts alien to the real Jew; not novelized essays on Assimilation, Zionism, Judaism, The Mission of Israel, etc.,—but plain every-day Jews, far too profoundly Jewish to be conscious of it; Jewish peasants of the Greater East Side, living and dying, loving and hating, in a circumscribed universe of their own, whose inhabitants are as little aware of the "Jewish Problem" as the peasants of Synge's folk plays are of the "Irish Problem." Here are Jews speaking for themselves, without prompting—sometimes brutally, sometimes beautifully, in a series of folk plays, in which a poet has magically transmuted the bold unabashed rhetoric and rhythmic garrulity of Yiddish into English, to enrich our multi-colored new literature.

Mr. Brody has for several years been a contributor to a wide range of magazines including THE DIAL, MCCALL'S, THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, THE AMERICAN MERCURY, THE NATION, HEARST'S, EVERYBODY'S, and THE OUTLOOK. He is the author of A FAMILY ALBUM, and was a contributor to the first edition of THE AMERICAN CARAVAN.

UNDERSTANDING INDIA

The daughter of an American Army officer, whose childhood on a frontier army post started her out in life with an adventurous spirit, has crowned several years' study of India's history and customs by an amazing journey to parts of India unfrequented even by the British. She travelled alone, seldom employing servants. She visited Indian families, stopped in native hotels, making her observations without bias and without sentimentality, and also without horror. With humor and common sense, she gives an interpretation of India that is based on her study of Mediaeval Europe. An engaging narrative and a serious one.

Mrs. Williams was for some time a reporter on the NEW YORK SUN. She collaborated with F. B. Fisher, on INDIA'S SILENT REVOLUTION before making the unique journey which she describes in her new book.

She will lecture on India during the winter of 1928-1929.

CHINA'S MILLIONS: Book I—Red Revolt in Central China. Book II—The Trail Across China's Northwest

A graphic account, by a well-known writer for ASIA, HARPER'S and French and German magazines, of a journey across the interior of China from Hunan to Mongolia during the fighting in 1927. The book combines a racy narrative with social interpretation of what is happening in Asia today, not alone in Peking and the Treaty Ports, but in the vast agricultural continent whose workers and peasants constitute one-fifth of the earth's population. It is the best inside story of Chinese-Russian cooperation yet printed. Miss Strong has lived for many years in Germany and Russia and four times crossed the Transiberian railway. She gives vivid portraits of Mme. Sun Yat Sen, Michael Boradin, Eugene Chen, Rayna Proehme, the American woman who played a dramatic role in Chinese propaganda, and amazing sketches of girls from mission schools who now work for the army; of trade union politicians, and revolutionary zealots in Canton and Hankow. The book presents a lucid, comprehensible picture of Chinese conditions by means of a thousand little pictures of people and events, and foretells which social patterns will appear and reappear in the next few years in China. 1927 was as determining a year, and as prophetic, in Chinese history as 1905 was in Russian history, and these reminiscences of Miss Strong's year will be part of the historic record. Miss Strong's THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY, which was an account of the Russian Revolution, has established itself as one of the best written books about that tremendous upheaval.

DAYS IN THE SUN

The author of PELLE THE CONQUEROR writes of Spain as no one else has ever written. With all the nostalgia of a traveller from a northern land, he entered the Spanish peninsula by the golden gateway of Andalusia, and there found a land which nourished him, and a sun that he too might worship.

Published in many editions in Scandinavia and Germany, DAYS IN THE SUN is already a classic travel book. It is a revelation of the Spanish spirit, and a recreation of the vitality of Latin peasants, and the city life of Malaga, Cadiz, Seville, Cordova, Loja, Ronda, and Guadix.

It communicates the experiences of a traveller whose gusto and whose knowledge of what men live by in his own civilization, make him a wise lover and stimulant critic of another land.

Nexö, whose short stories and novels have dealt with the peasants and fishermen of Denmark, was born in that tiny country and spent his early life there. He himself was for many years one of the workers about whom he so often writes. He began earning his living as a farmhand, later turned cobbler, and after years of study became a public school teacher. At present he is living in a picturesque old house at Allensbach on Lake Constance, Germany, where he is engaged in writing a new novel.

He is the author of: PELLE THE CONQUEROR; DITTE, GIRL ALIVE; EXPIATION; THE FAMILY OF THE FRANKS, etc.

WANDERERS: Episodes from the Travels of Lady Stuart-Wortley and her daughter, Victoria, 1849-1855.

This unusual book records the early experiences, in the strenuous company of a uniquely enterprising mother, of one of Queen Victoria's Maids-of-Honour. To the delicate and distinguished personalities of the two wanderers the America of the famous "forty-niners," with its bursting steamboats and rocketting stage-coaches, its Mississippi, its Mexico, and its magical, tragical Isthmus of Panama, affords a wild and unforgetable background, a noteworthy feature of the narrative being the eager and open-minded spirit in which Lady Emmeline Wortley studied and admired her American hosts, of whom till then English travellers had been uniformly critical.

The book is a skillful compilation from a variety of sources, published and unpublished, including family papers from the collections of Sir Charles Welby, the Duke of Rutland, and the late Lord Stuart of Wortley.

FREEDOM IN THE MODERN WORLD:

A series of Lectures delivered at The New School for Social Research by: Walton H. Hamilton, Rev. John A. Ryan, F. J. Foakes-Jackson, Zechariah Chafee, Clarence Darrow, Silas Bent, Max Eastman, Robert Morss Lovett, Joseph Jastrow, John Dewey and Horace M. Kallen.

This is a brilliant series of studies on the problem which all men with the great tradition of human liberty behind them must take to their hearts and minds. Professor Kallen writes: "In the decade since the world has been made safe for democracy, it seems to have been made very unsafe for Freedom. Freedom has become a paramount topic of liberal discussion. The Eternal Vigilance which is notoriously its price seems to be once more aroused, and the wakefulness of a thinking and tiny minority hopes to extend itself to the sleeping masses. Certainly, the minority is beating loud enough alarms. See, they cry, all our ancient liberties are being taken from us, directly or by indirection; we may neither assemble nor speak nor write freely; we may not choose what to drink or what to eat; what play to go to or what book to read."

Dr. Horace Kallen who is now a professor of philosophy and psychology at the New School for Social Research has been on the teaching staff of several American universities. He was named by William James as the editor of his unfinished book SOME PROBLEMS IN PHILOSOPHY, and he has been a frequent contributor to periodicals on this subject. He is the author of WILLIAM JAMES AND HENRI BERGSON; CREATIVE INTELLIGENCE (with John Dewey and others); THE BOOK OF JOB AS A GREEK TRAGEDY; ZIONISM AND WORLD POLITICS, and THE PHILOSOPHY OF WILLIAM JAMES.

UNEMPLOYMENT OR WAR

Books on economics are usually written for experts and professors only. This is not such a book; but it is intended for people like you and me, that is to say, for everybody with a few dollars to spend and many real needs to satisfy.

The author answers such questions as:

Who or what fixes prices? Why does a dollar buy less at one time than at another?

What makes money plentiful or scarce irrespective of the quantity of goods?

Why were there no unemployed in any country during the Great War?

Why are there now millions of unemployed in the most prosperous countries of the world?

Why does Labor fear every new labor-saving device?

Why do we talk of a next war after a war that "ended" war?

The existing interrelation between men, money, goods and machines is analysed; and the author finds a disharmony between them, that periodically necessitates unemployment or war. The money factor is shown to fail to answer the needs of the mechanical age.

The author presents both a case for reform and a proposed remedy. Though neither diagnosis nor remedy claims to be original, they are now for the first time presented in a single volume and in a style free from technicalities.

Mr. Colbourne, who in recent years has been associated with the theatre as actor and manager, is a graduate of Oxford where he was a Scholar in Natural Science. He served during the war with the Royal Berkshire Regiment in France, and after the armistice returned to the university where he took Honors in English Literature. He is the author of THE WICKED FOREMEN.

CURIOUS TRIALS AND CRIMINAL CASES: From Socrates to Scopes

As De Quincy so truly remarked, many a man has committed his first murder thoughtlessly enough, and has thereafter descended the ladder of crime until he becomes no more than a petty thief. In CURIOUS TRIALS we have murderers in abundance, both professional and amateur, along with a number of less serious but equally interesting crimes and criminals.

Edward Hale Bierstadt, who will be remembered as the editor of CELEBRATED TRIALS, has taken pains in the present collection to avoid the usual. The trials contained herein are, for the most part, not to be found in any other collection in print. They range from the trial, in the London of Charles II, of that brilliant malefactor Count Konigsmark for the horrid murder of Thomas Thynn Esquire, to that of Robert and Bastien, in the Paris of the 19th century, for doing away with Madame Houet; and from the amusing story of the abduction of young Miss Ellen Turner by the Wakefield brothers to the case of Mr. Scopes of Tennessee, who, like Socrates, was tried for teaching heretical doctrines to the youth of his time.

CURIOUS TRIALS presents an interesting and representative collection of crimes, and are made even more dramatic through the inclusion of much of the verbatim testimony.

Mr. Bierstadt is a grand-nephew of the famous American painter Albert Bierstadt. He has served as the editor of several leading periodicals, and is widely known as the author of many important volumes. Among his published works are: DUNSANY, THE DRAMATIST; SOUND AND BRASS; LOST TRAILS OF THE SPANISH MAIN; THE GREAT BETRAYAL; PUNISHMENT, a play.

TWO GENTLEMEN AND A LADY

Not—as you might think—a simple tribute to John Barrymore, Harpo Marx and Mrs. Fiske. For, in this book, Alexander Woollcott—the reformed dramatic critic—tells three dog stories.

While seeming to give his best years to the people of the theatre, Mr. Woollcott has all along been leading a double life and now reveals his intimate acquaintance with at least three dogs, to say nothing of a canary, a parrot and one practically perfect Persian cat. Through the medium of his prose and the delightful illustrations by Edwina, you are here introduced to an Airedale of patrician blood named Nicholas Murray Butler; to Verdun Belle, a setter bitch of humble and suspect ancestry but with a heart of gold; and to Egon Ficklin Finney, a celebrated German police dog of distinguished social position, alarming personal habits and a certain lumbering roguery.

Mr. Woollcott is most widely known as a dramatic critic, having been Dramatic Editor of the NEW YORK TIMES, NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE, and NEW YORK WORLD, and a contributor of articles on the theatre to a number of leading periodicals. During the war he was on the Editorial Council of THE STARS AND STRIPES. His published works include: THE COMMAND IS FORWARD; THE ENCHANTED AISLES; THE STORY OF IRVING BERLIN; SHOUTS AND MURMURS; MR. ON PARADE

Literary America is here presented in caricature and short essay, by an artist of international fame and a writer who is original and amusing.

Fifty leading novelists, poets, dramatists, humorists and critics speak for themselves as they have seldom done except to those who can read "between the lines" of their books. In addition Erich Posselt tells of these writers' philosophy of life, their art, their ambition, their likes and their dislikes in pointed, brilliantly written biographical sketches. He does not attempt serious criticism, but shows the human side of these literary celebrities whom he has known during his years as a journalist and critic.

The astonishing caricatures are most of them done from life. The speaking likeness of the drawing, combined with a subtle irony, brings out amusing details which no photographer could ever get. Miss Herrmann's caricatures have for the last few years been appearing regularly in the leading continental magazines as well as in some American newspapers. By one Paris critic they have been called "the best of the day, and probably some of the best ever done."

Miss Herrmann is an American who was educated abroad and lived there until her return to America a short time ago. Mr. Posselt, the originator of ON PARADE, has been a frequent contributor to our leading magazines and has a wide acquaintance in American literary circles.

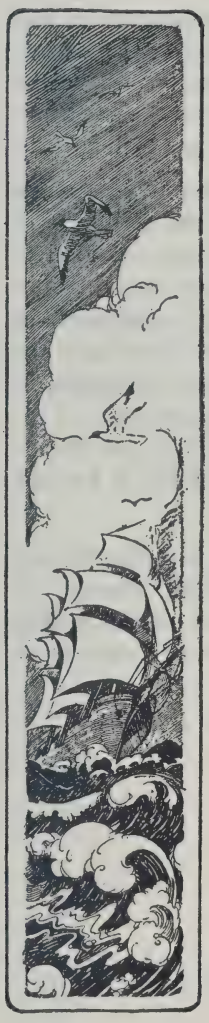
THE SEAL OF THE WHITE BUDDHA



A trip to China in 1847 on a beautiful clipper ship is no small adventure in itself. But pretty Hope Winchester all unwittingly carried with her on that trip the key to her grandfather's lost fortune and with it the silver seal of the White Buddha. There is mystery and adventure a-plenty. That does not mar Hope's fun or delight, however, in her visit to old New York before setting sail —or in her life on the clipper ship—or in the strange ports and lands which she sees. This is a tale which couples adventure with a real sense of living in another time, at home and abroad, through the quite possible experiences of a simple Vermont girl.

Hawthorne Daniel was for several years the editor-in-chief of Boys' Life Magazine and that association gave him a comprehensive understanding of the taste of youthful readers. He has contributed to many current periodicals, and is now editor of the Natural History Magazine published by the New York Museum of Natural History. The list of his books includes: SHIPS OF THE SEVEN SEAS; THE GAUNTLET OF DUNMORE; THE RED ROSE OF DUNMORE; THE HONOR OF DUNMORE; IN THE FAVOR OF THE KING, etc.

MILLIONS OF CATS

A story told in pictures and words of a gentle peasant and his gentle wife who long for a pleasant friendly kitten. The husband goes searching for one. But what does he find? Millions of cats!—each one sweeter than the other. And millions follow him home over hill and dale.

This is a book of unusual interest and importance, for the name of Wanda Gág is known, watched, and respected in the art world. Print collectors buy her work; the Metropolitan and the Newark Public Library own several of her prints. The Society of Printmakers have reproduced her work; the American Institute of Graphic Arts have for two years accorded her their highest honor, inclusion in their annual publication of the FIFTY BEST PRINTS. Rockwell Kent said of her last year's exhibit at the Weyhe Gallery, "Yield yourselves to what is here, for it has the power to profoundly move you."

She is new in the field of juvenile writing and illustrating. But the simplicity of her tale, and "solidified energy" of her art will win for her quick approval and understanding from a most critical audience—the very young readers of America.

THE RED HORSE

A gay colorful importation—the story of young Peter's wooden horse who came to life because it was carved from wood that held the green heart of a tree. TIMOTHY TRAVELS

Timothy is an active enthusiastic American boy. He was lucky enough to have a summer vacation in Europe. He and his mother did not follow the usual tourist paths. From Gibraltar they journeyed past the Ballearic Isles to Nice, up through France and Switzerland, into Germany and out through the Netherlands. Any number of adventures befell them. They travelled from Annecy across the Alps in a great motor caravan. There was the episode of the wrong train and the "Pateran" when they took to the gypsy trail and found the yakel and saw the marionettes. They made friends from all over the globe. Timothy's adventures, his delight in all that he sees, and his initiation into the business of travelling abroad makes the book not only a very good story but a valuable help to all young travellers.

The author, Miss Neumann, has spent the greater part of her twenty-odd years in Europe. She writes with the freshness and charm of youth. Her thorough knowledge of countries and peoples, of historical background and achievements of the Old World flows through the book with naturalness and ease. Adults will find the book authentic and accurate—juvenile readers will find in it their own love of discovery and adventure in foreign lands.

BOY OF THE DESERT

Abdul Aziz lived in Hammamet, a town in Tunisia where a little boy makes his playground on the roof of his father's house, and has adventures with donkeys and camels, and wild-riding nomad Arabs from the Sahara.

Mrs. Tietjens has made this story from the lives of a dozen Arab children whom she knew when she herself lived in Northern Africa, not far from the ancient site of Carthage. She has woven together the endlessly interesting details of daily life among the Arab peoples, the legends that were told in the market place and the date gardens, and the story of a little boy hero who is a proud son of the desert.

Known as both a writer and lecturer, Mrs. Tietjens is one of the editors of POETRY: A MAGAZINE OF VERSE. She has published several volumes of poetry, among them PROFILES FROM CHINA and BODY AND RAIMENT; and a novel, JAKE. This is her first book of juvenile fiction, although she is the author of two grade school readers which have been adopted in a number of schools throughout the country.

THE COMPLETE HISTORY OF THE BASTABLE FAMILY

Here, for the first time in one volume, are Mrs. Nesbit's most famous stories of the Bastable Family—THE TREASURE SEEKERS, THE WOULD-BE-GOODS, THE NEW TREASURE SEEKERS. Many characters who have lived in fiction have been brought so near to reality that in course of time they have become more famous than living human beings. Nowhere in the realm of children's books has this been better borne out than in the case of the members of the Bastable family. Here, for the first time in one volume, are Mrs. Nesbit's most famous stories of the Bastable family—The Treasure Seekers, The Would-Be-Goods, The New Treasure Seekers. Personal Indorsements of the Camberwell Edition of Browning.

"Positively the only edition containing the necessary apparatus to understand or even intelligently to enjoy his works. I am impressed with the excellence of the little introductions, which are sensible and at times luminous, and with the extreme care shown in explaining the many allusions in the notes."—Prof. Wm. Lyon Phelps.

"The ideal edition, and cannot fail to become the favorite one."—Dr. W. J. Rolfe.

"More inclusive and better annotated than any Browning which has yet appeared."—Edmund C. Stedman.

"Without a question in my mind the most attractive working edition."—Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

DRESSER, HORATIO W.

History of Ancient and Medieval Philosophy. 350 pages. 8vo.....Special Net, $2.50

"Dresser has written a brief systematic and suggestive text for the study of philosophical thought for the two thousand years from the sixth century before Christ. It has the immense advantage of being clean-cut and should prove to be a highly useful introduction to what is too often a dry and meaningless college course." —Social Forces.

History of Modern Philosophy. 486 pages, 8vo. .....Special Net, $3.00

This informing work marks the transition between the older schools and modern civilization. It is divided into two parts. In the first we consider Bacon, Hobbes, Descartes, Spinoza, Liebniz, Locke, Berkeley, Hume and others. In the second, Fichte, Schelling, Schleirmacher, Schopenhauer, Mill, Spencer, Huxley and modern schools of thought.

Ethics in Theory and Application. 528 pages, 8vo, cloth.....Special Net, $3.00

"The book is adapted for use as a text, but its scope is wider than that of a textbook. It uses historical material freely and makes frequent application of its principles to present problems. It will be welcomed by all who would resist the modern invasion of the realm of personality." —Springfield Republican.

Psychology in Theory and Application. 750 pages, 8vo .....Special Net, $3.50

"The author has given a survey of the entire field of psychology — general psychology, abnormal psychology, vocational psychology, industrial psychology, psychology of religion, social psychology. In each of these fields, Dr. Dresser has been skilful in selecting the basic concepts and bringing them together in critical fashion. Good judgment is also shown in the amount of proportionate attention given to each psychological field. A comprehensive grasp of each field is shown and a worthy synthetic product is the result."—Journal of Applied Psychology.

WILLIAM LYON PHELPS ON A PRIVATE LIBRARY ALL YOUR OWN

A borrowed book is like a guest in the house; it must be treated with punctiliousness, with a certain considerate formality. You must see that it sustains no damage; it must not suffer while under your roof. You cannot leave it carelessly, you cannot mark it, you cannot turn down the pages, you cannot use it familiarly. And then, some day, although this is seldom done, you really ought to return it.

But your own books belong to you; you treat them with that affectionate intimacy that annihilates formality. Books are for use, not for show; you should own no book that you are afraid to mark up, or afraid to place on the table, wide open and face down. A good reason for marking favorite passages in books is that this practice enables you to remember more easily the significant sayings, to refer to them quickly, and then in later years it is like visiting a forest where you once blazed a trail.

Every one should begin collecting a private library in youth; the instinct of private property, which is fundamental in human beings, can here be cultivated with every advantage and no evils. One should have one's own bookshelves, which should not have doors, glass windows, or keys; they should be free and accessible to the hand as well as to the eye. The best of mural decorations is books; they are more varied in color and appearance than any wall-paper, they are more attractive in design, and they have the prime advantage of being separate personalities, so that if you sit alone in the room in the firelight, you are surrounded with intimate friends. The knowledge that they are there, in plain view, is both stimulating and refreshing. You do not have to read them all. Most of my indoor life is spent in a room containing six thousand books and I have a stock answer to the invariable question that comes from strangers. "Have you read all of these books?" "Some of them twice."

There are of course, no friends like living, breathing, corporeal men and women; my devotion to reading never made me a recluse. How could it? Books are of the people, by the people, for the people. Literature is the immortal part of history; it is the best and most enduring part of personality. But book friends have this advantage over living friends; you can enjoy the most truly aristocratic society in the world and whenever you want it. The great dead are beyond our physical reach and the great living are usually almost as inaccessible; as for our personal friends and acquaintances, you cannot always see them. Perchance they are asleep, or away on a journey. But in a private library, you can at any moment converse with Socrates, or Shakespeare or Carlyle or Dumas or Dickens or Shaw or Barrie or Galsworthy. And there is no doubt that in these books you see these men at their best. They wrote for YOU. They "laid themselves out," they did their ultimate best to entertain you, to make a favorable impression. You are as necessary to them as an audience is to an actor; only instead of seeing them masked, you look into their inmost heart of hearts. The "real Charles Dickens" is in his novels, not in his dressing room.

Every one should have a few reference books, carefully selected and within reach. I have a few that I can lay my hands on without leaving my chair; this is not because I am lazy, but because I am busy.

Three qualities are well to bear in mind when buying books. In getting any book, get the complete edition of that book; not a clipped, or condensed, or improved or paraphrased version. Second, always get books in black, clear, readable type. When you are young, you don't mind; youth has the eyes of eagles. But later, you refuse to submit to the effort—often amounting to pain—involved in reading small type, and lines set too close together. Third, get volumes that are light in weight. It is almost always possible to secure this inestimable blessing in standard authors. Some books are so heavy that to read them is primarily a gymnastic rather than a mental exercise; and if you travel and wish to carry them in your bag or trunk, they are an intolerable burden. Refuse to submit to this. There was a time when I could tell merely by "hefting" it, whether a book had been printed in England or in America; but American publishers have grown in grace and today many American books are easy to hold.

Remember that for the price of one ticket to an ephemeral entertainment, you can secure a book that will give strength and leisure to your mind all your life. Thus I close by saying two words to boys and girls, men and women: BUY BOOKS.

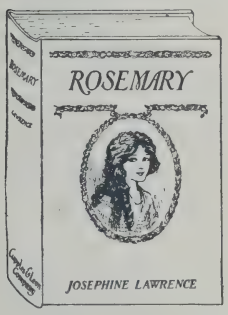
Rosemary and the Princess

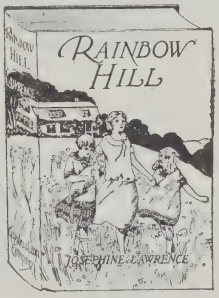
Complications enter the Willis household when Kathleen Stuart, a delicate, pampered young cousin from Chicago, comes to spend the winter. She is called the "Princess" on account of her beautiful clothes and sophisticated ways. Rosemary, Sarah and Shirley each reacts in her own way, and the result is a lively time for the Willises.



Rosemary

Rosemary Willis is twelve years old, the eldest of three sisters. She is charming, quick and radiant, with a snappy temper. Sarah is two years younger. Her unruly ideas lead her into numerous troubles before she changes her mind. Shirley is the baby and pet. There are others who help complicate as well as untangle troubles.

Rainbow Hill



RAINBOW HILL is a companion volume to ROSEMARY, continuing a new series of experiences, for the charming little girls, Rosemary, Sarah and Shirley. They are sent to live for the summer in an old country home known as Rainbow Hill. Here is mingled the work, play and self sacrifice that develops the family character.

The Berry Patch

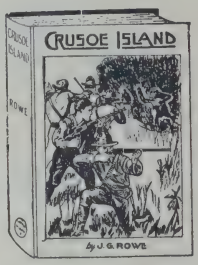
THE Berry family home, with the Berry children scurrying around in it, looked well enough like a wild garden to be called the "berry-patch." The clash of personal wants, and pride in school and home show how unhappy dispositions can become lovable characters and attain admirable success.

Next Door Neighbors

NEXT DOOR NEIGHBORS may not always be as agreeable as they might be, but very likely more will be imagined than ever comes to pass. Adventure and fun ran a race to see which could excite in these young folks the most laughs and thrills.

Sea Stories For Boys

By JOHN GABRIEL ROWE



Every boy knows the lure of exploring and loves to rig up caves and huts and tree-houses, fortifying himself against imaginary enemies. For this reason these tales are bound to please boy readers everywhere, for they tell what boys do who are shipwrecked and have to make themselves snug and safe in tropical islands where the dangers are real.

Large 12 mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Colored jacket.

Price per volume, $1.00 net.

1. CRUSOE ISLAND

Fire destroys the ship that Dick, Alf, Frank and Fred are on and they find themselves stranded with Josh, an old seaman, on an unknown island. They live there a year before being rescued, and have to keep their wits busy every minute prepared for anything.

2. THE ISLAND TREASURE

It is fascinating to watch these boys fit themselves into the weird wild place they have to live in after their friends have been captured by natives and their ship lost in storm. They make a cliff home, a cave stronghold, and a house inside a huge hollow tree, and have a great time outwitting their enemies discovering hidden treasure chests.

3. THE MYSTERY OF THE DERELICT

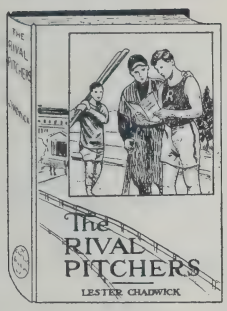
After their ship and companions have perished in tempest, the boys are adrift in a small boat on a lonely sea when they spy a ship. Such a strange vessel!—no hand guiding it, not a soul aboard—a derelict. They take possession, resolving to sail into port and claim salvage, but find themselves in the clutch of a ghastly mystery instead.

4. THE LIGHTSHIP PIRATES

Modern Pirates, with the ferocity of beasts, attack a lightship crew, recounting the adventures that befall the survivors of that crew,—and—"RETRIBUTION".

5. THE SECRET OF THE GOLDEN IDOL

Telling of a mutiny, and how two youngsters were unwillingly involved in one of the weirdest of treasure hunts,—and—"THE GOLDEN FETISH".



The College Sports Series

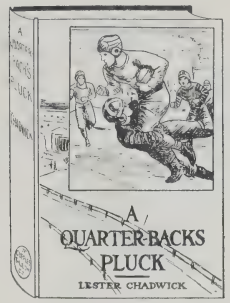
Mr. Chadwick has played on the diamond and on the gridiron himself, and has proved himself a coach of no mean ability.



12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Colored Jacket. Price, per volume, $1.00

1. THE RIVAL PITCHERS
A Story of College Baseball

WHEN Tom Parsons came to Randall College he was looked upon by some as a mere country boy, a "hayseed." He soon showed his ability and was put on the scrub team. Another pitcher was jealous of him and did his best to keep Tom off the leading nine.

2. A QUARTERBACK'S PLUCK
A Story of College Football

OF all college and university sports football is undoubtedly king, and in this story Mr. Chadwick has risen to the occasion and told a story straight out of his own heart and one that is bound to grip the reader from the first.

3. BATTING TO WIN
A Story of College Baseball

AS before, Tom, Phil and Sid are to the front. Sid, in particular has developed into a heavy hitter, and the nine depends upon him to bring in the needed runs. Then something happens, and poor, misjudged Sid is debarred from playing.

4. THE WINNING TOUCHDOWN
A Story of College Football

FOOTBALL was a serious proposition at Randall that year. There had been the loss of several old players, and then, almost at the last moment, another good player had to be dropped. They went to work and practically reorganized the eleven, and made that glorious touchdown that won the big game.

5. FOR THE HONOR OF RANDALL
A Story of College Athletics

NOW the boys are on the track, and the winning of the hurdle race, hundred-yard dash and long-distance run are told in Mr. Chadwick's best style. There is a mystery, and a wealth of information on athletic contests.

6. THE EIGHT-OARED VICTORS
A Story of College Water Sports

ONCE more we meet the lads of Randall College. This time the scene is shifted from baseball, football and track athletics, to boating, and the particulars are given of some great aquatic races, including an eight-oared shell race of the never-to-be-forgotten variety.

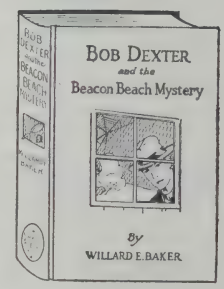
The Bob Dexter Series

By WILLARD F. BAKER

Author of "Boy Rancher Series"



THIS is a new line of stories for boys, by the author of the Boy Ranchers series. The Bob Dexter books are of the character that may be called detective stories, yet they are without the objectionable features of the impossible characters and absurd situations that mark so many of the books in that class. These stories deal with the up-to-date adventures of a normal, healthy lad who has a great desire to solve mysteries, and the volumes relate in an entertaining way how he does it.

12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Colored Jacket. Price, per volume, 65 cents

1. BOB DEXTER AND THE CLUB-HOUSE MYSTERY.

Or The Missing Golden Eagle.

THIS story tells how the Boys' Athletic Club was despoiled of its trophies in a strange manner, and how, among other things stolen, was the Golden Eagle mascot. How Bob Dexter turned himself into an amateur detective and found not only the mascot, but discovered who had taken it, makes interesting and exciting reading.

2. BOB DEXTER AND THE BEACON BEACH MYSTERY.

Or The Wreck of the Sea Hawk

WHEN Bob and his chum went to Beacon Beach for their summer vacation, they were plunged, almost at once, into a strange series of events, not the least of which was the sinking of the Sea Hawk. How some men tried to get the treasure off the sunken vessel, and how Bob and his chum foiled them, and learned how it happened that the lighthouse beacon was extinguished so often, forms the basis of this tale.

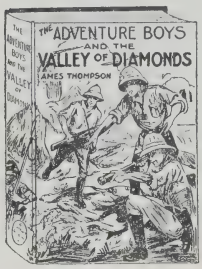
3. BOB DEXTER AND THE STORM MOUNTAIN MYSTERY.

Or The Secret of the Log Cabin

BOB DEXTER came upon a man mysteriously injured and befriended him. This led the young detective into the swirling midst of a series of strange events and into the companionship of strange persons, not the least of whom was the man with the wooden leg. But Bob got the best of this vindictive individual, and solved the mystery of the log cabin, showing his friends how the seemingly impossible feat of a man going through a closed door was worked.

The Jewel Series

By AMES THOMPSON



Stories brimming with real adventure, vivid and accurate in detail, and with a good foundation of probability. They take the reader realistically to the scene of action.

A List of Books

THE JOHN DAY COMPANY

25 WEST 45th STREET · NEW YORK

Fall Publications, 1928

Alphabetical by Authors

VATHEK, by William Beckford. With many illustrations by Mahlon Blaine. With an introduction by Ben Ray Redman.

Among the minor fictional productions of the 18th Century none is more assured of a permanent place than this droll, luxuriant, Oriental romance, the masterpiece of that prince of eccentrics, William Beckford. Mr. Blaine, the illustrator of Salammbô, The Sorcerer's Apprentice, etc., has found in the text inspiration for a hundred drawings.

Cloth. 6½″ x 9½″. Boxed.
Approximately 280 pages. $5.00

THE FATHER, by Katharine Holland Brown.

This is the novel which won the $25,000 prize in the Woman's Home Companion–John Day Company competition — the largest award ever offered for books and serial rights only. Aside from the interest attaching to it as the winner of the contest, The Father has other striking claims to attention. It recreates, vividly, a colorful period in American history; it presents a new picture of Lincoln, not Lincoln the administrator, but Lincoln the backwoods lawyer. Equally important, it reveals, appealingly, a vital relationship which has usually been presented in fiction as one full of antagonism—the relationship of father and daughter, here shown in its most sympathetic and deeply tender aspect.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. Approximately 352 pages. $2.00

SOVIET RUSSIA IN THE SECOND DECADE, A Joint Survey by the Technical Staff of the First American Trade Union Delegation. Edited by Stuart Chase, Robert Dunn and Rexford Guy Tugwell.

The latest authoritative study of Russian conditions, made by a group of experts and covering the chief activities of the new state.

BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE, by Donald Barr Chidsey.

This life of Prince Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender, gives the full-length story of his adventurous career. It is a stirring chapter of history and a portrait of the man whose charm and daring made him, for a time, the most romantic figure in Europe. The simple, vivid manner of the telling makes Bonnie Prince Charlie a book which will appeal to a juvenile as well as to an adult audience.

This large, decorative wall map shows the flights made by Lindbergh from his first barnstorming to the spectacular flight carrying serum to Floyd Bennett. The map is designed and illuminated by Major Ernest Clegg, the British cartographer, whose work is noted for the fineness of its execution and its richness of coloring.

Size 29″ x 49″. Lithographed in ten colors. Rolled in tube or folded in envelope. $2.00

GIANT KILLER, by Elmer Davis.

Here is the story of David, King of Israel, told, not in the manner of the old-time historical novel, nor yet as a comedy in modern dress, but as an epic story of a great figure in an heroic time. It is David the man who is shown in these pages, not the David of legend, but the adventurer, the scheming politician, the poet, the lover of many women. For all its drama the book is filled with robust humor which does not lessen the force of its many climactic passages.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. Approximately 400 pages. $2.50

PASSION IS THE WIND, by Bridget Dryden.

In this novel Bridget Dryden achieves two extraordinary things. She conveys, intimately, a high and beautiful passion, in prose that has the pulse of ecstasy; and she presents, with a fine, human realism, the behind-the-scenes activity of a great department store. The story of Brooke Bonnell and Michelson is told with beauty and a quick emotional excitement. In the picture of the others, caught up in the little world of the department store, there is a deft ironic humor and an insinuating pathos.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. Approximately 320 pages. $2.00

THE ACTIVITY SCHOOL, by Adolph Ferrière. Translated by F. Dean Moore and F. C. Wooton.

The first translation into English of a standard French work which presents a detailed study of the principles underlying the new movement in education and its practices as carried out in European schools.

Cloth. 5¾″ x 8½″. 339 pages. $4.00

THE WORLD OF KNOWLEDGE, by Sidney Morse. With an introduction and booklists by Jesse Lee Bennett.

Believing that academic education is ordinarily too limited and too highly specialized, the author has endeavored to supplement it and to unify its fragmentary parts in a broad general view of the circle of human experiences. In order to reveal, in graphic form, the interrelation of all the fields of knowledge, Mr. Morse has employed a map which charts, in spiral form, the expansion of related subjects into the three major divisions of knowledge. This survey of the realm of knowledge is designed for use as a guide for the intellectually curious, for all those who realize that learning is continuous, interminable and fascinating.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7½″. 112 pages, with map. $1.50

THE NEW DAY IN HOUSING, by Louis H. Pink, Member of the New York State Housing Board. With an introduction by Governor Alfred E. Smith.

This is the first book to be published in America on community housing. It surveys the housing projects in Austria, Germany, England and other European countries, and describes in detail the methods that have been applied in the United States in architecture and finance in municipal, state, philanthropic and commercial projects.

Cloth. 6½″ x 9½″. Many illustrations. $3.50

ROVING YEARS: The Adventures of a Wanderer, by Sidney Walter Powell.

In this charming and adventurous book Mr. Powell describes vividly the story of his roving years from his enlistment in an Indian ambulance corps in the South African War through to his part in the attack on Gallipoli in the European War.

LITERARY FOLLIES OF 1928, by John Riddell.

The gentleman who has been fluttering literary dove cotes in Vanity Fair here plays havoc with a few reputations. Illustrated by Covarrubias and others.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. Approximately 200 pages. Illustrated. $2.00

THE STAMMERING CENTURY, by Gilbert Seldes.

The Stammering Century might be described as a history of a state of mind, for it is a chronicle of certain of the minor movements of the 19th Century—the Stammering Century as Horace Greeley called it. The author's intention is to show how the religious sects and extravagances, the fads, the manias and the various social Utopian theories are related to the primary forces in American life, and by recording the history of these to supply a background for the cults and manias of our own time. The book is not merely a history, it is a portrait gallery crowded with amazing figures.

Cloth. 6½″ x 9½″. 433 pages. 16 pages of illustrations. $5.00

THE BOOK OF WEAVING, by Anna Nott Shook.

The methods, the fascination and the value of weaving are here set forth by the woman who is largely responsible for the present revival of this craft. The Book of Weaving is an inspirational hand-book; it contains complete instructions for beginners and guidance for experienced weavers.

Cloth. 7″ x 10″. Approximately 254 pages. Many illustrations, including color plates. $10.00

Millions of Americans believe with an almost religious fervor that sport is character building and ennobling. Mr. Tunis has his doubts—and a quantity of painful and amazing evidence to offer dealing with our modern sports. In attacking the great sports myth Mr. Tunis deals his blows without mercy, but none the less with good nature.

Cloth. 5¾″ x 8½″. Approximately 300 pages. Many illustrations. $2.50

A MAP OF THE MEDIEVAL WORLD, by Alice York.

A companion map to A Child's Map of the Ancient World, graphically presenting the medieval world of legend and history. Scores of miniature figures are pictured to dramatize the story of the Middle Ages. Size 33¼″ x 25″. In six colors. In folder. $2.50

Books Published Prior to July 1, 1928

THEODORE ROOSEVELT: HERO TO HIS VALET, by James Amos.

For twenty years the author was the personal attendant of Theodore Roosevelt. Here he tells the story of those years, presenting a new picture of Roosevelt.

"A very intimate account, written in a pleasant, natural manner that makes it exceedingly readable. . . . Worth adding to any Roosevelt collection for its human and personal note."—The Chicago Evening Post.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. 162 pages. Illustrated. $2.00

LUCK AND OTHER STORIES, by Mary Arden.

"The first published collection of the tales of a young English short-story writer whose cool grace and adeptness are undeniable. . . . Will undoubtedly prove one of the most distinguished of the season's short-story collections."—The Nation.

"Twelve stories, varying in length, told in a brisk, palpitating, photographic style, which it seems difficult to over-estimate."—The New York Times. Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. 256 pages. $2.00

COUNTERPOINT, by Josephine Daskam Bacon.

This book offers a modern answer to the question: Can two people find their way to happiness after the marriage conventions have been broken?

"A rich, absorbing, beautifully written narrative, its characters drawn with that sureness of touch and keen insight that one has learned to expect from Mrs. Bacon; a powerful, compelling story."—The Boston Evening Transcript.

Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. 559 pages. $2.50

OLD ENCHANTMENT, by Larry Barretto.

A drama of the passing of old New York's aristocracy. The two young Portlands, reared in the tradition of their family's lost grandeur, plunge into the modern world and find their own places in the new regime.

"Old Enchantment is written with poise and charm, and presents a moving phase of the great city's growth."—The Philadelphia Inquirer. Cloth. 5¼″ x 7¾″. 320 pages. $2.00

THAT LAST INFIRMITY, by Charles Brackett.

Armed with a million dollars and a mother's pride in her lovely daughters, Aloysia McCarthy, a charming Irish widow, sets out upon the conquest of the world.

"Entertainment of the first order. Full of sparkling episodes."—The New York World. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 311 pages. $2.00

MY HERESY, by William Montgomery Brown.

The life-story of the former Bishop of Arkansas, whose trial for heresy, in 1925, was one of the most notable anachronisms of the century.

"If there is a saner man than the author of this book, we have not found him. If what he lost is faith, and what he found heresy, then God help the church."—John Haynes Holmes in The Nation.

THE MAN WHO WAS BORN AGAIN, by Paul Busson. Translated by Prince Mirski and Thomas Moult.

"An astonishing blend of the supernatural and the picaresque. . . . It is essentially masculine, belonging with Jurgen, Tristram Shandy and Burton on a shelf marked 'Do not borrow! Buy for yourself.' "—The Chicago Daily News.

"We have yet to find any book in which horror and beauty are so adequately blended, any book in which the story moves more relentlessly to its inevitable climax, any book in which the mystical and the actual combine with more dramatic force than this one."—Joseph Henry Jackson in Sunset Magazine.

STAGE DECORATION, by Sheldon Cheney.

The first book in English to present a complete study of the development of stage decoration and stage forms.

"Sheldon Cheney's volume Stage Decoration is the best book on the subject that has so far appeared in America."—Gordon Craig.

"The best grounded and most accessible survey of the field that we have. His treatment is generous, enthusiastic and steady."—Stark Young in The New Republic.

"Indispensable for the student of theatre design. . . . The sequence of pictures makes a vivid, illuminating and suggestive story of the development of the stage."—Theatre Arts Monthly.

Boards. 7¾" x 9½". 256 illustrations. Boxed. $10.00

SHADOWS WAITING, by Eleanor Carroll Chilton.

"This distinguished and fundamentally exciting first novel . . . is executed with delicacy, and it is sufficiently fantastic to be true, but over and above these suave virtues it is full of serious power and intelligence."—Elinor Wylie in The Saturday Review of Literature.

"It is simply and solely one of the finest, ablest, most distinguished and most beautifully written books that America has produced in a good many years."—The New Republic.

Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 289 pages. $2.50

FIRE AND SLEET AND CANDLELIGHT, by Eleanor Carroll Chilton, Herbert Agar and Willis Fisher.

A new type of anthology, an intimate miscellany, presenting poems by three friends who have preferred to offer a small selection of their work in this collection instead of in three of the traditional "slender volumes of verse." Alike in their sensitivity but differing in mood and manner, these three groups of poems present an interesting variety of artistry and feeling.

Boards. 5½" x 8½". 96 pages. $2.00

THE NEW LEAVEN, Progressive Education and Its Effect Upon the Child and Society, by Stanwood Cobb, Headmaster of Chevy Chase Country Day School and President of The Progressive Education Association.

The principles and aims of progressive education are here considered with particular attention to its methods as they are being worked out in the progressive private schools of America.

Cloth. 5¾" x 7¼". 340 pages. $2.50

THE BOOK OF THE GLOUCESTER FISHERMEN, by James B. Connolly. Illustrated by Henry O'Connor.

"No other book presents so vivid, so true, so interesting and so thrilling a picture of these grand sailors."—The Boston Globe.

"There is none better fitted to write of the Gloucestermen than Mr. Connolly; he is of their blood and their breed. . . . These men live in The Book of the Gloucester Fishermen. Their vigorous, salty speech enlivens Mr. Connolly's pages; their sardonic humor lights them."—The New York Times.

Selected by The American Institute of Graphic Arts as one of the Fifty Illustrated Books of the year chosen for typographic excellence. Buckram. 6½" x 9½". Boxed. 300 pages. $5.00

ONCE MORE, YE LAURELS, by David Cort.

The story of young Mr. Dorney Dorney-Peters, revealing, in an ironic and sympathetic fashion, the comedy of man's immutable faith in his bright potential.

"It has both charm and soundness of style."—The New York Times.

"Brilliantly conceived and carried to its sardonic conclusion, this first novel possesses considerable power."—The New York Sun.

THE PEOPLE NEXT DOOR, An Interpretive History of Mexico and the Mexicans, by George Creel.

A rounded picture of Mexican history from the dawn of American civilization down to the present day. Vivid personalities, battles and intrigue quicken its pages.

"Covers a great deal of ground with a celerity that is amazing."—The New York Times.

"A more stimulating, provocative, altogether stirring volume of essays we have never read. From 'The Age of Impotence,' a chapter dealing with recent literature, to 'Portrait of an Elected Person,' a keen if somewhat cruel delineation of one William Hale Thompson of Chicago, the book is a prod to your intelligence and a delight to your sense of humor."—The San Francisco News.

"It contains one of the finest and most bitter ironical essays written by an American of our times: Portrait of a Cleric."—Heywood Broun in The Book-of-the-Month Club News.

Boards. 5½" x 7¾". 285 pages. $2.50

IN SUCH A NIGHT, by Babette Deutsch.

A novel recounting the drama of one night's events, told successively from inside the minds of several characters.

"A finely done novel in the modern manner . . . she gives you at least six unforgettable portraits."—Sunset Magazine.

PRIMER OF PROMOTION, by Howard W. Dickinson.

The basic principle of success in advertising is here stated by a man who has tested it through many years of experience. For clarity and vigor he has adopted the primer style of text and illustration. "A bit of a crisp challenge. . . . It functions like a powerful reducing glass, holding in focus the underlying principles of advertising and high pressure promotion."—The Brooklyn Eagle.

Boards. 5½" x 7¾". 96 pages. Illustrated. $1.25

THE ARRESTED MOMENT & OTHER STORIES by Charles Caldwell Dobie.

A collection of short stories selected from the best work of a man who has achieved an enviable reputation in this field. Every story in the book has been three-starred by Edward J. O'Brien.

"These stories are all highly original in plot and technically excellent in development. Mr. Dobie is a subtle artist."—The Philadelphia Public Ledger. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 304 pages. $2.50

LESS THAN KIN, by Charles Caldwell Dobie.

Set in San Francisco and the California hills, Less Than Kin tells the story of a group of persons whose fortunes are subtly dominated by a woman, the notorious Selina Parsons.

"Never has the drama of 'self-possession' been better done."—Lawrence Rising. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 405 pages. $2.00

THE GOLDEN COMPLEX, A Defence of Inferiority, by Lee Wilson Dodd.

"This very original book is as wise as it is witty. Perhaps Mr. Dodd is sometimes 'spoofing,' yet for all its light humor, this is a serious book, a frontal attack, a genuine satire, and the general reader is likely to learn more modern psychology from it than from a dozen partisan tomes. . . . It should be an excellent choice for reading circles and discussion clubs."—Henry Seidel Canby in The Book-of-the-Month Club News.

IN THE BEGINNING, by Norman Douglas.

In The Beginning is the first novel by Norman Douglas to appear in almost ten years. This new book by the author of South Wind is a tale of the days when the gods walked with men, when goddesses curiously requited their mortal favorites, when good and evil had not yet been invented. It is no story of Eden, no retelling "of man's first disobedience and the fruit." Here is a more ancient scene, an earlier and more adventurous breed of men.

Boards, decorated with English handmade paper.
5¼" x 7¾". 310 pages. $2.50

CONTEMPORARY EUROPEAN WRITERS, by William A. Drake.

A series of essays on forty-one notable figures in various literatures including Jean Cocteau, Thomas Mann, Luigi Pirandello, Paul Valery, Sigrid Undset, Azorin, and Jakob Wassermann.

THE SORCERER'S APPRENTICE, by Hanns Heinz Ewers. Translated by Ludwig Lewisohn. With Illustrations by Mahlon Blaine.

The first of this noted German writer's novels to be translated into English. It tells of the progress of religious hysteria among a group of peasants whose minds have been inflamed by a stranger. "A fierce and perilous tale. . . . The intense power of the narrative, the thrilling horror of its climax, would be sufficient merit for any book."—The New York Herald-Tribune.

One of the Fifty Books of the Year chosen by the American Institute of Graphic Arts for typographic merit.

PINWHEEL, A Play, by Francis Edwards Faragoh.

A modernistic drama of Manhattan, first produced by The Neighborhood Playhouse in New York, February 4, 1927.

"In Pinwheel he set down, in an ultra-modern, impressionistic but withal in an artistically sane and balanced manner, his impression of New York as an essential entity, a direct force."—The Hartford Daily Courant. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 140 pages. $1.75

SALAMMBO, by Gustave Flaubert. Illustrated by Mahlon Blaine. With an Introduction by Ben Ray Redman.

"Flaubert's magical story of the war of the mercenaries against Carthage. Blaine's drawings are as powerful and as stimulating as the text."—The Chicago Daily News.

Cloth. 6½" x 9½". 388 pages. $5.00

THE CONQUERER'S STONE, by Berry Fleming.

A novel of romance and adventure in the Carolinas of the year 1766. The dark career of Nicholas Waine, pirate and fine gentleman, reaches its height in the crowded weeks of his visit to his father's plantation.

"A piratical tale it is, one with an unusual appeal, with all the blaze and action that can be crowded into a book."—The Macon Telegraph.

THE LODGE IN FRIENDSHIP VILLAGE, by P. W. George.

A collection of Masonic short stories by a Masonic writer whose work has an enthusiastic audience among the members of the fraternity.

"Written with real art and an exquisite human touch, they make us feel the Spirit of the Lodge."—Joseph Fort Newton.

PRELUDE TO BATTLE, by Manfred Gottfried.

The tale of Temugin, lord of a thousand battles and a hundred wives. Mr. Gottfried's hero is a Mongolian of such stature as Genghis Khan. The novel is the lusty comedy of a conqueror: the thoughtful romance of a man whose private and public imbroglios drive him to the point of carving a career by spear and scimitar.

Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 356 pages. $2.50

FIFTY BOOKS, Exhibited by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, 1926.

Boards. 9½" x 12½" 64 pages. $3.50

Set of three volumes, boxed, $10.00

A HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY, by H. L. Haywood and James E. Craig.

This is the first history of Masonry written from a modern American point of view and covering in a single volume the saga of the Craft from its origins down to the present day.

"It is both history and literature, a scientific work and a work of art, achieving excellence in both respects."—C. J. Keyser in The New York Masonic Outlook.

WILD, by Carol Denny Hill.

Chapters in the blithe career of a youthful seeker after Culture and Experience in college and the night clubs.

"A perfect Baedeker of night in the metropolis. . . . She is the last word in self-centered, predatory, hard-boiled virginity."—The Saturday Review of Literature.

NOTABLE BRITISH TRIALS, Edited by Harry Hodge.

A series of volumes which have enjoyed wide popularity in England and abroad as a unique and fascinating library of crime. This series includes more than forty titles, each containing a transcript of the testimony at the trial and a lengthy introduction by a well-known writer. The following volumes are now ready.

Cloth. 5½" x 8¾". Each volume $3.50

The Trial of Abraham Thornton (1817), Edited by Sir John Hall, Bart.

Abraham Thornton's trial for murder and criminal assault is memorable as having brought about a change in the law, the scandals attached to the proceedings resulting in the abolition of appeals of murder and the ordeal by battle.

THE TRIAL OF BURKE AND HARE (1828), Edited by William Roughead.

The magnitude of the crimes of this notorious pair, who confessed to sixteen murders, set a record in homicide. Incited by the large sums paid by anatomists for subjects for dissection, they established in Edinburgh a sort of murder factory in order to supply surgeons with material.

THE TRIAL OF MADELEINE SMITH (1857), Edited by F. Tennyson Jesse.

When Madeleine Smith, daughter of a respected citizen of Glasgow, became engaged, she endeavored to secure certain compromising letters which she had written to Pierre Emile L'Angelier, with whom she had had a clandestine association. Her attempts were unsuccessful. L'Angelier died suddenly. At the trial the case for the Crown was that Miss Smith had given L'Angelier cocoa poisoned with arsenic.

THE TRIAL OF MRS. MAYBRICK (1889), Edited by H. B. Irving.

James Maybrick, a Liverpool cotton broker, died at his home under mysterious circumstances. A suspicion had arisen in the minds of his attendants that his wife was attempting to poison him. She was arrested, tried for his murder, and convicted. The justice of her conviction, gravely questioned at the time, has been the subject of criticism ever since.

THE TRIAL OF OSCAR SLATER (1909), Edited by William Roughead.

Few cases have occasioned more sensational rumors than that of Oscar Slater, who was tried for the murder of Miss Marion Gilchrist. The obvious weakness of certain links in the formidable chain forged by the Crown, the surprising verdict and the illogical reprieve combine to merit for this case a conspicuous niche in the gallery of Scottish causes celebres.

THE TRIAL OF HERBERT ROWSE ARMSTRONG (1922), Edited by Filson Young.

Among the murderers specializing in arsenical poisoning, Armstrong might be described as the tea-time poisoner. His was a simple and ingenious method, if people would only come to tea. Mr. Justice Darling, who tried the case, characterized it as "deeply interesting" and "of very great importance to the public."

The Trial of Adelaide Bartlett (1886), Edited by Sir John Hall, Bart.

This mystery poisoning case involves curious problems of medical jurisprudence and presents a situation of intense psychological interest. The unusual features of the case engaged the attention of Sir James Paget, consulting surgeon of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, who said, after Adelaide Bartlett was acquitted of her husband's murder: "Once it was all over, she should have told us, in the interests of science, how she did it.

The Trial of the Duchess of Kingston (1776), Edited by Lewis Melville.

The trial, for bigamy, of Elizabeth, the beautiful and notorious widow of the Duke of Kingston, was a solemn farce, memorable as an entertaining page in the history of court decisions.

GEORGE SAND: THE SEARCH FOR LOVE, by Marie Jenney Howe.

"One of the best pieces of biographical writing of the season . . . a thoroughly interesting book, written with understanding but not prejudice."—The Chicago Tribune.

"The finest study of this unusual woman that has yet been written." —The Pittsburgh Press.

"It is told by Marie Howe with so subtle and keenly penetrating and charming a wisdom, that I find it difficult to be moderate in recommending this book."—Max Eastman in The Forum.

Cloth. 6½" x 9½". Illustrated. 350 pages. $5.00

AT THE SIGN OF SAGITTARIUS, by R. B. Ince.

Philosophic satire, fantasy and humor underlie these eleven tales. "A civilized book, a witty book, an ironic and satiric book."—Harry Salpeter in The New York World.

THE SQUARE EMERALD, by Foster Johns.

"A good, swift moving, detective story concerning an emerald stolen as an act of devoir by a lover, a murder, and one thing and another until the detective solves all."—The Omaha World.

"After The Victory Murders and The Square Emerald, 'Foster Johns' will be as good as a label 'Excellent' on a detective story." —The Syracuse Herald. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 270 pages. $2.00

THE VICTORY MURDERS, by Foster Johns.

French, English and American crime experts join forces to solve the mystery of two curiously-linked murders and to avert a third.

"There is a triple mystery and the entire novel is based upon a motive new in fiction. It makes an interesting story with plenty of excitement and suspense."—The Boston Globe.

Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 295 pages. $2.00

CHILDREN IN THE NURSERY SCHOOL, by Harriet M. Johnson.

A clear and practical presentation of the workings of an experimental nursery school, including selections from the school's records, a description of how they are kept, and comment upon their importance in tracing the response of children.

Cloth. 5¾" x 8½". Approximately 320 pages. Illustrated. $3.00

HERE'S HOW, by Judge, Jr.

To all good mixers everywhere this hip-pocket size volume will come as a guide and an inspiration. Here's how to enlarge the horizon, escape dark moods, increase affability. Whenever two or three are gathered together the toasts and tips contained in Here's How may be pored over to advantage.

Boards. 3¼" x 5". 64 pages. $1.00

EAT, DRINK AND BE HEALTHY, An Outline of Rational Dietetics, by Clarence W. Lieb, M.A., M.D.

A simple, readable and rational guide to healthful eating for normal people. It is not a book of fads, or one addressed primarily to a scientific audience. In a sane, direct fashion Dr. Lieb interprets the latest discoveries in bio-chemistry and makes clear their significance in every-day living.

Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 192 pages. $1.50

THE BLACK ANGELS, by Maud Hart Lovelace.

A novel of youth in a younger America, the story of the Angel Operatic and Concert Troupe, beginning in the days before the Civil War and following the Troupe's vagabond fortunes into the eighties.

"Perfectly charming. The book has a swing to it and a lilt that is like one of the songs."—Arthur Gibbs.

Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 296 pages. $2.00

TAVERNS OF OLD ENGLAND, by Henry Parr Maskell, author of Old Country Inns. Illustrated with numerous photographs and pen and ink drawings by Alan S. Gill.

"He delves into history and tradition, talks entertainingly about old taverns, historic and more modern, sandwiches into his narrative many an anecdote of famous man or historic incident connected with the tavern, and tells the locations of a few of the most important of each kind of inn still open to travelers. Behind every sign there is an interesting and usually a vital story, and under Mr. Maskell's illuminating treatment the sum of the stories appears as of the highest consequence in the national development."—The New York Times.

"A mirror of America which is as true as it is amusing."—Carl Van Doren.

"Keen, penetrating, delightful to read, ballasted with facts—facts of a sort that only an eternally observant critic of contemporary America could have at his command."—The Forum.

"A reportorial feat of herculean proportions. . . . Reportorial in the most fascinating sense."—The New York Times.

"He is distinguished most sharply from others who are satirizing the American scene by a kind of distinterested sympathy with human beings. It is this absence of contemptuousness, this lack of personal grudge and irritation, this avoidance of any sense of personal revolt, which accounts, I think, for the book's power to make you want to understand rather than to dismiss the American culture which it describes."—Walter Lippmann in The New Republic.

THE BIBLE IN IRELAND, by Asenath Nicholson. Edited by Alfred Tresidder Sheppard.

A first-person account of the journeyings of "an American Borrow" in Ireland during the early part of the Nineteenth Century.

"A fascinating story, full of humor, pathos, shrewd observation, exciting adventure and heroic sacrifice."—The New York World.

CHINA AND THE POWERS, by Henry Kittredge Norton.

A survey of the present situation in China, as it affects the United States and other powers.

"By far the most realistic, sensible, practical discussion I have ever seen of foreign relations with the Chinese people."—William Hard.

THE FAR EASTERN REPUBLIC OF SIBERIA, by Henry Kittredge Norton.

A re-issue of Mr. Norton's account of Siberia's rise and development since the Russian Revolution in 1917.

"A very full and interesting account of the main problems of this new State."—Manchester Guardian.

THE WHITE MAN'S DILEMMA, Climax of the Age of Imperialism, by Nathaniel Peffer.

"An alarming book, a book full of the outrageous stupidity of nations that call themselves great, a disheartening book for us idealists, and yet, a soundly grounded, logical, practical and sane book." —Herschell Brickell in The New York Evening Post.

"An uncommonly brilliant study of the imperialistic world."—The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WINDOW DISPLAY ADVERTISING, by Carl Percy.

The recognized leader in the field of window display advertising, Mr. Percy has summed up in this book the results of his wide experience and research.

"Window Display Advertising is interestingly written, it is well illustrated, it summarizes the best practice in use today and it throws considerable light on several of the rather lightly unexplored phases of the subject."—Bulletin of the Window Display Advertising Association.

Cloth. 6" x 9". 208 pages. Illustrated. $3.50

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. LUKE.

A special edition printed by William Edwin Rudge from studies made by Bruce Rogers, whose assistance made the book possible. In three colors on all-rag watermarked B. One of the Fifty Books of the Year chosen for typographic merit by the American Institute of Graphic Arts. Cloth. 7″ x 10″. Boxed. $7.50

FIVE WEEKS, The Surge of Public Opinion on the Eve of the Great War, by Jonathan French Scott.

"In investigating this phase of the events leading up to Armageddon the author of Five Weeks has given us an absorbing story, but more important is the service he has rendered for any general study of the causes of war in relation to the power and responsibility of the press."—Foster Rhea Dulles in The New York Herald-Tribune.

"His comprehensive review of the European press during the five critical weeks is brilliantly carried out."—Christian Science Monitor. Cloth. 5¾″ x 8½″. 305 pages. $2.50

ALL THE KING'S HORSES, by Louis Stevens.

"A novel to get excited about. He has written brilliantly of life in Budapest before and during the World War."—The Birmingham News.

"Written by a modernist for a public which likes zest and sting in its reading matter. . . . Makes one live over again the most dramatic period of the century."—The Seattle Times.

A PLAN OF PRINTING INSTRUCTION FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS, by Henry H. Taylor.

A new course of study and hand-work, endorsed by The American Institute of Graphic Arts.

"It ought to revolutionize the teaching of printing in all schools and should be carefully read by every teacher of printing in the country."—Carl Purington Rollins in The Saturday Review of Literature. Cloth. 5½″ x 8⅜″. 64 pages. $2.00

STOCK MARKET QUOTATIONS, by Sophronia Tibbs. Collected by Leonard Hatch and illustrated by Herb Roth.

A garland of verses about the Stock Exchange.

"It gave me many a delightful chuckle."—Winthrop Ames.

THE LAST DEVIL, by Signe Toksvig.

"A novel of the Basque country, beautiful one moment and terrifying the next. Altogether an extraordinarily fascinating story."—Sunset Magazine. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 306 pages. $2.00

WHATEVER WE DO, by Allan Updegraff.

The story of a riotous week in the lives of a handful of American visitors to the Riviera.

"A moving, pitiful, gorgeous chronicle with a gesture of magnificent gallantry studded with cynical, sophisticated display."—The New York Times.

"The weaving of the plot progresses from the first page to the last in never-ceasing acceleration of interest, and, all the while these characters play across each others' lives with subtle influences and thunderous contacts. . . . A decidedly exceptional work."—The Saturday Review of Literature.

The sudden death of Manson, owner of a theatrical boarding house, throws his strangely assorted guests into terrified confusion.

"A regular hold-your-attention-from-cover-to-cover mystery story. She has actually hit upon an entirely new method of treating the mystery."—Carrie Chapman Catt in The Woman Citizen.

"Ingenious and full of surprises."—The New York Times.

BETTER SCHOOLS, by Carleton Washburne and Myron M. Stearns.

A survey of the work in progressive education now being carried on in American schools, with specific attention to the methods employed in certain outstanding schools. To some extent a companion book to New Schools in the Old World, by the same authors.

Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". Approximately 320 pages. $2.50

NEW SCHOOLS IN THE OLD WORLD, by Carleton Washburne and Myron M. Stearns.

An intensive study of twelve progressive schools in Europe, resulting from an extensive tour made by Mr. Washburne, who is Superintendent of Schools at Winnetka, Illinois.

"No one interested in educational methods, either in theory or practice, can fail to find it richly stimulating."—The New York Times. Cloth. 5¼" x 7¾". 174 pages. $1.75

THE MYTH OF THE INDIVIDUAL, by Charles W. Wood.

Ignoring all the philosophies hitherto advanced, Mr. Wood set out to discover the truth about human nature and how it acts.

"If you are interested in economics, politics and metaphysics, you will find this book exciting. It is a volume of brilliant writing, clever argument and subtle humor."—Kansas City Journal Post.

Cloth. 5¾" x 8½". 297 pages. $2.50.

A CHILD'S MAP OF THE ANCIENT WORLD, by Alice York. Designed by Ilonka Karasz.

For the first time, the ancient world of myth and history is graphically presented in a pictorial map. Scores of miniature figures are pictured to dramatize the story of the ancient world.

"The finest thing of its kind ever printed. A fascinating possession for any child."—Joseph Henry Jackson in Sunset Magazine.

De La Mare Garden Books

INTERNATIONAL ENCYCLOPÆDIA, THE NEW — Edited by FRANK MOORE COLBY, M. A., and TALCOTT WILLIAMS, LL.D., L.H.D., Litt.D. Assisted by nearly 500 editors and contributors.

Published in two forms. Regular Edition, 25 volumes, Green Cloth, $156.00, Red Library Buckram, $168.00, Black Full Leather, $230.00. Popular-Priced Edition, 13 volumes, identical as to contents with the 25 volume edition, bound in green cloth only, price $105.00. Sold on easy monthly payments, or less 5% for cash in full.

Comprises 75,000 articles; 856 full-page illustrations, 100 in full color; thousands of text cuts. 174 maps in color forming a complete gazetteer of the world. The articles are alphabetically arranged, making an index unnecessary. Unusual title words are pronounced and derivations given. Guide to pronunciation in each volume. Each set contains 34 Courses of Reading and Study covering principal departments of knowledge. Important articles are supplemented by splendid bibliographies. An American work written from an American viewpoint, but thoroughly international in scope and character. The statements are clear, succinct, authoritative and impartial. Definite and accurate information is given. The aim has been to include every topic in the developing history of human knowledge which could by any chance be of interest to the professional man, student or general reader. For full particulars address Subscription Department.

INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK, THE NEW—A compendium of the world's progress in every department of human knowledge. A special volume, published in May of each year, beginning with 1907. Invaluable to libraries, colleges and schools. For full particulars address Subscription Department.

MOTHER STORK'S BABY BOOK

Verses by Eugene Field and Robert Louis Stevenson.

With pen and ink Mrs. Wheelan has planned a volume of sketches of rare beauty and left pages to be filled in by the happy mother and father. Then Eugene Field, that big-hearted lover of children, has given us many a poem to touch and charm our sympathies. It is a book every mother will treasure. It is the most complete baby book made.

BROWNING, E. B.

SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE. ROYAL EDITION

Illustrated from photographic studies by Adelaide Hanscom. Painted by C. J. White and reproduced in full colors by color-photogravure printing.

This edition is certain to attract wide attention. Miss Hanscom, so well known as the illustrator of the Oriental Rubaiyat done in photogravure, requires no introduction to book lovers. The beautiful color painting of these illustrations by Mr. White will place the Royal Edition of the "Sonnets from the Portuguese" alongside of our famous "Royal Rubaiyat"—an achievement in itself. This edition is printed on excellent book paper with twenty plates in color. A real gift for real book lovers.

COMPLETE WORKS

Father

A little booklet containing one of Mr. Cooke's well-known poems, written for that everyday hero, "father." To quote Mr. Cooke, "I think more of the man who founds a family, and maintains it, than of the man who founds a library, letting the city maintain it." Printed in toned brown ink, with a decorative cover design in gold.

6 x 4¼. Art Paper, 50 Cents Net

Just Then Something Happened! A story for Children. Cloth, $1.50 Net

"It is a sort of Baron Munchausen, Sinbad the Sailor and Alice in Wonderland all rolled together. The youngster who likes invention, thrilling situations, unlooked-for ways of escape and a delicious foolishness as a background for it all, will find them here a-plenty. Mr. Cooke's inventiveness is only equalled by his humor and wit. From the juvenile point of view, he is a crackajack of a story-teller."

The Story Club. Stories for Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

There are no less than forty-four bright, new, interesting stories for children within the covers of this book. Any child of six years to sixteen will understand and enjoy them. "The Vinegator," "The Gassowary," "The Cave of the Eatercow," "The Little, Lame Angel," are some of the titles. The book is fully illustrated in colors.

Told to the Little Tot. Stories for Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

Here is a book of stories for the little folks, beautifully illustrated by Bessie Collins Pease. "The best written of all the books for quite small children," says the The Los Angeles Times, and parents who think enough of their children to give them real books of well-told stories, amusing and adapted to their infant minds, will want to know this book.

Chronicles of the Little Tot. Poems about Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

Edward Howard Griggs and other eminent critics hailed this volume as being equal to the child poems of Stevenson, Riley and Field, and the New York American added, "There is a spontaneity to the humor, a touching realism to the pathos and a pervasive beauty in the sentiments, that raise this collection of Mr. Cooke's verses to heights seldom attained, even by the poets referred to."

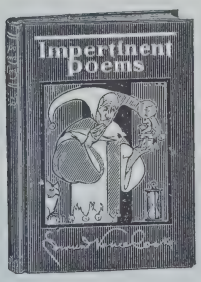
I Rule the House. Poems about Children.
Cloth, $1.50 Net

Of this second book of child verse, it is enough to say that it fully equals "Chronicles of the Little Tot" in its content. "The Sin of the Coppenter Man," "The Conqueror," "When Comp'ny Comes," "The Little Boy Snake," "The Monkey Man," "The Cooky Moon," "The Geographic Child" are a few of the poems of this book which are known and loved wherever there are children.



Impertinent Poems. Poems Men Like.
Cloth, $1.75 Net

"Impertinent Poems" with their keen insight into human nature, their colloquial habit of speech, their ingenious metricism and their whimsical sympathy established a new school of verse-making. Contains "How Did You Die," "Let's Be Glad We Are Living," etc.

Little Songs for Two. Love Poems.
Cloth, $1.50 Net

These are love lyrics, of course. "Forty-one delicious, finely sentimental poems written in inimitable style," says the Portland Oregonian, and the San Francisco Call adds that they are "As exquisite as any of the work upon which he has built his reputation." This is an ideal gift book for lovers of all ages.

COOKE, EDMUND VANCE— (Continued)

Rimes to be Read. Miscellaneous Poems.
Cloth, $1.75 Net

This book contains a wide variety of story-poems and character-sketches, ranging from the foolery of "The Young Man Waited," the satire of "The Other One Was Booth," and the keenness of "Fin de Siecle" to the tense dramatic interest of "Connor McCarthy," causing Thomas E. Watson to exclaim in a magazine review, "Did Bryant or Whittier or Lowell write verses better than these?"

The Uncommon Commoner and similar songs of democracy. Cloth, $1.75 Net

William Allen White commends the "straight-from-the-shoulder" style of the author, and Brand Whitlock expresses his debt of gratitude for the poems, which he says he owes "in common with all Americans."

RANDALL, JOHN HERMAN

THE ESSENCE OF DEMOCRACY

Democracy is the great word of the hour. Never before has this great word dominated so largely the world's thinking. When President Wilson set forth his reasons for the entrance of the United States into the world's greatest conflict, summing it all up in that new classic phrase "to make the world safe for Democracy," he established it forever as the practical ideal for human striving the whole world round.

In his usual convincing manner he shows that real Democracy is a thing of the inner life, and must not only be a belief, but an experience.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF POWER OR WHAT TO LIVE FOR

The demand of the 20th century is not so much for new beliefs as for actual knowledge. While there will always be a place in human life for speculative thought and as long as one thinks at all for one's self, he must formulate some philosophy of life, still what every man must live by is the knowledge born out of actual experience. With the crumbling of the old traditional creeds, there will continue to come ever new and fresh restatements of the basic truths of life. But the need of the hour is for a formulation of the practical principles which everyday experience has demonstrated to be most effective in bringing life to the fullness of all its latent powers.

In his new book, "The Philosophy of Power," Dr. Randall attempts such a formulation of principles, apart from all doctrinal questions of speculative interest. It might be regarded as the Creed of the practical man who cares little about theology or dogma, and yet who is conscious of a need of some practical working philosophy for life.

THE LIFE OF REALITY

In these days of great personal perplexities, and gigantic world-problems, every thoughtful man and woman is earnestly bent upon the search for reality. Out of the din of conflicting voices, out of the chaotic confusion of clashing opinions, one question emerges supreme over all. Amid all the deceptive appearances of life and in spite of life's disillusionments, is there such a thing as Reality, to which our human gropings may lead? Can it be found and experienced in the daily storm and stress of life, and if so, what is the pathway by which man may approach and live "the life that is life indeed"?

Dr. Randall firmly believes that such a real life is possible to every man, and in the chapters of this book he seeks to point out the sources and nature of that Reality for which, since the world began, every soul has been searching either consciously or unconsciously, the various paths of experience through which one moves toward the great discovery, and the resulting freedom and power in the life of the individual, who has attained the soul's supreme quest.

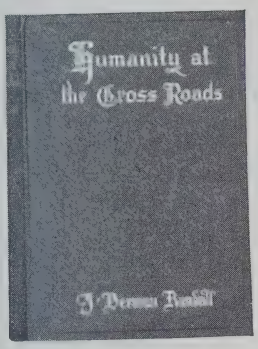
RANDALL—(Continued)



HUMANITY AT THE CROSS-ROADS

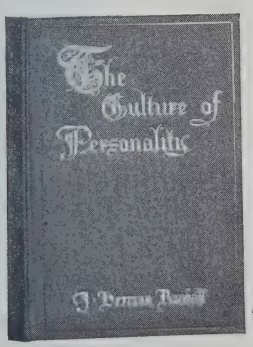
The writer believes that the true ideals of any people grow out of its actual philosophy of life and its conception of religion. Organized religion to-day has failed to grasp the significance of the new truth and seems powerless to furnish the vital forms of expression through which the resurging life shall find adequate and living manifestation. Can religion regain its lost leadership and give to the world the great ethical and spiritual dynamic demanded in the new age now dawning?

5¼ x 7½. Cloth, $2.00 Net

THE CULTURE OF PERSONALITY

This inspiring work is divided into fourteen thoughtful chapters on various aspects of personality, on the training of the mind, the mastery of the affections, the education of the will, and kindred themes.

5¼ x 7½. Cloth, $2.00 Net



A NEW PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE

It is the hope of the author that the philosophy of life herein set forth may tend, for some minds at least, to bring Science and Religion into closer harmony, and help to throw new light upon the pathway that leads to fullness of Peace and Power.

5¼ x 7½. Cloth, $2.00 Net

RANDALL—(Continued)

THE IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT IN RELIGION

In this his latest book Dr. Randall has taken up the problem of the fundamentalist-modernist controversy, which has come to such open and almost violent expression in the past few years.

The outstanding and underlying causes of the controversy are traced from the Protestant Reformation down through the ages to the World War and the present widespread knowledge and application of scientific methods and ideas.

Dr. Randall has in his own inimitable style laid down and laid open the facts of the case. He points out the permanent irrepressibility of the differences between the two parties which hold such opposing views within the same religion, and takes the position that none of the questions that are so hotly debated today go to the heart of religion but only represent the imperfect rationalization about religion.

There has been no glozing over the points of differences in the controversy by the author, and they are presented with an utter lack of bitterness or prejudice. Dr. Randall has written a book which will have a wide appeal, and will prove of great interest to both the layman and the student, because of the timely subject matter, together with his capable and agreeable style of writing.

3⅞ x 5⅝. English Long Grain Leather, Assorted Colors, $1.00 Net

AMBITION. By Sir John Lubbock.

Masterly Essays by this world-renowned thinker on a subject which has inspired men to a glorious memory in the making of history and moulding our opinions of Health, Wealth, Music, etc.

ARMANDE. By Edmond and Jules de Goncourt. Translated by Alfred E. Haserick and with an introduction by W. D. Orcutt.

Of the Brothers Goncourt, Victor Hugo says, "Charming writers, two minds from which spring a single jet of genius." Armande is their masterpiece.

BALLAD OF READING GAOL. By Oscar Wilde.

Only when neglected and despised, ill and miserable, did sincere feeling bring forth in Oscar Wilde his one great poem, "The Ballad of Reading Gaol;" the utter hopelessness of the condemned felon is communicated to the reader's mind in all its gruesome intensity.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE. By Sir John Lubbock.

An inspiring essay on the blessings of life and the beautiful world in which we live, to which are added strong essays on The Troubles of Life, Labor and Rest, Religion, The Hope of Progress, etc.

CHRISTMAS CAROL. By Chas. Dickens.

This familiar story possesses perennial interest for young and old. Whether regarded as a ghost story, a character study, or a parable, the "Christmas Carol" is one of the most brilliant tales in English literature.

CORSAIR AND LARA. By Lord Byron. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

The extraordinary interest at the present time in Byron demands that two of his complete works be presented in this series. No better understanding of this "wild child of nature" can be obtained than in Corsair and Lara.

COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

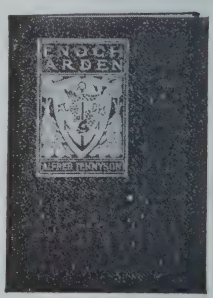
The incident on which the story of The Courtship of Miles Standish is based was a tradition in the family of the author and is a good portrayal of early colonial life.

DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII. By Pliny and Bulwer.

Two interesting descriptions of the Destruction of Pompeii: one by Pliny, the greatest scientist of the ancient world, who wrote as an eye-witness.

DISCOURSES OF EPICTETUS. Selections.

In Sir John Lubbock's "List of the One Hundred Best Books," the Bible is first, the "Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" second, and "Epictetus" third.



ELEGY AND OTHER POEMS. By Thomas Gray.

The "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" occupies as secure a place among English classics as "Hamlet" or "Paradise Lost," but some readers may not realize that several poems by Gray are equally perfect and impressive. This collection contains all of Gray's verse which is really worth knowing.

ENOCH ARDEN. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the most beautiful and pathetic poems in the English language. Had Tennyson never written another line, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest poets of his time.

EVANGELINE. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The purity, sweetness and refinement with which Longfellow delineates the affections of the heart make his poetry the most welcome of visitants at the domestic fireside, and of all his poems, "Evangeline" is probably the most popular.

FRIENDSHIP AND LOVE. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mr. Emerson is no bookish theorist. He does not draw his conclusions from syllogisms, but from his personal observations of men and things.

GOLD BUG. By Edgar Allan Poe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

A story of great effect and absorbing interest, one of those rare books that once opened is not closed until the last paragraph is finished.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS. By Fenelon.

Judiciously made extracts from the letters of the great archbishop. Fenelon united in his personality the sweetness of the saint with the strength of the reformer, and his personal correspondence contains the very heart and soul of religious devotion.

GOLDEN WINGS. A Prose Romance and a Poem. By William Morris.

Two early productions of Morris's with the same title. The Prose Romance, written in 1856, while still a student at Oxford, and the Poem, two years later, both of which show the irresistible and quaint charm apparent in all the later writings of this architect, painter, designer, craftsman, socialist and author—who, on the death of Tennyson, was thought by many would be the next Poet Laureate.

HEROISM AND CHARACTER. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

As Friendship and Love are linked, so Heroism and Character are complementary. In fact, we perceive a strong connection between the four subjects.

HOLY GRAIL. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

This idyl, which must rank as one of the greatest of Tennyson's poetical achievements, came to him suddenly, "as if by a breath of inspiration."

KING OF THE GOLDEN RIVER. By John Ruskin.

"The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication. Later, with the passive assent of Ruskin, the charming allegory was publicly printed, and literature is thereby the gainer of this most pleasing little work.

L'ARLESIENNE. By Alphonse Daudet. With a biographical sketch by M. F. Sweetser.

L'Arlesienne is the best of Daudet's dramas, and is responsible for his fame as a playwright as well as a novelist.

LADY MONTAGU. Selected Letters.

Lady Mary Montagu, who lived from 1690 to 1762, derived her marvellous literary talents from her relationship to Henry Fielding, the novelist, and Sir John Evelyn, the diarist.

LEAVES OF GRASS. Selections. By Walt Whitman.

Walt Whitman is looked upon as the one distinctive American poet, the product of our New World democracy. Though perhaps lacking in grace, his poems are inspired by his enthusiasm and humanitarianism, and in every line the reader sees the personality of the poet—noble, generous and lofty—a great man in the highest sense of the word.

LETTERS TO A YOUNG MAN ABOUT TOWN. By William Makepeace Thackeray.

These charming but comparatively little known essays originally appeared in Punch, and, until the present edition, have been reissued in a volume by themselves but once, and then in a privately printed book now extremely rare. In his humorous and satirical manner, Thackeray shows up the follies and life of a young man about town in the middle of the nineteenth century.

LITTLE BOOK OF GERMAN WISDOM. Collected by Rev. Claude Field, M.A.

A choice collection of epigrams, quotations, etc., from the famous German statesmen, authors, etc.

LORD CHESTERFIELD'S LETTERS. Selections.

These letters of sound counsel and practical advice, addressed to his son, Philip, are what Lord Chesterfield's reputation rests upon, and it is through these that the name of Chesterfield has become symbolic of culture and refinement.

LOVE LETTERS OF A VIOLINIST. By Eric Mackay.

Originally published in England, with the name of the author suppressed, these charming love sonnets created much discussion as to authorship, some even claiming they were the work of Swinburne—from whom only it seemed could originate the fertility of thought, grace of language, ingenuity, skill in the ars poetica, wealth of words, and classic resources.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. I. By L'Abbé Prévost. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. II.

Not only in French, but in the emotional literature of our world has Manon Lescaut taken a classical place, and is a profound lesson drawn from weakness of human nature.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. By Edward Everett Hale.

Written to foster patriotism during the Civil War, "The Man Without a Country" still holds to-day as large a claim as ever on the English-reading public.

MEN AND WOMEN. By Robert Browning.

Browning is known the world over for his deep-veined humanity and rare faculty of dramatic representation. These poems have as much red blood in them as the dramas of Shakespeare. The present volume contains all the principal favorites which have sung themselves into the memory of every reader who loves vigorous, manly poetry.

MILTON. By Lord Macaulay.

A profound and masterly essay on the leader of English literature of the seventeenth century by the leading literary critic of the nineteenth century.

PASSION IN THE DESERT, AND AN EPISODE IN THE REIGN OF TERROR. Selected Prose Works of Honoré de Balzac.

Balzac is thought by many competent authorities to be the greatest novelist of the world. His short stories are quite as remarkable in their way as his longer stories, and the very best of them are to be found in the present collection.

POEMS OF SENTIMENT. By Byron.

Probably no poet in the English-speaking world has ever held as high and well recognized a position as a "sentimentalist" as George Gordon, Lord Byron. His master lyrics dealing with the subject of love, consisting principally of his shorter poems, have been selected and edited with the greatest care for this edition.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. By Benjamin Franklin.

A selection of the best sayings from the numerous issues of "Poor Richard." Helpful and inspiring; the work of a most practical mind, written for a most practical nation.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS. By Dr. John Brown.

"Rab and His Friends," a story of a mastiff, full of beauty and pathos. In this volume the story of Marjorie Fleming, an interesting case of remarkable precociousness, is also published.

RECESSIONAL AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Departmental Ditties.

RIP VAN WINKLE AND THE LEGEND OF SLEEPY HOLLOW. By Washington Irving.

These immortal stories of Dutch life in colonial New York are the best pieces of writing that Mr. Irving contributed to literature. The pathos, quaintness, and wit are impressed upon the reader in a striking way.

ROCHEFOUCAULD'S MAXIMS.

These maxims, written by a cavalier of Richelieu's time, one who knew the world as few have an opportunity of knowing it, are witty, subtle and true. The author has grasped the whole of life, and weakness of human nature, of fashion and conventionalities are strongly depicted.

RUBAIYAT OF OMAR KHAYYAM.

The "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" is one of the greatest contributions that the East has given to literature. The subtle thought, the soft Oriental imagery, and the delicacy of the poetry will appeal to the poetic imagination of all ages.

SALOME. By Oscar Wilde.

Originally published in French, "Salome" was translated into English the following year, and since then translations have appeared in Spanish, Swedish, German, Polish and Russian, showing the truth of the German statement that to-day Oscar Wilde is a "World's Poet" and "Salome" a "World's Play."

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL. By Sheridan.

Sheridan's comedies are second only to Shakespeare's. "The School for Scandal" undoubtedly his masterpiece, has had an undiminished popularity from the moment it was published to the present day.

SELECTED POEMS. By John Boyle O'Reilly.

Through several causes, but not lack of merit, Boyle O'Reilly is fast becoming merely a name to the generation of to-day. Therefore, pains have here been taken to perpetuate the choicest productions of his pen—poems worthy of rank with the masterpieces of English literature.

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY PAPERS. By Addison.

The famous "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers" are not only treasured by all students of English literature, but by historians as well. For nowhere do we find a finer description of English life in the eighteenth century than in these papers. Furthermore, in the character of Sir Roger we find the finest delineation in English literature of an ideal gentleman.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER. By Oliver Goldsmith.

"She Stoops to Conquer" is a comedy abounding in the keenest wit and satire. Human nature is depicted by a masterly observer, and the characters of the play are true to life.

SKETCHES OF YOUNG COUPLES. By Charles Dickens.

Some of the earlier sketches of the immortal Dickens, in which, however, are seen the clear and wonderful characterizations unequaled by any other modern author, and even unsurpassed in his later and better known works. His people live before you.

SOME FRUITS OF SOLITUDE. Reflections and Maxims. By William Penn.

"To quote a book like this were impossible; at least one can hand it on, with a wrench, one to another. Some of the 'Fruits' are sounder, juicier, and grown against a sunnier wall of experience than others, but all are delicate, and the little basket which holds them will be found in all times and places a peaceful and sweet companion."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE. By Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

In the "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a most exquisite series of love poems, we have Mrs. Browning at her best, and in sentiment and lofty rhyme she is at times truly Shakespearian.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT. By Matthew Arnold.

An epoch-making essay, by one of the most cultured, practical and inspiring minds of our century.

TALES OF A WAYSIDE INN. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Containing some of the best of his shorter poems, the first part of which was brought out in 1863, and which met with immediate success.

THOUGHTS OF MARCUS AURELIUS. Selections.

Marcus Aurelius was the purest and loftiest of the pagan philosophers. "His great work, 'The Thoughts,'" says Lecky, "not only forms one of the most impressive, but also forms one of the truest books in the whole range of religious literature."

UNDINE. By Baron Friedrich de la Motte-Fouque.

The charming and graceful narrative, Undine, is a gem in German literature. It breathes of the fresh fragrance of the woods, and is animated by beautiful thoughts that people the sea and air with nymphs and spirits.

THE VALUE OF TIME AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Sir John Lubbock.

Further maxims and conclusions of a great and wise optimist as well as a thoroughly modern thinker and teacher.

VAMPIRE AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Barrack Room Ballads.

VIRGINIBUS PUERISQUE. By Robert Louis Stevenson.

It is refreshing to find a work for boys and girls written by a man of genius, "Virginibus Puerisque" stands high among Mr. Stevenson's writings, and is enjoyed by both old and young.

VISION OF SIR LAUNFAL. By James Russell Lowell.

This great poem is drawn from the famous romance of King Arthur and the Holy Grail, a theme which has furnished inspiration to so many great minds. The "Vision of Sir Launfal" is the best of Lowell's shorter poems.

WERTHER. By J. W. von Goethe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

To appreciate the romantic and sentimental nature of the mighty Goethe one must read Werther. Though o'ershadowed by the author's other works, yet Werther alone would have made him immortal.

WILL O' THE MILL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH. By R. L. Stevenson.

This little parable of a life contains a wonderful moral and is also an irresistibly fascinating story in itself, written in the most exquisite English. Many critics think it Stevenson's masterpiece.

WIT AND WISDOM. By Sidney Smith.

Extracts from Smith's writing and conversations which flash with repartee, good-tempered satire, and wit. The comments on America and Americans are alone worth the price of the little book.

GENTLE ART OF COOKING WIVES

A splendid book of rare humor, especially suited to give to a young man about to be married. Companion volume to "How to Cook Husbands." Hundreds of copies have been sold as engagement and wedding gifts.

This is one of the best books of humor to give a bride. It is a clean, cleverly written story, brimful of good fun and common sense.

4 x 6. Cloth, $1.00 Net

HOW TO COOK HUSBANDS

Boston Beacon says: "Her accounts abound in wit that, like Benjamin Franklin's, calls for a laugh for its fun and at the same time conveys a sermon that sticks to the memory like a burr."

Success says: "One of the best books of the season."

Los Angeles Express says: "A delightful study of human nature."

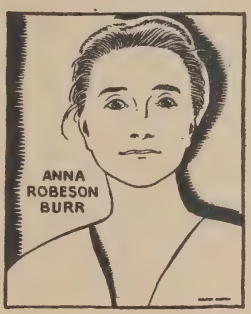
PALLUDIA

By Anna Robeson Burr



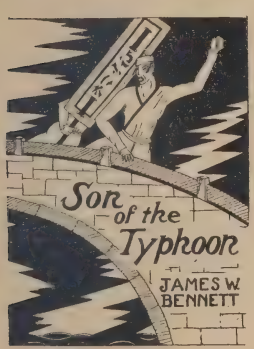
Those who have read with pleasure Mrs. Burr's earlier novels . . . "The House on Charles Street," "St. Helios," "West of the Moon," etc. . . . will be charmed with the depth, color and technique of her latest work, Palludia. The story opens on the Maine coast with the two brothers, Mark and Gregory Forrest, the former a small-minded but heavily determined American business man, who marches over his wife and son to moderate and self-exaggerated success. The other brother whom Mark's son, Amory, resembles, refuses to be enmeshed in Babbitonian existence, and eventually drops out of sight. Amory's mysterious search takes him to England, France and Mussolini's very doorstep. The world of finance, the world of letters, of art and of international intrigue is handled with Mrs. Burr's deft and fascinating touch.

12 mo., $2.50

SON OF THE TYPHOON

By James W. Bennett

A powerful and typically true story of modern China, by the author of "Manchu Cloud," "The Yellow Corsair," etc. This time the setting is Shanghai, one of the hot-beds of anti-foreign agitation, and the protagonist is a student of aristocratic upbringing, whose character and ideas are complicated by a strain of American blood, unknown to himself.



In an amazing alternation from the Chinese to Western viewpoint, the narrative of Hen-li's turbulent career becomes a valuable and highly readable contribution to our understanding of the Chinese turmoil.

EVA'S APPLES

A STORY OF JAZZ AND JASPER

By William Gerhardi

The first novel in three years by the brilliant author of "Futility" and "The Polyglots" has been enthusiastically received by reviewers and public alike, and reorders are making heavy demands on the presses. As to the critics, here are a few of their comments:

Wit and manners, satire and fantasy and humor. . . . Like Max Beerbohm, Huxley at his best, and Jean Girardoux, Gerhardi does it right.—New York Times.

To be interesting is surely to be in a state of grace, and Eva's Apples is interesting.—Heywood Broun in "The-Book-of-the-Month-Club News."

Extremely clever and wildly nutty.—Isabel Patterson.

—Frank Swinnerton in the Chicago Tribune.

You simply must hear what he has to say.
—Dorothea Lawrance Mann in The Boston Transcript.

Amusing, brilliant and quite, quite mad.—N. Y. Herald Tribune.

Heady and deceptive like absinthe.—London Spectator. $2.50

A few signed copies, specially bound and boxed, $10.00

PERFECTLY SCANDALOUS

OR "THE IMMORALITY LADY"

A COMEDY IN THREE ACTS

By William Gerhardi

This mad little drama has the Tyrol for its background, but the characters are of the polyglot race of Gerhardi's own creation,—and yet how like Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So they really are! A sly, uproarious and daring satire. $1.25

TROPICAL FRUIT

By Alfred Harding

In many respects poignant, "Tropical Fruit" is in all respects a strong and unforgettable picture of white and native life around the Caribbean Sea. A young American goes south in the Oil business, succumbs to local atmosphere, tries to lift himself by his boot-straps, and, whether or not he fails—the story tells you that—he has a worthwhile message to those who follow in his footsteps.

The author is the second son of the Rev. Alfred Harding, Bishop of Washington until his death in 1923. After the war he went to Cuba with the American Foreign Banking Corporation and the Sinclair Cuba Oil Co. After serving on the Washington Daily News he became editor of the Actor's Equity Bulletin.

YOU

By G. Sheila Donisthorpe

Ray Long, of the Hearst Magazines who discovered "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," also picked "You" as a "perfect" love story.

The author tells an age-old tale, though ever new, and tells it with startling originality.

It is the story of a gay and quite modern girl and her passionate love for a brilliant and somewhat promiscuous young singer; of a love unfettered by custom or convention; of the singer's defection and the cold despair which follows; of bitter months and wasted waiting and at last the reawakening to a new and finer outlook.

An intense and moving novel filled with splendid character drawing.

LEARNING TENNIS

By Betty Nuthall

Playing at Wimbledon in the summer of 1927, Betty Nuthall, the sixteen-year-old English schoolgirl, defeated Mrs. Molla Mallory, seven times American champion, 2-6, 6-2, 6-0. Later she came to America with the British Wightman Cup Team. She won her international match against Miss Jacobs of California. Playing on strange courts in the American championship, she defeated all comers except Helen Wills. Teaching tennis is one thing—learning it quite another. Here is an unpretentious book written from the point of view of one who is still learning.

FOOTBALL: TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Bill Roper,—(Princeton, '02)

Football is fast becoming the rival of Baseball as our great national game. It is for that reason that your attention is again called to this great book on the game, so heartily received last fall by coaches, players and fans. Roper, Princeton coach, is perhaps the greatest American authority, and his book is written for the school-boy as much as for the expert.

Octavo, Illus. from Photos, $2.50

ARMENIA AND THE NEAR EAST

By Dr. Fridtjof Nansen

An arresting book by the High Commissioner of the League of Nations for war prisoners and refugees, who in 1920-1922 was responsible for the repatriation of 427,000 prisoners of war. He has studied the Armenian problem on behalf of the League, working out a scheme of giving Armenian refugees a home in Russian Armenia on land which, irrigated, will become one of the garden spots of the world. A profoundly moving, tragic record of the Armenians, whom the Young Turks deliberately set themselves to exterminate during the Great War, with the result that about a million of them were wiped out. The book is an eloquent appeal for justice. Octavo, Fully Illustrated, $3.00

A FRENCHMAN AT OUR CRADLE

The Diary of the Marquis de Barbe-Marbois—1779

These are the actual and original letters to his fiancée written from America in the year 1779, by Francois Marquis de Barbe-Marbois, French Consul-General to the United States during the American Revolution. The diary is quaint, witty and of utmost historical importance. Imagine, for example, the Marquis' amusement in learning that a colonist might beat his wife upon payment of a fine of so many pounds; his astonishment, upon mentioning that ladies in France rode astride, to have a gathering of American ladies "blush, hide their faces behind their fans and rush out with a great burst of laughter"; his perplexity in discovering that the words "knees," "shirts," "garters," could not be mentioned, but that one might without giving offense propose to a young lady to "bundle." As a background for these lighter touches there is a serious discussion of gardens, architecture and forms of government, throughout which an old-world attitude toward our crude colonies is strikingly revealed. This observant foreigner travelled throughout the East with George Washington and knew General Putnam. Until today however, his unique journal has been hidden in the vaults of his descendants.

Octavo, $2.00

MAÑANALAND

By John Cudahy

Little is commonly known and less has been written of that great peninsula which reaches from the southern boundary of our own California to the far cape of St. Lucas—a part of Mexico but seemingly not of it.

Mr. Cudahy and his companions, seeking new game territory, set out to "discover" Lower California, and did it. Here is a fascinating record of their sojourn—a vivid description of the country, of the kindly inhabitants and of the luxurious wild life. The text is generously interspersed with photographs. 8vo., Illustrated, $3.00

LOLA THE BEAR

By Henry Milner Rideout

A book for boys that is likely to appeal to their elders, written with care and true literary excellence. The work of the late Henry Milner Rideout was followed by a great multitude of readers, and any of them who have boys of their own will be glad to put into their hands this fine story of a courageous and very human youngster whose quest for his father led him and his Indian companion, Lola, into perilous adventure in the great northern forests. 8vo. Illus. in color and black-and-white, $1.75

CALEB AND THE FRIENDLY ANIMALS

By Albert L. Webster

"This is not a dream story nor a 'Once Upon a Time.' It is an imagination . . . a flight of fancy without relation to truth or fact. It just happened and is full of misrepresentation." So says the author. Well, it will be a lucky child who can happen along with Caleb, guided by the many, many amazing pictures of those strange, friendly animals beyond the hills.

Wide 8vo. With a host of unique pictures, $2.00

THE ADVENTURES OF TOBY SPANIEL

By Alice Crew Gall and Fleming H. Crew

Illustrated by George L. Carlson

Like all young dogs and boys Toby Spaniel longed to go to sea. To be sure the craft was only a river boat and the hands a hap-hazard company of brave little animals,—but an ocean liner and a whole crew of able seamen could not have come more successfully through the dangers of storm and pirates and rocky coasts.

Delightful pictures in color and black-and-white illustrate this charming story of furry mariners, far more than nursery creatures, and suggestive of the famous characters of "The Wind in the Willows." Tall 8vo. Illustrated, $2.00

THE WATER ELF
AND THE MILLER'S CHILD

By Margaret and Mary Baker

Another Baker book, and a worthy successor to The Lost Merbaby, The Black Cats and the Tinker's Wife, The Pixies and the Silver Crown and the rest. Rachel Field in the New York Evening Post has said: "There should always be a new Baker book, to appear as regularly as a Kate Greenaway Almanack"—and there is. Here again is a delicious story, illustrated on every page with the charming silhouettes that have so entered the hearts of little folk. $2.00

THE GOLDEN PRINCE

By Dorothy Heslop Joos—Illustrated by Rhea Wells

A delightful story of a little girl who, wandering from familiar paths, finds herself in the dread home of the witch-folk, in the days when the might of the weird people was supreme; and of how she at length escapes into Fairyland. A lively tale of enchantment and adventure, beautifullly illustrated in color and black-and-white. Large Octavo, $2.00

WHITE SWALLOW

By Emma Gelders Sterne—Illustrated by Edna E. Potter

There has been an astonishing demand for this beautiful little Indian Folk-tale, published last year, and it has been recommended by The American Library Association, The National Child Welfare Association and a large number of library and school lists, the country over. Octavo, Illus., $2.00

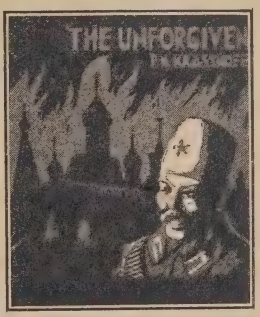
THE UNFORGIVEN

By General P. N. Krassnoff



This great novel of Russia in the toils has been as enthusiastically received as its predecessor (to which it is an epilogue) "From Double-Eagle to Red Flag." Arthur Ruhl in the Saturday Review says: "Compared to Krassnoff's, American fiction seems the mere dancing of marionettes."

8vo., $3.50

HYACINTH

By Dion Clayton Calthrop

A Demi-God visits London and reveals the golden fringe to the grey of life. One of the most exquisite fantasies and elf-like bits of madness conceived in many a day. $2.00

AN ELEGANT HISTORY OF POLITICAL PARTIES

By Samuel H. Ordway, Jr.

Richly embellished with intimate illustrations
By F. Wenderoth Saunders

You who go to the polls this fall: Do you know your country's onions? Do you know, for instance:

Who invented the Democrats? . . . How the elephant got his trunk? . . . Who said: "I would rather write than be President." . . . Who was the father of the Constitution? Whether he was a bachellor? Why a machine can't run without oil?

Find out in this learned treatise—For Policemen, School Children, Gunmen, Society, Bootleggers and all other politicians. Quarto, $2.00

LADIES THIRD

By Mary Lena Wilson, F. R. G. S.
Illustrated by William P. Trent, Jr.

How to go, where to go, what to see and how to see it in 6 weeks in Europe, all on $600. Gay, irreverent, charming, amusing and invaluable.

"Just how delightfully a European trip can be made 'on the cheap,' has been told in rollicking and illuminating fashion by Miss Wilson."—New York World.

"Contains the holiday spirit."—New York Herald Tribune.

The author has been recently made a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society,—one of the few American women to be so honored. 8vo., Illus., $2.50

QUEENS AND CRICKETS

By Mildred Whitney Stillman

A charming book of verse by the winner of the Junior League Sonnet Prize for 1927. The author, known to all lovers of contemporary verse, felicitously combines a pagan love of beauty with an austere classicism. 8vo., $1.25

THE HEAD HUNTERS OF THE AMAZON

By F. W. Up de Graff
Introduction by Kermit Roosevelt

The growing interest in South America has called renewed attention to this splendid record of exploration and adventure in the unknown tropics. An edition is now available at $3.50. Fully Illustrated.

PERIODICALS

HISPANIC AMERICAN HISTORICAL REVIEW. A quarterly review dealing with the study of the history of the Latin-American countries in all of its aspects conducted with the co-operation of a representative group of American scholars. Subscription, $4.00 a year.

A limited number of sets of complete files of the Review are still available at $5.00 the volume.

THE SOUTH ATLANTIC QUARTERLY. A magazine which serves as a medium for the expression of views on social, literary, and historical subjects. While not limited to a section, it contains many articles dealing with the South. It is now in its twenty-sixth year. Subscription, $3.00 a year.

Owing to a fire, there are no complete files of the South Atlantic Quarterly available. Several sets almost complete are still to be had. For prices, write to the Manager of Duke University Press, Durham, North Carolina.

STUDIES IN AMERICAN LITERATURE. Duke University will establish in the near future a quarterly journal devoted to research in the field of American literature. This periodical will be "published by the Duke University Press with the co-operation of the American Literature Group of the Modern Language Association of America." Its scope and purpose are indicated in its name, STUDIES IN AMERICAN LITERATURE: A Quarterly Journal of American Literary History, Criticism, and Bibliography.

The board of editors consists of the following well-known representatives in the field of American literature: Jay B. Hubbell, Duke University, chairman; Kenneth B. Murdock, Harvard University; Ralph Leslie Rusk, Columbia University; Fred Lewis Pattee, Pennsylvania State College, and W. B. Cairns, the University of Wisconsin.

The journal will fill a need which has been felt for some time. The support given it by the very active American literature scholars in the Modern Language Association will ensure its high quality. The first number will probably appear in January or March, 1929. The subscription price will probably be four dollars a year.

AUGUST, 1928

Elements of Electrical Engineering, Franklin and Esty.

Volume I—Direct Currents . . . . Price $4.50

Volume II—Alternating Currents . . . " 4.00

This two-volume treatise has been very extensively used as a text book in our technical schools.

Dynamos and Motors, Franklin and Esty . . . Price $3.00

This is a one-volume arrangement of the simpler parts of Franklin and Esty's ELEMENTS OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

Elements of Electrical Engineering, W. S. Franklin.

Volume I—D. C. and A. C. Machines and Systems . Price $4.50

Volume II—Elec. Lighting and Misc. Application . " 3.00

This two-volume treatise is much simpler than Franklin and Esty's ELEMENTS, and several teachers who have used it have found it highly satisfactory,—

(a) For a first course or "Survey course" for Electrical Engineering Students, and

(b) For use by Students of Civil, Mechanical, Chemical and Mining Engineering.

(c) Volume I alone is suitable for Trade School and Night School students who have had some Training in Elementary Algebra and Geometry.

Elements of Electrical Engineering, Franklin and Dawes.

Ready about Oct. 1, 1928.

This is a one-volume treatise on Electrical Engineering suitable as a first course for students of Electrical Engineering, and especially suitable for use by engineering students who are not specializing in Electrical Engineering.

Dynamo Laboratory Manual, Franklin and Esty.

Volume II—Electrical Measurements;
Lab. Studies in Elec. and Mag. . " 1.50

Volume III—Photometric Measurements;
Lab. Studies in Light and Sound . . 1.25

Elementary Electricity and Magnetism, . . . Price 1.25

This book presents the elementary theory of electricity and magnetism without departing for a moment from the things and conditions which are met with in practice; it sets forth a point of view that has been urged by the authors for many years, and it deserves very careful examination and trial by teachers of Applied Electricity in Technical High Schools.

Advanced Electricity and Magnetism, Price $2.50

This book presents certain important topics (Magnetism of Iron, Ship's Magnetism and the Compensation of the Compass, Inductance, Electrostatics, and Electromagnetic Wave Motion) in a manner that is unique in its simple but rigorous mathematical style and in its vivid emphasis on what is practically real.

Mechanics for Engineers, Franklin and Bliss.

Ready about Oct. 1, 1928.

A vividly physical treatise on Statics and Dynamics with a large number of carefully selected problems.

Precision of Measurement, Franklin.

Price $ .50

Simple Tables, for Students of Physics and Chemistry

Price per 100, $2.50

The Elements of Calculus,

Franklin, MacNutt and Charles . . . . Price $2.00

A teacher of mathematics in a well-known technical school who uses this book states that he finds it highly satisfactory. In his opinion the book is unique in its directness and intelligibility, and it leaves nothing to be desired in the matter of precision and rigor.

Bill's School and Mine, W. S. Franklin.

A collection of Essays on Education . . . . Price $1.00

These essays are so compact and so forcible that the Independent called the book "A Package of Dynamite," and the reviewer in The Elementary School Journal (University of Chicago) says "Impossible to read these essays lying down."

ALEXANDER, JAMES

Thought-Control in Everyday Life. A practical, sincere, and helpful book, by an experienced psychologist, which tells how to control the mind and all its activities in the rush and stress of modern life and thus promote daily happiness and business efficiency. The first half of the volume is devoted to all the factors that keep people from controlling their thoughts; the second half explains just how individuals may overcome these hindrances, how they may begin to be masters of their thought, what aids to employ, and finally how to create a personal thought-control system and practise it in everyday life. Mr. Alexander's method can be used alike in the busy outer world and in the quiet privacy of the home. It is for women as well as for men. The author has developed a simple yet effective system for the curing of evil thought habits, and the forming of good ones, for the controlling of emotional states, the banishing of worries and regrets, and the focusing of all the energies of the mind upon the work in hand. There are sections on thought-control in study, in a crowd, in public speaking, in ill health, in every activity of life.
12mo, Cloth, 275 pages. $2, net.

"A book such as 'Thought-Control in Everyday Life' has in it the qualities that would make thousands more intelligent about themselves, happier, more cheerful and more successful. It is a veritable path to 'know thyself,' and the path in this case is very easy to tread: arguments are easily understood: methods are clearly expressed: we see ourselves in a clear looking-glass. As a so-called 'self helpful book' I know not its equal for simplicity and easy understanding."—Edward W. Bok.

BRAZELTON, ETHEL M. COLSON

Writing and Editing for Women. A complete guide for women who wish to prepare themselves for professional writing through home study—a text-book for the use of schools in teaching journalism to women. The author's experience has given her exceptional qualifications for preparing a practical manual of this sort. She was special writer for the Chicago Tribune and Chicago Record-Herald, and later became literary editor of the last-named paper, and has done practically every kind of newspaper and magazine work; she is now instructor in the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University. This volume covers a very large field with surprizing completeness and unusual clarity, and in it the author seeks to pass along to others such methods of craftsmanship and salesmanship which have won success for her as free-lance writer, critic, and editor. The thirteen main chapters are: How to become a reporter; how to write for children; how to run a woman's department; what club editors must know and do; why women succeed with civic subjects; how to become a "publicity secretary"; the handling of commercial propaganda and advertising; the requirements of a house organ or trade paper; women as literary and dramatic critics; how to write about moving pictures; the technique of editing and editorial writing; how to write feature articles that will be accepted; how to syndicate them; how to get and keep a position as reporter or editor. In fact, every field is covered in which the ambitious, up-to-date woman can reasonably hope to earn money as a writer or editor. A score of prominent writers and editors in various lines have contributed several pages of advice which the reader will find of unusual value.

BRUCE, H. ADDINGTON

Your Growing Child. A volume of such specific help and such gripping interest to every parent that it may seem surprizing that no other writer has produced one of similar character. H. Addington Bruce, author of "Nerve Control and How to Gain It," "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," etc., is an authority on psychology and mind-body relationships, and is one of the few men who can write about a scientific subject in language which the average person may readily understand. What the parent-reader will most appreciate is the fact that the author does not lay down hard-and-fast rules for the management of the young, realizing that no book, however excellent, can serve as an adequate substitute for the exercise of parental common sense and intuition in dealing with children. It does, however, give the most helpful instructions for the exercise of intuition and common sense, for thinking and acting, and in general for conserving home life in the best sense of the term. Summarized, what the parent will find in this volume is the latest research, the latest established principles of psychology as applied to the character training and mental training of children—a cheerful guide and one which is full of encouragement and practical common sense.

CROY, MAE SAVELL (Mrs. Homer Croy)

How Women Can Make Money. An intensely practical volume full of workable suggestions as to how a woman may make money. It contains no trite advice regarding house-to-house canvassing or such like schemes, but presents real ideas upon which any woman may found a means of providing an income to an extent limited only by her own energies and abilities. The author knows something of the necessity of earning money. At the age of seventeen she was thrust out into the world to make her own living. A Southern girl of an old Southern family with all the background and tradition of the South behind her, she struggled through country-school teaching, office-work, secretarial work, and finally into her own business. She is now writing plays. As a result of her own experience, she has a sympathetic attitude which is evidenced throughout the volume. Her entire book is flavored with a thorough understanding of the value of energetically and enthusiastically pursuing whatever line of activities the reader may decide upon. The following chapter headings will give an excellent idea of the practical value of the work: If a Woman Suddenly Has to Support Herself; For the Woman Who Wants to Earn Money in Her Home; For the Woman Who Can Go Outside Her Home to Earn Money; Opportunities in Radio; For the Woman Who Can Give Only an Hour or Two a Day to Earning Money; For the Young Woman Who Wants to Earn Money; The Elderly Woman Who Needs to Earn Extra Money; For the Woman Who is Physically Vigorous; For the Woman Who has Never Worked Except in Her Home; For the Genteel Lady Who Wishes to Make Extra Money; For the Woman Who Lives in a Large City; For the Woman Who Lives in the Country or in a Small Town; Don't Waste Your Time On.....
A most helpful and valuable work.

DALTON, FRANK EUGEN

Swimming Scientifically Taught. (Seventh Edition.) Completely rewritten, and brought up to date with much new material, records of the latest Channel swims, and 87 illustrations of swimming positions and strokes specially posed for this work. The author, expert swimmer and instructor himself, and son of the Captain Davis Dalton who swam the English Channel in 1890, describes all the up-to-date strokes used by modern swimmers, including the famous crawl, trudgen, trudgen-crawl, breast, over-arm; diving, floating, sculling, rolling, treading water, plunging, trick swimming, water-polo, somersaults, etc. The author gives details of the successful English Channel swimmers, from Capt. Webb in 1875 to Gertrude Ederle and others in 1926, describing their achievements. He also records the exploit of George Young whose record-breaking feat in swimming from Catalina Island to the California shore was accomplished with the trudgen-crawl stroke in January, 1927. A chapter is devoted to methods of rescuing and reviving drowning persons and what to do in emergencies. For years this book has been a standard manual of instruction for men, women, and children. The method of teaching is so plainly explained and so splendidly illustrated by photographs and diagrams that every movement and position can be accurately copied.

FINCK, HENRY T.

My Adventures in the Golden Age of Music. Autobiography of a man who for forty-three years was music editor of the New York Evening Post and was considered the most brilliant writer of his day. With the same searching scrutiny and analysis that characterized his musical criticisms he has examined his own life and produced a volume of personal reminiscences that begins with his earliest boyhood recollections and goes through to the end of his distinguished journalistic career. He recounts his boyhood romances, his college-day adventures, his leisurely wanderings in Europe, and his personal appraisals of the musical celebrities with whom he came in contact as a newspaper man. He quotes liberally from his mental diary as to his acquaintances and friendships among the distinguished men and women he met, including Theodore Thomas, the de Reszkes, Adelina Patti, Anton Seidl, Emma Eames, Emma Calvé, Lillian Nordica, Nellie Melba, Enrico Caruso, Marie Jeritza, Amelita Galli Curci, and many others who have appeared on the operatic or concert stage in America during the last half century. The author has a brilliant style of writing which sustains the reader's interest throughout.

"Place Finck's 'My Adventures in the Golden Age of Music' in company with Huneker's 'Steeplejack' and you have the two chattiest, most discursively entertaining books of their kind ever written in this country!"—Charles L. Buchanan, in the New York Herald-Tribune.

"What has always impressed the readers of Henry Finck's colorful observations in our world of music has been decidedly and pre-eminently his fine courage to sustain his own opinions, the while voicing no corrosive acrimony in as frank disapprovals as he found necessary. His natural kindness and understanding, his belief in constructive criticism, made it worth while for any conscientious artist to pause, peruse, and ponder."—Geraldine Farrar.

"This autobiography of Henry T. Finck, for forty years the distinguished musical critic of New York, is without exception the most interesting book of its kind published for many years. Not only does it give a fascinating account of the author's remarkable training for and interesting experience in his chosen profession, but it is an accurate history of the music of New York for the last half century, and contains charming pen-pictures of all the great artists and composers who have been heard in America during that period, many of whom were his devoted friends. This delightful book has not a dull page in it, and should appeal to every music lover and find a place on the shelves of every library."—Mrs. Theodore Thomas.

FISCHER, LOUIS, M.D.

Health-Care of the Baby. (Seventeenth Edition Revised.) The importance of this new edition may be realized when it is understood that the recent advances made in the management and feeding of normal infants have made necessary radical changes in diet, particularly in the quantity of milk given. Complete instructions are given for feeding healthy and full-term infants as well as for premature, sick, and delicate babies. What to do in emergencies and accidents is well covered and wise counsel is given regarding what action to take in treating the principal diseases and affections of childhood, including a complete daily routine to follow in airing, bathing, clothing, and diet. The principal elements in the prevention of disease and in the hardening of infants against taking cold are completely described. A new chapter has been added describing the use of the Ultra Violet Rays in the treatment of rickets for a general restorative and their influence on the growth of the child. Also the use of Vita Glass for the summer home is fully described. A classic for the nursery and the home.

FITCH, HENRY

The Perfect Calendar. This is a newly revised edition of this standard work which now contains, in addition to a calendar for every year of the Christian Era, a chronological record of important events in the history of the world from B.C. 10000 to 1926 A.D. The most practical of all perpetual calendars because it requires no manipulation and adjustment of mechanical devices, no wheels, sectors, pointers, or sliding-slips to consume time and tax patience. Its accuracy is absolutely assured—among other reasons because the work consists of but 14 different annual calendars arranged in the regular form of ordinary monthly calendars which cover all dates in the Julian or in the Gregorian System. Although intended primarily for commercial use and for modern dates, it will be found of special value to students of profane and sacred history.

FITZPATRICK, BENEDICT

Ireland and the Foundations of Europe. (Companion volume to the author's previous work, "Ireland and the Making of Britain.") This new volume presents a series of revelations which may prove revolutionary to the average person whose study of history has been through orthodox channels. Here, indeed, is an arresting story, founded firmly on fact, to which future historians must refer if the history of Europe is to be truthfully presented. The author spent many years in the preparation of this volume and searched into documents in many languages, in many museums, and in many out-of-the-way sources. It covers a period of time which is outstandingly poorly represented in histories—the Middle Ages. While of highest value to historians, this volume is of equal if not greater value to lay-readers—to average men and women interested in history and truth, and to those of Gaelic or Scottish descent.

GOBRECHT, REV. WALTER R. Pastor, St. John's Reformed Church, Chambersburg, Pa.

The Gospel Message in Great Poems. With an introduction by George L. Omrake, A.M., Ph.D., President, Ursinus College. A series of beautiful sermons based upon poems or sections of poems by great poets, the poem supplying the background for the main body of the sermon with the sermon-texts always Biblical. This is a unique idea in the preparation of sermons, and was developed because of the feeling the author has that there is a close kinship between the poet and the minister of the Gospel. Edwin Markham says "the poet's device is that deep saying written upon an ancient page, 'We look not at the things that are seen and temporal but at the things which are not seen and eternal.'" That the same is true of the minister of the Gospel goes without saying. The combination of poetry and Biblical texts is productive of sermons unusually rich in beauty and inspirational appeal. To the minister this volume will provide a source of stimulation and also a source of ideas which he may develop to almost an endless extent. The lay-reader will find the Word of God brought to him vividly and beautifully through these sermons. The author's style is delightfully direct and appealing yet vigorous and convincing in presenting the truth.

GOUDISS, C. HOUSTON

Eating Vitamines. (Third edition, completely revised.) A standard text-book on healthful eating in which are given 200 tested recipes and menus for spring, summer, autumn, and winter, of delicious foods that are rich in vitamines, and which tend to overcome or prevent digestive disturbances and the breaking down of organic functions. The author, who is a national authority on nutrition, gives the latest information about the all-important vitamines, defining their essentiality to health, growth, and physical development. In simple terms he tells what foods (bread, meats, vegetables, fruits, etc.) contain Vitamines A, B, C, D, and the newly-discovered Vitamine E which is considered essential to animal reproduction. A chapter is devoted to "Wholesome Foods for the Little Child."

LAUCK, W. JETT

Political and Industrial Democracy: 1776-1926. The author, who was formerly Professor of Economics and Politics at Washington and Lee University, shows how we evolved our Political Democracy—life, liberty, pursuit of happiness, government by consent of the governed, etc.—out of the Revolutionary War. He then shows how, out of the World War, we advanced toward Industrial Democracy—which aims at an end of war between Capital and Labor, new relations of employer and employee, new methods of promoting efficiency and productivity, and new educational and spiritual forces working toward the recognition of Industry as primarily an opportunity for service rather than purely for profit. The book bristles with historical facts and gives the names of twenty of the largest railroads and industrial corporations in America that have entered into cooperative plans with employees, and describes the plans in detail.

"I find it a most excellent account and a very needed description of trends in American life. I shall expect to make frequent use of the book and refer it to my students."—Prof. Wm. F. Ogburn, Department of Economics and Sociology, Barnard College, N. Y.

"Any who have not been following closely the currents of modern industrial organization, as it relates to the manual worker, will find in this volume an acceptable sourcebook of documents and descriptive facts about those activities in a democratic direction, which are taking place outside of the labor movement itself."—American Federationist.

LEVINTHAL, DR. ISRAEL H. Rabbi of the Brooklyn Jewish Center.

Steering or Drifting—Which? Solutions of Every-Day Problems Confronting the American Jew. With a Prefatory Note by the Very Rev. Dr. J. H. Hertz, Chief Rabbi of the British Empire. A sincere and intensely interesting volume dealing with such phases of Jewish life as: How shall Jewish children be held and guided in the new American environment? What shall be done to prevent empty synagogues as well as empty churches? Should the Jew amalgamate with the Christian? Encouraging answers to these and many similar questions will be found in the twenty-seven sermons and addresses, delivered on various occasions, which comprise this book. The author stands for the conservative ideals of American Jewry, opposing the tendency of the younger generation to adopt unworthy ways at the expense of character. One theme—how to preserve the ancient faith and yet march with the American life of to-day—runs all through the volume, making it alive and timely for Jew and Christian alike. A charming feature of the book is its author's apt use of Hebrew legends and wise Rabbinic lore to drive home almost every point that he makes. His style is marked by a sincerity, a limpid clarity, and a gentle persuasiveness that cannot fail to make the book welcome in every Jewish household.

NEWMAN, E. M.

Seeing Egypt and the Holy Land. The third and latest volume in the author's delightful "Traveltalk" series. This work, like his earlier books, "Seeing Italy," and "Seeing Russia," is a delightfully readable account of the things and places most worth seeing, and is enlivened, on almost every page, with anecdotes and personal experiences of the author. The first sight that Mr. Newman presents us is Cairo with its kaleidoscopic mingling of races and creeds, then the Sphinx and Pyramids, up the Nile on a house-boat viewing the stupendous temples of Luxor and Karnak, the Tombs of the Kings, and the mysterious ruins of Philae. On the way to Palestine the author takes us into the Arabian Desert, by railroad-train and caravan; then to the city of Petra, one of the mysteries and marvels of history. Then, by way of Demascus, Baalbek, and the mountains of Judea to the Holy Land, visiting all the sacred places from Nazareth to Jerusalem. At every turn the author has something of popular interest to relate, some fragrant memory of the Old or New Testament to recall and, wherever possible, the scene is pictured with the aid of his wonderful camera. Among the three hundred photographic reproductions, all original, are some superb views of forbidden Mecca and its sacred Kaaba; probably the best existing photographs of Petra; views of Tel Aviv, near Jaffa, and other Jewish colonies in Palestine; the Holy Sepulcher at Jerusalem, and glimpses of present-day life in Bethlehem, in Cana, on the Sea of Galilee, and other spots associated with the life of Jesus.

8vo, Cloth, with 300 illustrations from original photographs. $5.00, net.

Seeing Italy. There have been many books published on Italy but this is unique. It is not a guide, nor a history, nor an academic description but an intimate story by an experienced traveler who tells of his visits to the most interesting and most popular places in this land which is so popular with tourists. The aim of the volume is to familiarize the traveler with the chief places and objects of interest, as well as to give him useful hints. Realizing that tastes differ, the author has written a book which includes something for everybody—for those who prefer art, architecture, ruins, history, human interest, and scenery. To see thoroughly what is included in this book will be sufficient to tax the energy of the most ambitious tourist whose time is limited. Yet it is a volume which every traveler will find of outstanding value—one which should be purchased long before a guide-book is thought of, and carried by the traveler in Italy for quick reference to the places which he is to visit. The host of illustrations will prove particularly fascinating as well as informative, and will make the identification of points of interest extremely easy.
8vo, Cloth. 428 pages, with 298 photographic illustrations, $5.00, net.

Seeing Russia. The story of a great human experiment, told in breezy narrative, illustrated with hundreds of the superb photographs that have delighted the author's "Traveltalk" audiences. Mr. Newman is the first and only traveler in Soviet Russia who has been allowed to photograph whatever he pleased, and to take his pictures out of the country absolutely uncensored. The authorities knew that he was no Communist, but such was their faith in his fairness, and their desire for American publicity, that they gave him a free hand, even in the locked palace rooms of the dead Czar's family. Again and again he was arrested or threatened with the fixed bayonets of local guards, but the magic permit from Moscow always prevailed. The result is a unique book. Mr. Newman takes the reader all over Russia, from Petrograd to the Crimea, from the Volga Valley to the mountain Republics of the Caucasus, visiting the more important cities, and chatting all the way upon the human-interest aspects of the things seen. Toward Bolshevism the author maintains a neutral attitude, simply explaining at each step what the eye of the camera reveals. The book leaves one with the conviction that here at last is an accurate presentation of what Mr. Newman calls "the first act in a wonderful drama that involves a considerable portion of the human race."
8vo, Cloth, 412 pages, with 300 photographic illustrations. $5 net.

PARIS, W. FRANCKLYN

Napoleon's Legion. A complete history of the creation of the Legion of Honor, the most famous of the orders of Napoleon, together with the record of the establishment of the American Society of the French Legion of Honor of which the author is one of the founders. After tracing older orders of chivalry in France, the author takes up the present National order from the moment of its conception, and chronicles its varying fortunes through the Governments of Louis XVIII, Charles X, Louis Phillippe, Napoleon III, and the two intervening Republics. A special chapter is devoted to Foreign Légionnaires, another to the American Society of the Legion of Honor, etc. Throughout the book there are items of special interest to Americans, as the late War holds a large place in the recital. Records of regiments having won the right to carry the Legion of Honor with the regimental colors are given, as are the cities entitled to incorporate the insignia of the Legion in their coats-of-arms. The law governing admission into the Order; promotion; the wearing of insignia; the privileges and obligations attached to the quality of Légionnaire, are gone into at length, as are all topics that a member of the Order would value. In addition there are chapters describing the educational institutions maintained by the Legion for the daughters of members in reduced circumstances; the palace of Salm which houses the Grande Chancellerie of the Order; the new Museum of the Légion d'Honneur, just opened, and a chapter devoted to women Légionnaires, in which space is given to relief work by American women during the late War. Profusely illustrated.

Subscription Edition. Superbly bound in imported green polished Morocco leather, artistically pressed and tooled in the Empire style, printed on specially-made pure rag fiber book paper, illustrations on double-coated white plate paper, except the Honor Diplomas which are reproduced on white parchment. Two plates of Napoleon and the Legion of Honor decoration are in color. All copies of the Subscription Edition are signed personally by General Dubail, the Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honor. Of an edition limited to 600 copies bearing General Dubail's signature, only a few are now available. $50.00, net.

PETRE, EDWIN ROBERT

Shrines of the Great in Europe. A unique tourist directory of the birthplaces, homes, story scenes and working background of more than two thousand authors, painters, sculptors, musicians, dramatists, scientists, explorers, philosophers, and others—past and present—who have left their mark on modern culture. The entire contents are arranged alphabetically for quick and easy reference; first by countries and cities, so that when you are in a certain town you simply glance at the proper page and see if the place contains any shrine that you ought to visit; then alphabetically by names, so that if you are following the trail of some great master, a glance at his name will show the places he helped to make famous, and recall the outstanding facts about his life and work. So often have travelers through storied Europe wished to identify literary or artistic landmarks and have seen them without knowing it, that the author has provided this—the only handbook of its kind in existence. No careful tourist will be content to leave it out of his kit-bag.

When You Go to Europe. A handy pocket-manual for the European tourist and for the thousands of people who "want to go to Europe some day." The book answers practically every question one could ask about the trip, from the time of getting the passport and buying the ticket for the ocean voyage up to the moment when Europe has been "done" and arrangements are being made to return home. It gives steamship rates, ocean-travel customs, European railway rates, cost of living abroad, tells how to get along without knowing foreign languages and describes the most interesting sights in each of the 29 countries of Europe. 160 pages, besides colored maps of European countries, including a helpful distance map. Mr. Petre was commissioned to write this handbook by 25 leading transatlantic steamship companies and while it was still in manuscript form it was submitted to some 400 steamship and railway officials for suggestions. It is therefore absolutely authoritative as well as complete.

POST, EMILY

Etiquette—"The Blue Book of Social Usage." Entirely New 1928 Edition. The first edition of Mrs. Post's "Etiquette" has already gone through seventeen printings. The intense interest in the subject, and the many changes that have occurred in the social amenities in recent years have created the necessity for this new edition which is, in effect, an entirely new work. The sum and substance of answers to thousands of letters received by the author during the past six years, and the interpretations of the rules of conduct by the young moderns, where actually accepted by Best Society, are also embodied in this new Etiquette. Many new illustrations have been interspersed throughout the author's worldly wise and illuminating text. In addition to covering all of the subjects embraced in the first edition, this new "Etiquette" contains, among other new features, the following: Etiquette in Washington and in State Capitals; A Complete List of Diplomatic, Ecclesiastical, and Official Precedence (information which was formerly considered unobtainable;) American Neighborhood Customs; How Young Householders Can Cook, Wait, and be Charming Hostesses Without the Aid of Servants; Flat Silver and Its Usage; Weddings, including Catholic and Jewish Weddings and the Wedding Where Both Bride's and Groom's Parents are Divorced; Etiquette of Women in Business; Instructions for a Guest in a Hotel and for Those Who Take Meals in Restaurants, including Scale of Tips, etc. In fact, there is no necessary detail of modern etiquette that is not clearly explained in brilliant literary style in this distinguished new volume. Unquestionably the authority.
Crown 8vo., Cloth, with many new illustrations and diagrams. Indexed, $4, net. Bound in full leather, gilt-edged paper, boxed, $7.50.

POWELL-OWEN, W.

The Complete Poultry Book. An entirely new work designed to present the latest ideas and methods of poultry-raising in such a way as to meet the requirements of every keeper, whether he operates on either a large or small scale. Types of breeds for different objectives are fully described and illustrated; selection of layers and breeders by the "handling" system—of which the author is the recognized English expert—and the internal working of the hen are so described that the modern methods of feeding and housing for egg-production can be readily followed. Breeding, housing, feeding, ailments and their treatment—everything, indeed, connected with poultry-keeping—is dealt with in this volume, which forms a complete standard work on Poultry—an "Enquire Within" on the whole subject.

ROBB, JOHN F., LL.B., LL.M., M.P.L.

Patent Essentials. For the Executive, Engineer, Lawyer, and Inventor. New and Revised Edition. Since its publication some five years ago, this volume has become the standard in its field—for laymen and attorneys alike. It gives in non-technical language a practical explanation of the nature of patents, the mechanics of their procurement, the scientific drafting of patent claims, conduct of cases, and special proceedings, including forms, together with complete illustrative cases. This new edition contains also the 1927 revisions of the Patent laws; amendments to the rules of practise of the Patent Office putting into effect the 1927 changes in the Patent statutes; the 1927 amended Patent statutes themselves together with certain new forms of value; and material bringing the law of employer-employee rights up to date. Indispensable to business men, engineers, young patent solicitors, recruit patent examiners, inventors, mechanics, students of Patent law, lawyers with but few patent cases, assistants in patent law-offices, and foreign patent lawyers or solicitors. The author is both an inventor and a patent attorney of high repute and some twenty-eight years' experience and a member of the Cleveland and District of Columbia bars. 8vo, Cloth, 467 pages, with 9 full-page illustrations and charts, and numerous smaller ones throughout the text. $5.00, net.

SMITH, ISABEL COTTON

The Blue Book of Cookery and Manual of House Management. (Introduction by Emily Post.) This is not "just another cook-book," but an original and authoritative guide for the preparation of foods and for house management. All the originality and importance of this volume would be of limited value unless it were written by so capable and practical an authority as Isabel Cotton Smith. It contains more than 2000 recipes; gives complete information on the management of house and home, with invaluable suggestions for table economy, and includes everything for every season and every day in the year, for every possible repast from breakfast to late supper and from teas and picnic meals to specially designed menus for children at home and at school, as well as menus for vegetarians.

WIMSATT, GENEVIEVE

A Griffin in China. A book full of little-known information about Chinese life. Written from a personal viewpoint by an American girl who went to China a few years ago and lived there for some time. She mastered the Chinese language, read Chinese books, ate Chinese food, frequented Chinese temples and theaters, and closely studied the Chinese people. She describes her experiences and adventures, dilates on Chinese art and superstitions, and takes the reader with her to the shows, restaurants, shops, and even to a Chinese funeral. A number of photographs illustrate the book. Explanations of various art objects, many of which are illustrated, permits one who has Chinese curios and antiques to identify them, and perhaps to read their symbols and markings.
Crown 8vo, Cloth, 272 pages, $3.00, net.

"'A Griffin in China' offers a fascinating close-up of China, old and new, presented in an appealing manner."—Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

"This particular foreigner saw a lot in China—her immemorial customs, her people and her reactions to the onslaught of Western civilization. Miss Wimsatt writes with grace and distinction."—John O'London's Weekly, London.

"Gives a very good idea of every-day life in the great Republic, now the center of world interest."—London Daily Chronicle.

"Miss Wimsatt knows her subject and does much with it."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ALEXANDER, JAMES

Thought-Control in Everyday Life. An original, non-technical, accurate, and sensible presentation of the truths of psychology and their everyday application to the attainment of mind-control, the overcoming of bad habits, the conquering of obstacles, and the achieving of the success for which you aim, both physical and mental. It offers a clear, logical explanation with but one objective toward which all statements aim —the control and direction of mind, your own and others. It is not only believable but actually workable. As discussed in this volume the mind of the average person takes on a new significance. Instead of being an arbitrary and domineering factor, at cross-purposes with the individual's best interests, it is shown to be a working force easily controlled and susceptible of guidance along definite lines to insure greatest efficiency—and this without the colossal effort of will which many have thought necessary to bring the mind under control. In short, the reader is shown how to take advantage of every practical agency for the attainment of mind-control—how to recognize and use those factors which, with or without conscious effort, lead to the centering of the mental processes on achievement. 12mo, Cloth, 275 pages. $2.50.

"A book such as 'Thought-Control in Everyday Life' has in it the qualities that would make thousands more intelligent about themselves, happier, more cheerful and more successful. It is a veritable path to 'know thyself,' and the path in this case is very easy to tread: arguments are easily understood: methods are clearly expressed: we see ourselves in a clear looking-glass. As a so-called 'self helpful book' I know not its equal for simplicity and easy understanding."—Edward W. Bok.

"The book is a marvel of compactness, wealth of material, and practical value."—Rev. Bishop John H. Vincent, D.D., Chicago, Ill.

"I regard The Analytical Reference Bible as a most valuable contribution to our literature. It combines advantages which I have never seen before in one work. That it is a storehouse of valuable helps for every minister and theological student is very clear. There is no work with which I am acquainted that at all supplied the need which this work is sure to do. I fully believe it is a book which will open the Bible and the depth of its meaning to large numbers who have not yet seen it in the clear light in which it is here revealed."—Rev. Bishop John F. Hurst, D.D., Washington, D. C.

"The Analytical Reference Bible has superseded the  in use on my study table for sixteen years, and with it various Bible helps, all of which I find between the covers of this work in more available form."—Rev. Josiah Strong, D.D., Pres. Amer. Inst. Social Service, New York.

"It would not be possible to find in the compass of any other single volume so complete and valuable apparatus for the direct study of the text of the English Bible."—Rev. Dr. W. Henry Green, Princeton, N. J.

The Sunday Evening Evangel. A series of Sunday evening sermons. $1.75.

The Unexpected Christ. A series of thirty evangelistic sermons written in Dr. Banks's characteristic style. 12mo, Cloth, 328 pp. $1.75.

Twentieth-Century Knighthood. Helpful addresses to young men in which examples of ancient chivalry are used to illustrate modern conditions. A companion volume to "The Christian Gentleman" and "My Young Man." 12mo, Cloth, 142 pp. $1.00.

The World's Childhood. Thirty sermons based on the first three chapters of the Book of Genesis. They are marked by modernity and application to present conditions, and abound in suggestive anecdotes, pertinent quotations and uplifting comments. $1.75.

Windows for Sermons. A study of the art of sermonic illustration, with 400 fresh illustrations suited for sermons and reform addresses. 12mo, Cloth, 440 pp. $1.75.

Dramatic Stories of Jesus. Twenty-one short stories covering the life of Jesus. In the Bible numerous incidents of Jesus' life are condensed by the four apostles into mere statements of fact or a few short paragraphs. But as the complete details would prove of intense interest, Dr. Banks has endeavored to fill a few of these "silent places in the Gospels" with his "Dramatic Stories of Jesus"—stories, he says, "as they might have been." Necessarily the stories are fiction, and more entertaining in that they are in conversational style. Beautifully illustrated with 21 selections from the world's masterpieces (frontispiece in colors). 12mo, Cloth, 310 pages. $2.00.

BARKER, ALDRED F.

†Woolen and Worsted Spinning. A broad survey of the industry in England and Scotland. BEUTENMÜLLER, WILLIAM. (See Manual of American and European Butterflies.)

BIBLE DICTIONARY, A NEW STANDARD

A completely revised, enlarged, and reset edition based on the original, which has been the leading authority for a number of years. Professor Melancthon W. Jacobus, Professor Edward E. Nourse, and Professor Andrew C. Zenos, the editors of the original work, spent nearly a year in the preparation of this new edition, with the help of thirty-seven of the ablest Biblical scholars of this country, Great Britain, and the Continent. So thorough has been the work of the editors that this is practically a new book. The latest findings of Biblical scholars are included and several new articles are added, Professor James Moffatt and Professor John E. McFadyen having contributed articles on The Right Approach to the Bible, thus affording a guide to the study of the Bible as well as to the most profitable use of the New Standard Bible Dictionary. Other added articles deal with English Versions of the Bible, The Religion and History of Israel, The Synoptic Problem, Greek Religion, and Roman Religion. Imperial 8vo, Cloth, 989 pp., $7.50; Buckram, $8.50; Three Quarter Morocco, $12.50. Thumb-notch index, 75 cents extra. Many illustrations.

BRAZELTON, ETHEL M. COLSON

Writing and Editing for Women. This book offers a bird's-eye view of the new opportunities for women in newspaper, magazine, and other lines of writing, with practical instruction in each section of the field. It is intended at once as a textbook for the teaching of journalism and as a guide for women who wish to prepare themselves for professional writing through home study. Mrs. Brazelton is an instructor in Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University. She has done practically every kind of newspaper and magazine work, and into her book she has packed her accumulated knowledge, seeking to pass along to others the secrets of craftsmanship (likewise salesmanship) that have won success in her own career as free-lance writer, critic, and editor. At the end of each chapter are a dozen assignments for practise lessons or classroom work, and at the end of the book are useful appendixes on technical phases of the writer's work. There are several pages of advice by a score of prominent writers and editors in various lines. 12mo, Cloth, with Appendixes. About 300 pp. $2.50.

BURNABY, COL. FRED

†A Ride to Khiva. Tales of adventures in Central Asia, with portrait of the author, and seven illustrations. Crown 8vo, Cloth, 346 pp. $2.00.

BURRELL, DAVID J., D.D., LL.D.

A Quiver of Arrows. This volume is far more than a collection of pulpit discourses. It consists of seventy sermons, each of which has been reduced by severe, tho intelligent, epitomizing to a fifteen minutes' discourse — terse, clear, and forcible, by Thomas Douglas, Ph.D. The rhetorical divisions are few and plain and simple, making the sermons models of composition for the theological student, the young preacher and the class leader. A topical index of sermonic illustrations adds still further to the homiletic value of the book. The sermons in the book are grouped under the following classifications: Textual sermons, Expository sermons, Topical sermons, Doctrinal sermons, Biographical sermons, Ethical sermons, Sociological sermons, Anniversary sermons. 8vo, Cloth, 391 pp. $1.50.

The Lure of the City. Twenty-two chapters devoted to the young man who is just leaving the rural home to take up life in the city. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25.

BURTON, WILLIAM, M.A., F.C.S.

†A General History of Porcelain (Two Volumes). The author, Mr. William Burton, probably the greatest living authority on porcelain, here presents the most incisive, most authoritative, and most instructive work that has ever been published for the student and collector. The volumes contain a complete survey of the development of porcelain from the earliest Chinese production down to the present day. They are further enriched by a series of colored plates and other illustrations which are remarkable for their quality. Of these, there are 32 plates in color and 80 in black and white, while the text also contains reproductions, in facsimile, of works connected with the various periods and porcelain factories. The first volume deals with the porcelains of China, Japan, Korea, Persia, Italy, Spain, Portugal, and France, the second embracing chapters on the minor French factories, and the porcelains of England, Germany, Norway, Sweden, and other European countries. Two volumes, 8vo, Cloth, profusely illustrated, with many color plates. 460 pp. $30.00 the set.

†Josiah Wedgwood and His Pottery. This book is something different from any on the subject that has appeared hitherto. It is not so much a biography as a story of Wedgwood's work; it shows the development of the great potter's achievements — how his ideas were worked out, step by step, to ultimate successful practice. There is much that is of paramount historical and technical interest concerning Wedgwood's glazes, his kilns, his methods of working his clay, and of obtaining his designs, and the expression of his ideas. For a considerable time the author worked at Etruria, the world-famous works that Josiah Wedgwood built; he penetrated Wedgwood's technical secrets, he knew his formulæ, he discovered new facts concerning the man as well as his work. He therefore writes with authority. The color plates especially are triumphs of color photography. Their wide range of subject will doubtless surprize many who have come to associate the name of Wedgwood almost entirely with the "jasper" and basalt wares. Representative examples are given of every type of production of the Etruria kilns. There are 32 plates in color and 72 in half-tone. Edition limited to 500 copies for the United States. Super-royal 8vo, Cloth, 206 pp. $25.00.

BUTLER, ELLIS PARKER

The Incubator Baby. By the author of "Pigs is Pigs," and just as full of fun. A little classic brimming over with Satire—Sentiment—Sense. 12mo, Cloth, illustrated. $1.00.

"A delicious satire which will be enjoyed by all families where the real baby, reared by natural processes, is the monarch of the crib, and all intervening space and time."—Pittsburgh Post.

BUTLER, GLENTWORTH R., A.M., M.D.

Emergency Notes. Every man and woman should posses the knowledge which this little volume imparts. It treats in a most lucid and comprehensive way all cases of accidents or sudden disorder which are likely to overtake one at any moment and gives valuable instructions as to what to do until the doctor comes. Easily understood descriptions of the body and its functions are included. The many drawings and diagrams with which the volume is illustrated will prove of the greatest practical value, particularly those referring to broken bones, bandaging, and drowning. 12mo, Cloth, illustrated, 102 pp. 75c.

BUTLER, J. GLENTWORTH, D.D.

Butler Bible Work, The. Over 100,000 volumes in the hands of more than 20,000 students and expositors of the Bible, from whom have come the most enthusiastic words of praise. Eleven volumes, bound in Seal-brown Silk Cloth. Send for descriptive circular. Price, $44.00.

CHARACTERISTIC FEATURES

1. An incomparably full and inspiring comment, explanatory of the sense or meaning of the text and suggestive of its underlying spirit.
2. Details touching the origin, structure, contents, and connections of the Bible and its several books—questions of Science and facts of archeology and chronology treated by expert investigators. Geographical and topographical matter and maps taken from eminent geographers and explorers.
3. Fulness of study is also largely insured by the Introductions and by numerous special treatises set in place throughout all the volumes. In these are condensed the substance of many small books in current use.
4. A carefully studied and largely interpreted Codification of the Laws given to Moses at Sinai.
5. The Four Gospels are condensed into a continuous Life History of the Christ, in the order of its events and, in the words of the writers, to "get a clear and accurate idea of the Master's Life."

CHURCHILL, A. L., and WICKENDEN, LEONARD

The House-Owner's Book. An ideal, non-technical volume of great practical value to all people interested in homes, from the architect to the carpenter, from the prospective builder to the landlord. It should be read by every one who owns a home, rents one, who is contemplating building one, or who possesses vast holdings. Loan associations, real-estate dealers, and builders will find it invaluable. "The House-Owner's Book" covers perplexing problems that have never before been brought together in book form, and is written with clarity and precision. It is complete along lines of wide-reaching interest. It tells the prospective house-owner how to select a site for a house, and how to finance the building of it; tells him what he needs to know about the construction of the house; has a full chapter on different kinds of common woods and their uses; a short chapter on metals used in the house; a chapter on plumbing and how to make ordinary repairs; a chapter on heating and ventilation; another on the water supply, with special reference to wells and their care; a chapter on painting, and how to do it where professional skill is not required; a chapter on electricity; a chapter on special appliances, such as the iceless ice-box, vacuum cleaners, etc.; and additional chapters on drainage, lighting, home electricity, the garage, etc. There is also a wealth of information on fire hazards in the house; gas accidents; dangers from electricity; and hazards from electrical appliances. 12mo, Cloth, with numerous illustrations. 404 pp. $2.00.

"The house-owner who objects to the high cost of repairs in these days may learn many money-saving tricks from this book. And even if economy is not his first thought, there are many things about the house—such as its electrical equipment, the treatment of hardwood floors, the water supply, etc.—that are explained so simply and thoroughly that the puzzled reader will be happy in the possession of the book."—Outlook, New York.

CLAXTON, WILLIAM J.

†Insect Workers. The author gives a hint of the character of the work in his introduction: "We human beings think ourselves clever. Men talk proudly about the wonderful buildings they erect, the splendid machines they construct, and the grand furniture they make for their houses. But I shall show you some mechanics, laborers, carpenters and builders far more wonderful than man." As you read, you see beautifully laid out dwellings with terraced roofs adorned with cupolas; walls hung with lovely tapestries and inhabited by busy little masons. Soldiers, policemen, undertakers, cigarmakers, and representatives of nearly all professions and trades are met with. A delightful book from start to finish. With colored plates. 16mo, Illustrated. 75 cents.

COBERN, CAMDEN M., D.D., Litt.D.

The New Archeological Discoveries, and Their Bearing upon the New Testament and upon the Life and Times of the Primitive Church. With Introduction by Edouard Naville, D.C.L., LL.D. While filled with material that will be of intense interest to scholars and Bible students, this illuminating work is written in a style so popular as to make a strong appeal to every book-lover. Not only does it throw strong light on the text and style of the New Testament; it also presents a most interesting picture, drawn from the original sources, of the life, social and religious customs, art, literature, family relations, etc., of the early Christian centuries, that will make the people of New Testament times as real to us as our associates and friends of to-day. The book has many illustrations, is popular in form, yet loses nothing of scientific value by simplicity of presentation. Sixth edition, with author's final additions. Large 8vo, 742 pp. $3.00.

The first section of the book, dealing with the modern discoveries of papyri, presents some hundred large pages of great fascination. Also of great interest is the second chapter on the new light from papyri upon the language of the New Testament. . . . But this is only Part I. In Part II are studied the monuments, inscriptions and other remains with respect to their bearing on the life and times of the primitive church. The material comes mainly from Palestine, Pompeii, the Roman Catacombs, Phrygia and Syria. The excavations at the famous cities mentioned in the New Testament are treated in a special section, and finally the author considers new documentary and other evidence throwing light upon the early Christian centuries. This last section treats of classical texts in the light of new discoveries, non-Biblical Jewish literature which influenced theological and ethical thought of Palestine in the first century and the intellectual, social and religious life as seen in the papyri.—The Evening Sun, New York.

"I have known for some time that Dr. Cobern was planning this book, and I rejoice that it has been successfully completed. . . . Although I have been quite familiar with the material of the book, I have found much in it that is new."—Dr. Adolph Deissmann, great German Archæological Authority.
